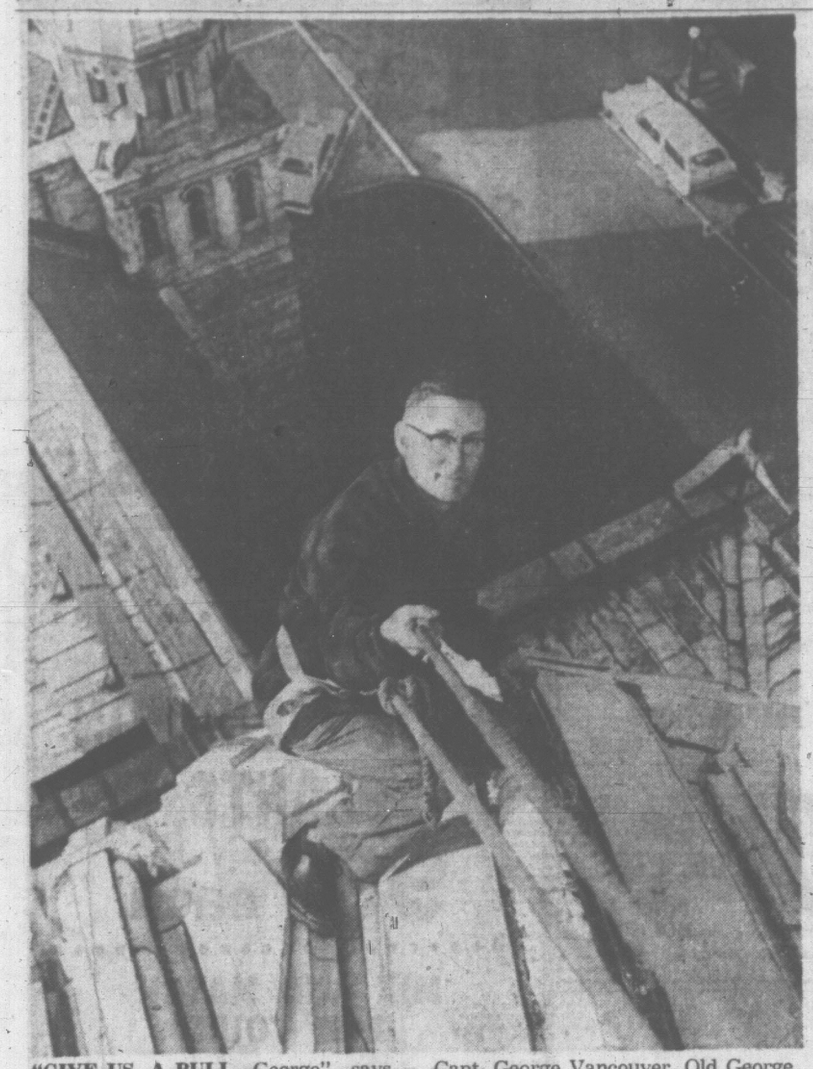
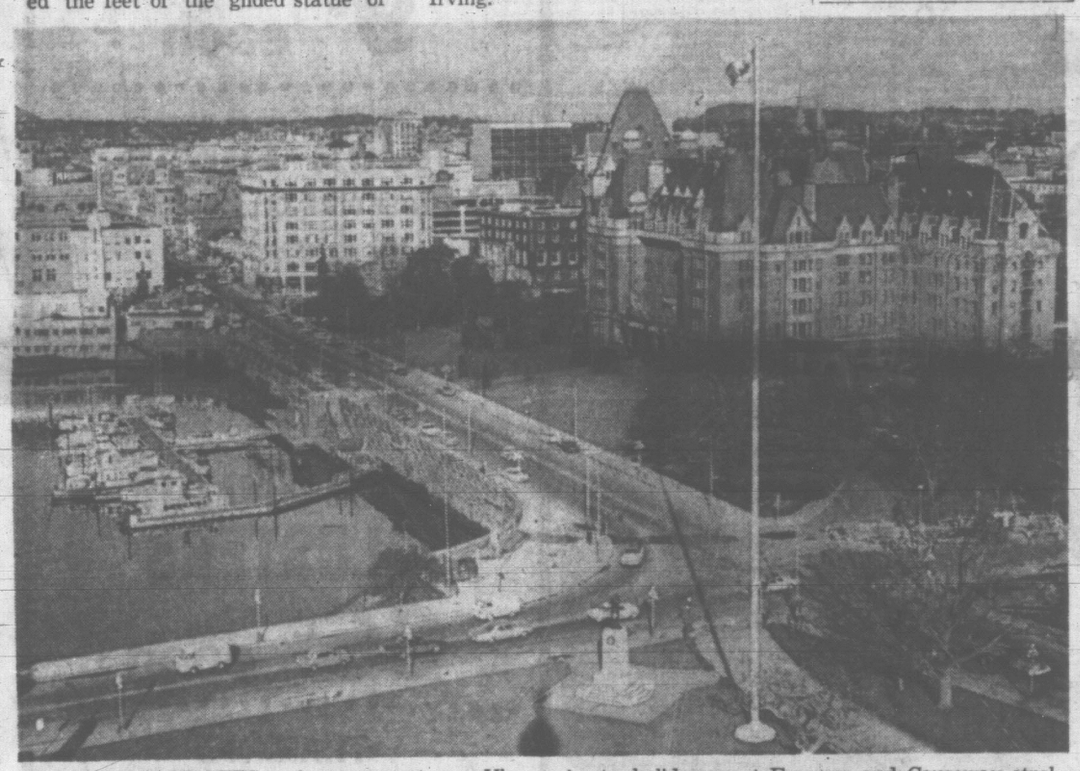
Soviet Writers Jailed For Criticizing Regime



"GIVE US A PULL, George", says provincial government electrician Don Butt, scaling the dome of the Legislative Buildings to replace light bulbs and repair sockets. He's almost reached the feet of the gilded statue of Capt. George Vancouver. Old George never even looked down. Photographer Irving Strickland couldn't lend a hand either. He spared one hand for the camera. The other one was for Irving.



WHAT GEORGE SEES as he stares out over Victoria from dome of buildings, is shown here. George of course is Captain George Vancouver who maintains his calm outlook despite annual session of wrangling beneath his feet. George sees visiting boats, holidayers at Empress and Causeway strollers, the flag snapping in a salty breeze and gulls soaring carefree and abandoned. If it wasn't for that row downstairs, he might even smile.

Plane Wreckage Located

PALOMARES BEACH, Spain (AP) — Air and ground searchers today located the wreckage of a U.S. Air Force Globemaster with eight Americans aboard which crashed while delivering material for the search for the U.S. nuclear device missing in the waters off the coast of Spain.

A U.S. spokesman said the wreckage was sighted six miles northwest of the village of Trevelez, on the snow-covered slopes of 11,423-foot Pico Mulhacen, in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

The Spanish news agency CIFRA quoted official Spanish sources as saying there were no survivors. Headquarters of the 16th U.S. Air Force, however, declined to make any statement on the fate of the eight crew members until a closer search of the area is made.

The giant C-124 disappeared Saturday night after leaving Seville with two buses for use by searchers looking for what is believed to be a 20-megaton hydrogen bomb.

Books Smuggled To Paris Agent

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Russian writers were convicted today of undermining Soviet Communism with clandestine works. Smuggled to the west and were sentenced to prison terms of five and seven years.

Literary critic Andrei D. Sinyavsky received the maximum sentence of seven years. Newsman-translator Yuli M. Daniel was sentenced to five years.

The court ruled the terms must be served in "strict regime labor camps." Strict regime usually means no such privileges as visitors or regular correspondence with the outside.

The Supreme Court of the Russian Federated Republic refused prosecution demands that both men be banished from Moscow after serving their sentences.

The court convicted Sinyavsky and Daniel on charges of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" despite their pleas they did not mean to damage communism or the Soviet Union with their works.

Sinyavsky and Daniel had pleaded innocent to the charges while admitting they had smuggled books written under assumed names to the west for publication.

Spectators Needed Invitation

Although the trial was "public," neither foreigners nor the general public were admitted. Spectators were admitted by invitation only and included mainly other Russian writers and officials.

The four-day trial stirred an international storm. Forty-nine Western writers publicly urged the Soviet government to free the two men.

Sinyavsky and Daniel had admitted that for seven years they wrote books, essays and short stories under the pennames of "Abram Tertz" and "Nikolai Arzhak," respectively.

The works, all taking a critical view of Russia under Communion, were smuggled to Paris and published there. They spread from there and Sinyavsky became a best seller in the West and his works were published in 24 languages.

While admitting the writing and smuggling, Sinyavsky and Daniel pleaded innocent on the grounds they did not intend their work to be "anti-Soviet." They argued also for the right of self-expression.

The court's hand-written judgment, read by presiding Justice Lev Smirnov, took more than two hours to read. Both the defendants and the audience stood throughout.

Applause—traditional in Soviet courts—followed the verdict.

The wives of the two men,

U.S. Navy Chicken To Play 'Chicken'

TOKYO (Reuters) — Russian warships in the Pacific often try to engage American naval units in a game of nautical "chicken," United States Rear-Admiral Evan P. Aurand said today.

"They come at us on a collision course and we have a full-time job avoiding them," he told reporters here.

Aurand said Russian destroyers had steamed straight at his ships north of Luzon off the Philippines.

"We occasionally observe Russian naval units and if we come within close range of each other they steam straight at us," he said.

"Also in the Gulf of Tonkin, merchant ships, mostly Russian and loaded to the gunwhales, have sailed straight through our lines carrying war materials into North Vietnamese ports.

"It's tough watching these ships sail through carrying materials which will be thrown back at us by the Communists."

U.S. PEACE BID

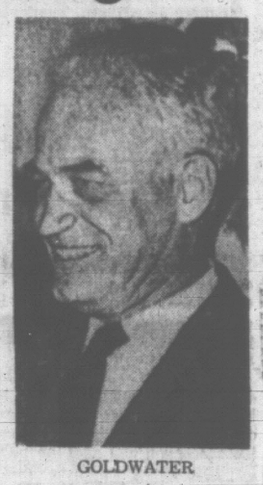
'Sad to See Great Power Grovelling'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Senator Barry Goldwater says an American demonstration of determination—and not what he calls "grovelling" peace offensives — will bring North Viet Nam to the conference table.

"I don't think it's our job to get the Communists to the conference table by begging, by going through other emmisaries, by going through other leaders," the 1960 Republican presidential candidate said Sunday on ABC's radio-television program Issues and Answers.

"I think we'll get the Hanoi government to the conference table when we convince them we have the will to attack and that we are attacking them.

"It is a very sad spectacle to see the greatest power on earth sort of grovelling."



GOLDWATER
. . . use air power

OTHERS ALSO COMMENT

President Johnson's peace offensive—and its failure thus far—brought these other weekend developments:

—Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff (Dem. Conn.) proposed that Johnson invite the participants in the 1954 Geneva conference to meet again to discuss a settlement in the Viet Nam War.

—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, said the probability is "quite low" that increased military pressure by the United States in Viet Nam would lead to a confrontation with China.

—Administration officials reported the U.S. has started blacklisting non-Communist and Polish ships that trade with North Viet Nam.

'BOMB INDUSTRIES'

Goldwater suggested that air power be used to attack the industrial complexes in North Viet Nam, bomb railways and destroy the Ho Chi Minh trail and said North Viet Nam's ports could be shut down by mining them or sinking ships in them.

Goldwater, a general in the air force reserve, said more authority for the direction of the fighting should be given to "military people who have spent their

Record Spending Plan Outlined To Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Benson today presented the Commons with an initial government spending and investment program amounting to $9,318,224,878 for the 1966-67 fiscal year which starts next April 1.

The record figure was 9½ per cent higher than the program former finance minister Walter Gordon presented to the Commons nearly a year ago for the current fiscal year ending March 31. It represented a big advance in administration and public works spending.

The new figure is likely to increase further. Millions will be needed under legislation now before Parliament and for programs developed as the new financial year goes along.

On the other hand, individual items making up the total estimates are maximum amounts, and some money earmarked for a specific purpose may not be spent within the year. In the past any such decreases have been outpaced by the increases.

The $9,318,224,878 for the new year compares with $8,506,872,232 in the initial program for 1965-66. Last year's first estimate already has been swollen to $9,079,438,540 with supplementary appropriations so far tabled in the Commons. There may be still more before March 31.

SCALE OF SPENDING

The figure of $9,318,224,878 includes amounts not regarded as budgetary expenditures in the parliamentary sense, but it indicates the scale of spending for which Finance Minister Sharp must budget when he prepares the tax program, likely to be presented to the Commons late next month.

Included as non-budgetary items were $1,035,000,000—up from $905,000,000 this year—in expenditures from the old age security fund. This reflects the lowering of the qualifying age to 69 last Jan. 1 and to 68 next Jan. 1 for the universal $75 monthly pensions paid from special sales, income and corporation taxes.

Also included is $332,765,400 for the new year, compared with $202,144,800 a year ago, for loans, investments and advances. These go mainly to Crown corporations like the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and Expo 67. The government expects repayment in future years.

PENSIONS NOT INCLUDED

Another big account not reflected in the new Blue Book is the Canada Pension Plan fund. Payroll deductions for the fund began last Jan. 1, but the first benefits will not be paid until next January, three months before the end of the new fiscal year.

The new estimates included $1,510,204,000 for defence, including the budgets of the defence department, defence production department, Emergency Measures Organization and Crown companies directly involved in defence work. The figure a year ago for 1965-66 was $1,583,613,800. This already has grown to $1,593,584,393 with supplementary estimates tabled since.

For every $1 of government spending in the new fiscal year, the taxpayer's money would be divided this way: 26 cents for health and welfare payments, including old age pensions; 18 cents for defence, 13 cents for debt charges, five cents for subsidies and other payments to the provinces, and 38 cents for all other federal government services.

Viet Nam Trial Disrupted

LONDON (AP) — Shouting demonstrators protesting the war in Viet Nam broke up a trial of 19 colleagues today. Police cleared the public gallery, dragging some of the demonstrators from the courtroom. The proceedings were halted for five minutes.

Nineteen were charged with obstructing the highway at the House of Commons during a Viet Nam demonstration Saturday.

Eleven, who pleaded not guilty were fined £2 ($6) each, six were bound over on bail of £5 ($15) until March 1, and the cases of two were put back for trial later in the day.

Applause greeted the declaration of one 18-year-old defendant who told the magistrate? "I'm afraid I don't accept the validity of your so-called justice."

More than 100 took part in the Saturday demonstration organized by the "Committee of 100," a militant splinter group of Britain's nuclear disarmament movement.

Queen Mother May Visit City

QUEEN MOTHER
. . . news "unofficial"

The Queen Mother Elizabeth is expected to spend a few hours in Victoria on Friday, March 18.

News of the royal visit reached The Times unofficially today but civic and provincial sources appear to confirm it.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace said there is a likelihood the Queen Mother will visit for a few hours.

He said an official announcement can be expected before the end of this week.

Mayor A. W. Toone said he has had no definite information "but a visit has been indicated."

It has been known since Jan. 14 that the Queen Mother would make a brief stopover at Vancouver March 18 when an aircraft carrying her to Australia stops there for refueling.

Cambodia Boosts Combat Force

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian government announced today it was increasing its combat forces by 5,500 men "in the face of almost daily aggressions by our neighbors."

The buildup, effective immediately, came amid increasing border skirmishes with Thailand. Cambodia is also bordered by South Viet Nam and Laos. The increase would bring Cambodia's total combat forces to 23,500 men.

Cambodia has enough war material on hand — most of it from China — with which to arm new troops. Official announcements have listed Peking-supplied weapons and other items for nearly 75,000 men.

The government said the troop increase was being taken to cope with "aggression" by the so-called "Khmer Serei" (Free Cambodia) right-wing rebel movement.

Cambodia has charged that the rebels are headquartered in Thailand, but the Thai government has denied it.

'DIRTY' BOMB BEST WEAPON AND U.S. STILL BUILDING IT

TORONTO (CP) — A United States nuclear physicist said Sunday night his country is still building the so-called "dirty nuclear bomb" because it is the most effective military weapon.

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, who worked on the Manhattan Project that helped develop the atomic bomb during the Second World War, was interivewed on the CBC's television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

"That's what's in inventory and that's what the B-52s are carrying," he said in reference to nuclear bombs with heavy radioactive fallout.

Dr. Lapp said it is unrealistic to think of getting any kind of gentleman's agreement so that only "humane" bombs are used in nuclear war. "Your opponent will use his best weapons as he sees them."

LAPP

He described a nuclear war as "a horrible convulsion in which there'll be no time for restraint. An enemy will simply hurl his nuclear might at you as a kind of series of jovian thunderbolts, and you in turn will not wait to evaluate the damage."

Dr. Lapp said he thought it would be technically possible for China to have a hydrogen bomb in two or three years.

He said the only way to get at the Chinese in the event of war would be to use dirty bombs with plenty of fallout.

However, he said he doubted whether the United States could win a war with China using "clean bombs." I don't believe you could even deter China by using the blast of a Minuteman or Polaris weapon against its cities."

(Times News Services)

RAMONA, Okla. — "See what I found in my bed," the man shouted as he marched up and down the streets of East Ramona, knocking on doors in the pre-dawn hours.

In his hand was a loaded rifle.

At the end of the rifle muzzle stood a second man—nude.

Deputy Sheriff George Hughes, called by worried residents, drove up. He stepped from his car into the 20-degree cold and order, "Drop that gun."

The clothed man calmly and quickly broke open the gun and unloaded it. Then he handed it to the officer.

The unclothed man sighed. A look of relief swept across his face. But he did not speak.

The shivering man without clothes was quickly furnished with a blanket and was given permission to hurry off into the darkness.

Officers said the armed man told them he had been separated from his wife for several days and had come home early Friday and found the other man in bed with his wife.

Authorities said the second man was reluctant to get out of bed, so the husband fired a shotgun blast through the wall above the bed, "just to show that he meant business."

The gunman then began marching the nude man up and down the streets of East Ramona because he "just wanted all the neighbors to know it."

CRICKET MALHERBIE, England—A doctor doing research on hypothermia—illness caused by low body temperature—says those short, short skirts are a hazard.

What's more, says Dr. Geoffey Taylor, they are bad for business.

"These skirts, four inches above the knee, are ridiculous as protection against the British winter.

"Girls would be more efficient employees if they wore ski-pants and men would work better if they wore long underpants.

"If employers want maximum efficiency in winter, they should either see that their employees get some exercise or else provide a fire."

SALERNO, Italy — The priest asked Antonio Naddeo, 28, Sunday whether he would take Concetta Savarese, also 28, in holy matrimony.

"Excuse me, I wasn't listening," said Antonio.

The priest repeated his question; "I don't want her," Antonio replied and walked out of the church.

Concetta fainted. Distraught relatives revived her and persuaded Antonio to return to the altar.

The priest put the question again. Antonio sighed and said, "yes."

LONDON — The 5,000,000-circulation London Sunday Mirror criticized the BBC Sunday for making fun of commuters on Japanese trains.

Columnist Quentin Crewe said the BBC radio program Roundabout described how Japanese men take off their trousers and women take off their skirts before sitting on commuter trains.

"So they do," Crewe said, "partly because it is hot and partly so that their suits do not get shiny. Very practical.

"Roundabout put on a mocking voice. They described the Japanese as solemn. Think how we would laugh, they said, if people did the same thing in Britain.

"Yes, we would laugh and snigger. But does that not, perhaps, reveal that the Japanese are more adult than we are?"

Start Welfare Work, S. Viet Army Told

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's military government ordered its armed forces today to exert every muscle possible in civil actions designed to win the public support for the battle against the Communists.

The directive issued by the defence department appeared to be a direct outcome of the Honolulu conference with U.S. President Johnson and also the public statements of U.S. Vice-President Humbert H. Humphrey on his trip here last week.

The decree instructed army units to participate in relief, economic, welfare and medical programs.

Military commanders were ordered, in a statement issued by Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Huu Co, minister of war and secretary of defence, to comply with the instructions but he added a word of caution:

"Military civic actions will only be conducted within the capabilities of the units without hindering the execution of their combat operations."

dressed in black, were sitting in front row seats in the packed room when the verdict came. When the two women had entered the courtroom for the final session, a youth in the crowd outside whistled—the traditional Russian sign of derision.

He was quickly silenced by others in the crowd standing in the snowy courtyard—most of whom were believed friends of the defendants.

Earlier, young communist "vigilantes" chased western newsmen awy from the courtyard and took two French correspondents to police headquarters where they accused them of "sensational and slanderous" reporting of the trial, but then apologized and let them go.

After the verdict Sinyavsky and Daniel turned and were led by officers back to the cells in Lubyanka prison where they had been held since their arrest last September.

They were expected to be moved out of Moscow soon to an unspecified labor colony to begin serving their sentences.

Both have the right of appeal—first to the national supreme court on points of law and then to President Nikolai Podgorny for executive clemency.

lives studying the problems of strategy."

"I think men like the secretary of defence (Robert S. McNamara) should be removed completely from any part of this war other than the logistic part."

A panelist asked Goldwater if the U.S. should attack Chinese atomic plants if China got into the war.

"Frankly I would like one provocation just to knock out their atomic capability right out of the ground," Goldwater replied, "and I think they realize this and I think for that reason they are not going to become directly involved."

CREDITS AIR POWER

Gen. Taylor credited his conclusion that China is not likely to enter into war with the United States to massive U.S. air power.

He said on the CBS radio-television program Face the Nation the situation in Viet Nam is similar to that during the Korean War. "Our air power has been belittled for its performance in Korea because it didn't stop the war," he explained. "It didn't stop the war but it put a ceiling on the war.

"There were at least a million more armed Chinese north of the Yalu (River) who never came into action because they could not be supported on the front under the pressure from the air."

Taylor, former chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and now a special presidential adviser, also gave some of his views in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News and World Report magazine.

"It is certainly not in the interest of Red China to have a military confrontation with the United States," he said. "It would simply be completely destructive for their country if they were so rash as to do so."

'WITHDRAW 10,000'

Ribicoff said President Johnson should offer to withdraw 10,000 American troops from South Viet Nam if the Hanoi government would match the U.S. offer.

Johnson should personally invite participants to the proposed Geneva meeting, make it clear that no subject would be barred from the conference agenda and name UN Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg as chief negotiator, Ribicoff said.

The former secretary of health, education and welfare said he had written Johnson about his proposals.

The blacklisting of foreign ships that have traded with North Viet Nam began Jan. 25, it was revealed, but only came to light after the maritime administration listed the first group of barred ships in the federal register. The vessels are barred from transporting U.S.-financed cargoes from American ports.

MONEY CHANGEOVER

Spent the Old To Get the New

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) Thousands of persons spent their old pounds, shillings and pence today on goods they really didn't need in order to get a quick look at the new dollars and cents, as Australia entered the decimal currency era.

The new currency consists of one, two, 10 and 20 dollar notes and coins of one, two, five, 10, 20 and 50 cents. The basic unit is the dollar, worth 10 Australian shillings ($1.21 Canadian).

Sir Walter Scott, chairman of the decimal currency board, said that the changeover was going smoothly and efficiently.

He said there were isolated reports of shops raising prices, but in some of these cases this was due to the owner's failure to convert correctly.

But E. M. Walling, secretary of the 10,000 - member Housewives' Progressive Association, charged that scores of firms raised their prices during the last two or three months in anticipation of the changeover.

Prices which were not easily converted accurately had been adjusted upward, he said.

Both old and new currencies will be legal tender for two years.

The switch leaves Britain and New Zealand the only major trading nations still using the sterling system. New Zealand plans to convert to decimal currency next year, and Britain is thinking about it.

'MORE GIFTS OF GAS' ON WAY TO RHODESIA

SALISBURY (CP) — Two South Africans delivered 1,400 gallons of gasoline Saturday to Rhodesia as a gift from South African farmers.

Phillip du Plessis and Peter Froeneman, who came from Bethlehem, South Africa, told Mayor Gordon Harper and a crowd of Rhodesians more gifts of gasoline are on the way from South Africans.

The project is designed to help Rhodesians survive an international oil embargo clamped on them because the white-minority government of Ian Smith declared Rhodesia independent without making provision for eventual participation in the government by the 4,000,000 black Rhodesians.

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI) — An Australia-wide campaign to buy gasoline for Rhodesians was launched today at a Melbourne public meeting attended by 200 persons.

The appeal was announced by Eric Butler national director of the Australian League of Rights. The league's appeal already stands at $500 (Aust.).

NAMED as the "Grand Empress" of the National Knights of the Ku Klux Klan in Ohio was Eloise Witte of Cleveland. Scheduled to be called as a witness before the un-American affairs committee in Washington, she sits in the waiting room wearing a button which says: "LBJ for EX-president."

U.S. Warns Tourists Of Harsh Treatment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reversing a policy of recent years, the U.S. state department will tell Americans planning to visit the Soviet Union that they may be harshly treated if they get into trouble there.

Officials said Sunday such notice will be issued soon to U.S. citizens who indicate in passport applications they want to go to Russia.

The action follows a long and unsuccessful effort by the U.S. government to get what it considered fair play for Newcomb Mott, the young American sightseer who strolled across the Norwegian-Soviet border last September without Soviet permission.

The Russians seized Mott and sentenced him to a 1½-year prison term which the U.S. said far exceeded Soviet practice in such cases. Moscow subsequently reported that Mott killed himself Jan. 21.

Officials noted that in recent years the state department has encouraged U.S. tourists to go to Russia as one way to improve U.S.-Soviet relations.

The switching from this position, the department reasons that in times of deteriorating relations between Moscow and Washington — the Kremlin has been vigorously denouncing the U.S. role in Viet Nam — Americans who run afoul of Soviet aughorities risk extreme penalties.

The state department is not prohibiting Americans from going to the Soviet Union, the officials said.

SHIPS BLACKLISTED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has begun blacklisting free-world and Polish ships which trade with North Viet Nam.

A Maritime Administration official said Saturday night that blacklisted ships will be barred from carrying U.S. sponsored cargoes bound for other countries from U.S. ports. A similar prohibition was directed against ships dealing with Cuba in 1963.

Centennial 'Conditions Unavoidable'

Central Saanich councillors will have the centennial project problem on their hands again this Tuesday.

They will receive formal notification of the resignation last week of the Central Saanich centennial committee. The committee resigned after its proposed project, a $36,000 swimming pool, was turned down by council.

Members of the committee "could not be criticized for resigning," Reeve Gordon Lee commented.

"They feel they have been let down," he said.

Mr. Lee said he had not discussed the matter with other members of council but referring to events that led up to committee's resignation he said: "Conditions, in my opinion, were unavoidable."

Reeve Lee said he had hoped committee members would not take the $10,000 limit mentioned by council for an alternate project "too literally." He said the limit, the combined municipal and senior government centennial grants, was recommended to the committee but it was not definitely stated that any project in excess of this amount would be considered by council.

SEARCH FOR AUTONOMY

Quebec Demands Right to Choose

TORONTO (CP) — Both the English-Canadian and French-Canadian "nations" in Canada have the right to self-determination, Quebec Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson said today.

JOHNSON

The leader of Quebec's Union Nationale party told members of the Canadian Club of Toronto that recognition of this right is necessary for the preservation and growth of Canada as a whole.

"That right to self - determination that we concede to the English - Canadian nation is a right that we want to see recognized to the French - Canadian nation which after four centuries of toil, of loyalty to its soul and of rootedness in this country, legitimately aspires to live and progress in accordance of its own distinctive culture," he said.

The conflict was that "to express themselves as a nation through a strong central government, English - Canadians are forced to oppose Quebec's search for autonomy, which is its natural path."

"All this springs from an obsolete constitution which has become a straitjacket for both groups. And, what is more, it tends to divide them instead of uniting them."

Speaking in English, Mr. Johnson said the Fulton - Favreau formula for amending the constitution is not the right tool to correct this fault.

The people of Quebec "are rightly opposed to the imposition of an amending formula which has been conceived without them and against them, in the secrecy of hotel rooms, in the back rooms of a political party or even in the secrecy of a federal - provincial conference," he said.

'Civil War Feared If Not Separated'

TORONTO (CP)—A Montreal history professor says there might be civil war in Quebec within five years if the province is not separated from the rest of Canada.

Prof. Cameron Nish, head of Sir George Williams University's history department, told 80 students violence could range anywhere from a few assassinations to civil war.

Another view of Quebec was expressed Saturday by Bryce S. Mackasey, Liberal member of Parliament for Verdun.

He told the annual meeting of the Toronto and District Liberal Association that "if the Quebec way of life were allowed to spread across the 10 provinces, it would be the surest safeguard against the erosion of our federal powers to the United States."

Prof. Nish said the existence of two cultures in Canada is the country's weakness, not its strength.

All the acts defining the positions of the provinces have enshrined Quebec and the result has been that the province's people now demand the right of self-determination.

The United States fought its war of independence over the same problem, he said.

Student-exchange visits and learning French were useless in trying to identify with French-Canadians, who identify with nobody but themselves, he added.

'Force Firms To Close In Strike

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) —The legislative director of the United Steel Workers of America (CLC) suggested Sunday that companies be compelled by law to close during a legal strike.

Dwight Storey told a panel discussion at an education seminar sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor that this would make economic forces the deciding factor in the outcome of a strike.

"As long as a company can use the courts to aid it in operating a plant, then free collective bargaining doesn't exist."

He said injunctions are the cause of violence on picket lines because they allow temporary workers to go through.

"If you believe in free collective bargaining there is nothing dictatorial about padlocking a company's premises in a legal strike."

'Draft Minor Criminals'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Lt.-Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the Selective Service System, says "minor criminals" should be drafted as part of the push to satisfy Viet Nam manpower needs.

Hershey said Sunday local draft boards have been ordered to re-examine men rejected on a moral basis in conjunction with the over-all lowering of mental and physical standards for military service.

According to Hershey, there have been incidents of "young men committing crimes to escape the draft. I feel the armed forces should take some of these minor criminals."

Free Vote Approval

LONDON (CP)—Members of Parliament, voting freely without party ties, approved Friday a bill legalizing homosexuality between consenting adults in private. The 164-to-107 vote followed more than eight years of impassioned argument since Sir John Wolfenden first urged reform in his 1957 report.

Post Backs Students On Feb. 15 Holiday

A suggestion by Victoria school children that Canada establish a national flag day continues to gather support.

Latest backing comes from the Financial Post of Toronto which stated editorially, "Perhaps the Victoria boys and girls have hit on a bright thought."

The suggestion was first made by students at Mount View Senior Secondary School and has now spread to other schools. Oak Bay Council has backed the idea and State Secretary Judy LaMarsh has cautious approval.

FEBRUARY 15 HOLIDAY

The students would like to see an annual holiday on Feb. 15 to mark the date when Canada adopted a distinctive national flag.

The Financial Post said such a holiday would not only give Canadians a break between Jan. 1 and Easter but would also "promote national unity and pride."

Witnesses Wanted

Witnesses are being sought to an accident Friday night involving a pedestrian and city motorcycle policeman Constable Ronald Stewart, 4614 Saanich Road.

Treated for leg injuries and released was Mrs. Madge Moses, 60, of 1410 Fort St.

The mishap occurred at 7:30 p.m. on Fort near the intersection of Harrison and Yates.

Police said the officer wrenched his bike onto its roll guards in an attempt to avert the collision but believes he knocked the woman's feet out from under her with his leg.

Police ask witnesses to contact the city traffic department at 384-4111.

To Lift the Dragon's Head

RED CHINA'S SINGULAR LACK of success in international relations in recent months invites speculation as to what it will do to try to restore its prestige and standing. The recent savage attack of Premier Castro on his formerly close ally was the latest in a series of setbacks which Peking has suffered, all of them against the continuing background of the Sino-Russian quarrel which now shows signs of culminating in a formal break in relations.

Premier Castro had charged that Red China reneged on a rice-sugar trading deal by cutting down on proposed 1966 deliveries by one-half—a perhaps understandable action by a country which is itself having to import foodstuffs in large quantities. Peking has replied that Premier Castro lied when he charged that Red China had broken an agreement. And the Castro reaction to that was last week's furious accusations which, in the words of the Associated Press report, accused Red China of "extortion, blackmail, subversion, aggression, strangulation, hypocrisy, cynicism, deception, dishonesty, disrespect and treason."

Communist diatribes, of course, must always be interpreted not only in terms of their ostensible purpose but also with a thought to ulterior motives. In Castro's case a factor must certainly be his intention to impress Russia with his detestation of Russia's ideological rival, and win a consequent improvement of his chances for further economic deals with Moscow.

Although Red China's theories of military force and aggressive policies once stirred a responsive chord in the fiery Cuban leader, the Chinese inability to contribute substantially to Cuba's pressing economic needs was a fatal flaw in the relationship. This became clear when Russia was able to increase its trade relations with the island, rendering Premier Castro increasingly dependent on Soviet goods and services. As the Sino-Soviet split widened, it became necessary for Premier Castro to make his choice — and make it unequivocally. This he did, in terms which had until then been addressed only to the United States and other enemies.

The Cuban humiliation for Peking follows a certain loss of Chinese standing as a result of Russia's diplomatic one-upmanship in staging the Tashkent conference. It follows, too, the catastrophic Communist experience in Indonesia, the fizzle of Peking's attempt to woo African states, and a reduced but nonetheless definite rejection of United Nations membership. Red China's internal difficulties must also be taken into the balance: the necessity to reverse its agricultural policies and the failure of its earlier industrial leap.

Only one star seems to shine at the moment over Peking—the country's undoubted progress in achieving a nuclear bomb. A brilliantly demonstrated success in this endeavor might well be Peking's next attempt to regain face. It could be an effective one—with inestimable repercussions on the future of the globe.

Schools Without Federal Help

MR. FRANK CALDER, THE RESpected Indian member of British Columbia's legislature, presents an interesting problem in his suggestion that this province take over full responsibility for educating Indian children.

Mr. Calder, of course, is well-informed on the progress made in British Columbia along lines of integration in public schools. As the arrangement stands at present, Indian children are welcomed to the public school as pupils and the federal department of Indian affairs makes an annual per pupil grant to the school authorities concerned in lieu of taxes the child's parents would pay if they were residents of a municipality instead of living on a reservation.

Mr. Calder asks: Why go only halfway? Why not let the province take over completely?

The problem eventually resolves itself into one of finance. As long as the federal governments picks up the tab for Indian reserve children going to public school, no problem arises. But if the province were to assume complete jurisdiction to the exclusion of the federal department, how would funds be raised to meet costs of students coming from reservations? Would reserve lands be taxed for school purposes as are other lands?

And if new schools were built to serve a particular school-age population, would they be put up on the reserves themselves at a cost to the reservation through the equivalent of municipal taxation?

Mr. Calder's proposal suggests several new concepts and developments in the status of Indians on the reserve, along with the assumption of new responsibilities by them. Conceivably these new concepts and developments are in order as part of the promising effort by today's young Indians to equip themselves for an unprotected and highly competitive Canadian society.

Probing Poverty

IN A RESEARCH PROJECT which should provide valuable information for use far beyond American boundaries, the United States Office of Economic Opportunity has arranged to establish a centre at the University of Wiscousin for a study of poverty.

Investigations will seek answers to the questions: What happens to the income level when unemployment drops? How important is labor mobility in ending poverty? How can poverty be fought in rural regions? What impact does good and bad housing have on people? What legal help do the poor need?

These are subjects of more particular concern to the sophisticated nations of the West, perhaps, than to the countries in which poverty is a condition reflecting less than bare subsistence.

In the affluent society of Canada we have our pockets of poverty. Much has been written about the prospect of eliminating them through labor mobility—transporting those without sufficient income to regions where adequately-paying jobs are available for the right people. This is widely assumed to provide an answer to one of the basic problems of living in areas where economic stagnation occurs.

Presumably the studies will supply information on the practicability of this method of mating individuals to payrolls. It should, among other things, indicate the willingness of the extremely poor to leave the locality familiar to them for some other where work is available — a question of social as well as economic significance.

A Sharp Warning on Pollution

SHARP WARNING OF POLLUtion dangerous to salmon runs — and possibly other fisheries resources—has been given by provincial biologist R. G. McMynn in a report tabled the other day by Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan.

Pulp mill effluent, careless logging practice and use of chemicals by the forest industry and miners can be lethal to the fish stocks, the scientist reported.

Admitting that no means had yet been found to render pulp effluent harmless to fish, he pointed out that it was possible greatly to reduce its harmful qualities.

The biologist's note of caution should be clearly audible at this time when Canada, and British Columbia in particular, are showing such concern for their streams of clean water. That purity is being threatened now, at least for fish. Surely this is the time to take action, before pullution, whatever its cause, becomes critical.

"... fellow here has sent in his pay cheque for last week ... says he'll keep sending them and we should arrange to send him back a little pocket money to get by on ..."

FROM PARIS — By ANDREW MULLIGAN

New Harmony in a Franco-German Duet

THE sixth Franco-German talks since the 1963 treaty between the two countries was signed turned out in the end to be an unforeseen success.

Before departing for Bonn last week after his two-day talks with President de Gaulle and the French Premier M. Georges Pompidou, a smiling Chancellor Erhard said "it was a good meeting, and the cordiality of the talks proves that the Franco-German treaty is functioning better and better."

There had been so much to disagree about, but in the interests of practical co-operation divergencies were thrust aside and the two leaders concentrated on constructive issues. According to one French official after the talks: "They were useful in the real sense of the word."

Reunification

Chancellor Erhard came to Paris anxious to discuss two problems. First, the future of the Common Market following the recent Luxembourg compromise after the seven-months-old crisis; and secondly, to find out whether President de Gaulle would genuinely press for German reunification on his visit to Moscow next June. The successful outcome of the talks turned mainly on the latter point.

The Germans are known to favor political union within Europe. But Dr. Erhard has clearly understood that as long as President de Gaulle continues in power the most that Europeans can expect is co-operation, not political union. The speed at which the Common Market moves towards unity is thus reduced to the speed of its slowest ship, namely France, led by de Gaulle.

Both leaders therefore have given priority to developing the Common Market along the compromise lines agreed at Luxembourg on January 29, to settling the financing of the common agricultural market (which is of great importance to France) and to restarting the Kennedy Round tariff negotiations (which are of particular consequence to Germany).

France in No Hurry

The French, as M. Debre, the newly appointed minister of economic and financial affairs, pointed out, are in no hurry to lower tariffs to non-Common Market countries. But the Germans emphasized their foreign trade outside the Common Market. This would help to offset the heavy contributions with which they would be obliged to finance the common agricultural market from 1970 onwards.

Although disaster was avoided at Luxembourg, and the French only mildly admonished the Common Market Commission in Brussels and referred in a general way to their position in majority voting, it is clear that there are great and practical difficulties ahead to be solved.

What is important perhaps is that France and Germany are now prepared to solve their differences not by reference to the holy writ of the Rome Treaty but by cool assessment and discussion of their mutual problems.

The success of the talks from the German point of view was undoubtedly President de Gaulle's assurance to Dr. Erhard that he would not betray German interests in Moscow. President de Gaulle is understood to have received a mandate from Dr. Erhard to present the "European viewpoint" on the question of German reunification. Even German diplomatic sources here indicate that President de Gaulle sincerely believes that the continuing division of Germany is a threat to European security.

The President also made it clear that he would make no concessions to Soviet demands for a change of status for East Germany. Also, in a toast, he said that Germany should be reunited within its post-war frontiers. It remains unclear whether his pledge to Dr. Erhard would be conditional on West Germany dropping her ambitions of nuclear sharing with the United States.

Points Avoided

Theoretical talks on the political options for Europe were avoided. The questions of West German relations with the U.S., France's relations with the Soviet Union, the reform of NATO, nuclear sharing in the Atlantic Alliance, and the ultimate form and institutions of political unity in Europe, were all left hanging in the air.

Nor was British participation in a Common Market of Seven rejected. On the French side at least this is viewed as part of the next stage which cannot be begun before the Common Market has solved its internal problems and the British in turn have solved theirs.

Although both the Germans and the French favor British entry, and in recent weeks President de Gaulle and his ministers have made frequent references to Britain's eventual participation, there have been no specific proposals.

Informed French sources have clearly said that Britain must resolve her economic crisis, and demonstrate a European orientation in her thinking by extricating herself from commitments east of Suez and south of the Sahara, before her entry can be practically considered. The Gaullist daily La Nation notes that the principal obstacle to British entry is "the question of the pound."

Scientific Co-operation

French and German ministers also exchanged views, and, as a result of extensive meetings, both countries will now organize common scientific research programs, jointly develop military weapons, and increase youth exchanges.

The Franco-German Office for Youth held its ninth session since it was founded in 1964, under the patronage of the newly-appointed minister for youth and sport, M. Francois Missoffe.

Youth exchanges between the two countries have increased and already over 300,000 French and German youths have made contact at over 6,000 organized meetings ranging from cultural tours of Germany and France to sports meetings. Despite the idealism behind this exchange, they reflect a sad reality. German interest in France is far greater than French interest in Germany, which may explain Le Monde's headline today, "The Franco-German Treaty Subsists."

FROM SAIGON — By JOSEPH ALSOP

Prelude to Pacification

MAYBE it is a bit captious to point out that the President is still presenting the Vietnamese war to the country with techniques quite visibly borrowed from Madison Avenue. All that really mattered at Hawaii was a presidential decision to provide the forces needed to keep the pressure on the enemy here in Viet Nam. The odds are heavy that the President, who seems to prefer doing good by stealth, actually took this decision behind the elaborate smokescreen of talk about other matters. The question remains whether the needed forces will be provided soon enough. One must wait and see.

Alsop

But at the risk of seeming captious, and for the sake of honesty and realism, it must also be noted that there was a big Madison Avenue element in all the talk about "pacification" during the Hawaii meeting and Vice-President Humphrey's subsequent visit to Viet Nam.

This does not mean that pacification of the Vietnamese countryside is an unimportant or secondary problem. On the contrary, it will eventually be all-important and primary. But one need only glance at the list of priority areas, marked for pacification now, to see the adman's touch in the present commotion.

They are An Yang province, which belongs to the Hoa Hao sect, and has been pacified long since by the Hoa Hao; the Hop Tac region near Saigon, where General Harkins experimented unhappily with the so-called oil spot technique; parts of Binh Dinh province along the north-south highway; and the fringes of the Marine enclave at Da Nang.

Each area differs from the others. In the case of the nine villages on the fringes of the Marines' Da Nang enclave, for instance, pacification is needed to insure airfield security from mortar fire. Most of these villages have been Viet Cong strongholds for over 20 years, and they could be dangerous.

VC Fortress

Cam Ne village, for instance, was the scene of the famous CBS broadcast showing the brutal Marines fighting their way into the homes of peaceful peasants. In reality, however, this was one of the strongest VC village fortresses in the whole of Viet Nam, with miles of covered trenches and countless spider holes, caves and deep refuge areas. The Marines were still flushing small parties of armed VC out of Cam Ne's hidden caves as recently as 10 days ago.

Pacification by the Marines looks very fine. It is a touching sight to see the big American soldiers with the tiny Vietnamese children swarming all over them, like giants of the forest almost bending under immense loads of squirrels. But it takes far too many Marines to do the job.

Nonetheless, the real objections to making a big, immediate show of pacification are quite different. The Hop Tac experience tells the story. Here a very great effort was made by the Vietnamese authorities, with the strong support of General Harkins. A good deal was initially accomplished. Boasts began to be heard. Whereat the enemy main forces sallied forth from the nearest redoubt area, knocked down everything that had been built up, murdered all the villagers who had worked with the government, and left things much worse than they had been before.

It is fatal, in short, to attempt permanent pacification before the villages to be taken in hand are beyond the reach of the enemy's regular regiments. That means, in turn, that the first order of business must be winning the war by breaking the enemy's backbone of regular regiments, and the main task of pacification must be undertaken thereafter.

An attempt to make a big, immediate show of pacification needs to be warned against, because of the Washington pressure to do just that. A large element of the U.S. mission group here was called home a month or so ago. And in effect, these men were commanded to produce a plan for making a show as soon as possible.

Cart Before Horse

Fortunately they had the courage to point out that the cart was being put before the horse once again, as has happened before. Fortunately, Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge is well aware of the dangers of putting the cart before the horse. The pressure for something showy may continue, but it is likely to be resisted.

If so, the pressure will not be altogether useless. The Vietnamese and the Americans here are getting ready for pacification on a big scale and in an imaginative way, partly because of that pressure.

It is vital to have everything in readiness to do the job of pacification to bear in mind that really favorable circumstances cannot arise until the enemy's backbone of regular units is at last very close to the breaking point, if not actually beginning to break.

Looking Back

From The Times of Feb. 14, 1906:

Victoria's sunshiny weather in recent weeks has been the subject of so much favorable comment that a little official information on the matter will no doubt prove of wide general interest. It is safe to say that no other city on the northern Pacific coast has been so fortunate. The present winter has been unusual for Victoria.

The precipitation this year has been unusually light, in January only 2.56 inches fell and this month up to the 14th inst. has been practically dry, only .01 inch (fog) having been recorded.

Letters

Chiselling Our Heritage

Why do they chisel away, little by little, the heritage of this lovely city?

I speak of its buildings, its architectural designs. Surely this captivating attractiveness of Victoria glows resplendently in its material structures, expressing and manifesting the historical culture and character of its occupants.

We understand the Hambly home, situated at the corner of Quadra and Burdett, will soon disappear. The record of this family ranges into the history of England, exemplifying the character and the dignity of General Hambly, one of England's most distinguished generals and author of the noted and brilliant book "Conduct in War."

What will replace the old YWCA Building at the corner of Blanshard and Courtney? Its soundness defied the necessity of removal.

Shall we see them again no more forever?

Are they to be replaced with the rabble of those who pause not to know the truth.—D. L. Hanneberry, 2751 Dewdney.

A Tinker's Dam

When tinkers repaired pots and pans they placed a small ring of sand round the hole that was to be repaired and then poured the molten metal onto the spot where it was kept in place by the small sand dam.

After the metal had cooled and solidified, they knocked away the little dam that had served its purpose. Such a dam obviously had no value and there originated the phrase "I don't care a tinker's dam." Later, by people, who thought that the last word ended in "n" and who did not like to use such a "naughty" word, the phrase became ". . . a tinker's curse." Then later it was ". . . tinker's damn." Now it is just "I don't care a damn" which has less meaning than the original phrase. —Max Enke, 1545 Richmond.

Anti-Vivisection

I would like to thank your correspondent, Mr. Egan of Duncan for his letter on the question of vivisection of animals.

Mr. Egan tactfully avoids the main moral issue, the cruelty and the suffering and the dismal confinement of the unfortunate animals. It is recommended that he should read an article in the Saturday Evening Post of July 27, 1963 by Cleveland Amory entitled "Science Is Needlessly Cruel to Animals." This is no "absurd protest" but a damning array of shocking facts. The truth of the matter is that many eminent doctors and scientists doubt the usefulness of certain aspects of animal experimentation, and there is a long list of human ailments which continue despite the many years of trial and mostly error.

Complete abolition of animal vivisection would ease the minds of many of our less callous citizens, but until this can be achieved then let us have complete control and rigid licensing of all concerned in this dubious business. —James Barr, 965 Trans Canada.

Tax Contributor

Mr. Thornton feels that I should not be concerned about taxes in Saanich as I do not live there. The fact is, that I am a Saanich property owner and I would estimate that I have contributed far more in taxes than Mr. Thornton. I believe that only through the proper rezoning of property can Saanich obtain revenue so urgently needed for development. Certainly, I am concerned, as he should be too. The municipality has only three choices: (1) Raise taxes. (2) Slow down development (only 20 per cent of Saanich is sewered). (3) Obtain revenue through proper zoning.—R. O. Ney, 716 View St.

SURVIVE TOGETHER

People must be made to understand the interdependence of man, animals, and plants, and that the survival of the animal species is deeply connected with the survival of the human species. Should Canada Join the Organization of American States?

By W. ARTHUR IRWIN

Excerpts from an address delivered recently to the Canadian Club of Victoria by W. Arthur Irwin, publisher of the Victoria Daily Times. Mr. Irwin is a former Canadian Ambassador to Brazil, Mexico and Guatemala and was Canadian High Commissioner to Australia.

Any Canadian who travels up and down Latin America sooner or later encounters the inevitable question, "Why doesn't Canada join the Organization of American States?"

During the period I was down there the official answer varied from "The subject is under consideration" to "The subject is under serious consideration" to "The subject is under very serious consideration."

These phrases, of course, are diplomatic circumlocutions which are capable of varying interpretations.

Under consideration, for instance, might mean, "Oh, go fly a kite — we're not interested." Under serious consideration, "Well, you may have something there, but we've other fish to fry at the moment." Under very serious consideration, "For Pete's sake, brother, be patient. We simply can't make up our minds and are waffling all over the lot."

Except on one occasion when even that master procrastinator, Mackenzie King, was so pressed by the urgency of the issue that he moved to join the OAS — only to be told by the United States to "go fly his kite" — our attitude on the issue during something like 40 years has fluctuated between indifference and dither.

Recently, however, pressure for a definitive answer has been growing and I am one of those who believe that the time is fast approaching when we are going to have to declare ourselves unequivocally.

The first question basic to any sensible consideration of the subject is how important is Latin America in the world and how important is it to Canada?

In seeking an answer I start with the obvious truth that ours is a revolutionary world characterized by rapid and radical shifts in the global pattern of political and economic power. One consequence of these shifts is that Western Europe which for so long played a dominant role as the prime mover of world history no longer holds exclusive title to that status.

A New Order In the World

With the rise of Soviet power in the Eurasian heartland and the probably even more significant upsurge in Asia now being echoed by explosion in Africa, the Atlantic-European community to which you and I belong has lost a suzerainty which it held for centuries and is now on the defensive. In these circumstances areas of formerly secondary or even marginal significance in the balance of world forces assume an entirely new order of importance.

Latin America clearly is such an area. In the contemporary flux of power it now is the vital southern flank of the Atlantic-European system, not only by geography but by physical resources, development potential, and its rate of population growth relevant to that of the rest of the world.

Furthermore, in relation to the ideological conflicts which are now sweeping the globe, it is a critical area. President Kennedy in 1962 described it as "The most critical area in the world today."

Despite the important qualifications arising out of ethnic diversity, the region by history, by spiritual and cultural traditions, and by basic institutions is part of the Atlantic-European complex. As such it offers to the West opportunities for action and partnership of a kind which do not exist in Asia or Africa.

Nevertheless, as Cuba demonstrated, Latin America's continued alliance with the West can by no means be taken for granted. Latin America is in tumult and in crisis. If the West ignores this crisis, if the West fails to provide the help without which Latin America cannot win its struggle to enter the twentieth century by democratic means, the southern half of this hemisphere conceivably could be transformed into something resembling another angry and blazing China.

Intelligent Policy For the West

In these circumstances, the strengthening of those forces in Latin America itself which support continued integration with the Atlantic-European community clearly has become a required measure of intelligent policy for Western nations.

Coincidentally with the emergence of this challenge, and with the profoundly significant change mentioned at the outset, the power centre of the Atlantic-European complex has shifted from Western Europe to North America. This has radically altered Canada's relation to the community. Where formerly we were a frontier fringe dependent on power centred in Europe, this country is now inextricably associated with the North American focus of power on which not only its own security, but that of the entire Atlantic-European community and indeed that of the Commonwealth depends.

As a result, whether we seek them or not, we Canadians are now confronted with responsibilities and interests which our traditional experience had not taught us to appreciate. That we have already moved significantly along the path of adjustment to this new situation is attested by our participation in NATO, by our participation in the Canadian-United States defence agreement, and by certain other post-war international commitments.

I submit, however, that we have not yet accepted the implications of the new pattern in our relations with the Western Hemisphere and, in particular, with the southern half which constitutes Latin America.

I suppose one of the reasons why Canadians do not know as much about the southern Americas as perhaps they should is that during much of their past, when they had looked south, it was very difficult to see past the United States. It was like looking into a sun so dazzling that it was almost impossible to see the planets orbiting on the other side.

Looking South Beyond the Sun

Let's look south for a moment, beyond that sun.

Here is an area which is twice that of Europe, roughly seven thousand miles from north to south, something over three thousand miles from east to west. Physically it is an area of dramatic contrasts. Mountains, deserts, rain forests, sweeping prairies, fertile upland plateaux, great river basins, perpetual snow and steaming tropical jungles. An area of vast resources and some of the most formidable physical obstacles known to man.

Ethnically, the region is a blood-child of Asia, Europe and Africa. Of its 22 independent countries — if you include Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago — some are predominantly European white. Others are almost pure Indian, that is Asiatic, since all American Indians originated in the Orient. Others are dominated by the people of mixed Spanish-Indian blood, the Mestizos. Still others are Mestizo-Negro. There are two that are almost completely Negro, and finally there is Portuguese Brazil which is perhaps 50 per cent white and the rest a mixture of Negro, Mulatto, Indian and Japanese.

Socially, politically and economically the region is a mosaic of paradoxes.

There are teeming population clots and vast empty spaces. The population density is only about half that of the United States.

There are great industrial and commercial cities and stone-age savages. There is stagnant primitivism and enormous dynamism.

There is flamboyant wealth, and abysmal poverty, misery and gaiety, beauty and squalor.

There is a pervasive intellectualism such as we here do not know, and vast ignorance — nearly half the population can neither read nor write.

The Destiny of El Continente

There are entrenched oligarchies, and a rampant democracy; fierce nationalisms and a deep consciousness of a common destiny of all the nations of el continente, as they call the Western Hemisphere.

In short, here is a fascinating and appalling world where a highly polished 19th century civilization co-exists with archaic primitivism and a surging passion for modernization threatens to sweep both aside.

This is the area whose population is increasing more rapidly than that of any other comparable area at any time in history. The population is now somewhere around 240 millions — I am speaking of all of the Americas south of the United States. It will approximate 650 millions by the turn of the century — that is 35 years from now, at which time the population of Canada and the United States will be of the order of 330 milion — a ratio of two to one against us.

Its population passed that of Canada and United States in the '50s. It will exceed that of the Soviet Union this year or next. It will exceed that of Africa in the '70s, and that of Europe, excluding the Soviet Union, in the late '90s. Mexico's population will cross 50 million early in the '70s and Brazil will have 100 million in 1975, 10 years from now.

Whether you are thinking in terms of political alignment, of economic weight, of commercial potential or even of the ideological dialogue, it is clear beyond question that Latin America is now an essential segment of the Atlantic European complex and will become increasingly so in the proximate future. It is both a vulnerable area and a seat of developing strength we cannot afford to see in alignment against us.

This being the case, it is obvious that Latin America is an area of major importance to Canada. Whether we are calculating in terms of our national interest and security; of our responsibilities as a member of the western alliance or as a Western Hemisphere power, closer and more effective association with the southern Americas in furtherance of that interest and discharge of those responsibilities should now be one of the prime objectives of Canadian policy.

The idea, of an association of the American states for furtherance of hemispheric aims has a long history going back more than a century. It first took concrete shape in 1890 when the Pan-American union was established. This was succeeded in 1947-48 by the OAS which came into being as a regional association of American states within the United Nations to function as a collective instrument for the attaninment of three main objectives:

One, security against attack from outside the hemisphere. Canada, incidentally, is included in the area specifically covered.

Two, resolution of disputes between nations and maintenance of peace within the hemisphere.

And, three, furtherance of economic and social development of the American peoples.

Consensus And Equality

The entire structure rests on the principles of the self-determination of free peoples, of collective action based on consensus and of the juridical equality of states.

No informed American, Latin or otherwise, would argue that the OAS has fully realized all or even any of these objectives — what collectivity in our time has? Its shortcomings are admitted.

Nevertheless, it is the only instrument which exists exclusively for the purposes stated. It has a record of substantial success in the peace-keeping field and of significant progress in other directions. In the eyes of Latin Americans, not to mention United States Americans, it is not only a meaningful hemispheric symbol but a necessary if imperfect practical instrument for the attainment of essential hemispheric ends.

These ends are clearly compatible with Canadian interests and policy. Our physical presence in the hemisphere is an immutable fact — we can't resign from it even if we would.

We cannot escape the consequences of trouble in the hemisphere however isolationist our attitude toward its organs for collective consultation and decision-making may be.

We stand to gain enormously from collective measures for the maintenance of political stability in the hemisphere. We stand to gain immensely from measures to stimulate economic development, to further social progress and to channel the forces of change into evolutionary rather than violently revolutionary courses.

But there are, of course, other considerations, some more specific. For instance, our entry into the OAS would enhance Canada's prestige in Latin America. It would make Latin Americans and Canadians better known to each other and thus facilitate our political and commercial contacts with them. As members of the American club we could deal with other members on a basis not available to outsiders.

Canada Tried To Join OAS

As I indicated obliquely at the outset, our entry was blackballed by the United States in 1941. As you remember, we were at war at that time and war always heightens awareness of the geo-political realities. In December of that year the spectacle of German and Jpanese military might running wild on the Eurasian and African land masses had made the strategic importance to us of the southern Americas so alarmingly obvious that Mackenzie King decided that entry into the inter-American system had become an urgent necessity.

He cabled our minister in Rio de Janiero and instructed him to advise the Brazilian government that we were prepared to enter the Pan-American Union — as the organization was then called — and would welcome an invitation. Subsequently an urgent second cable went forward countermanding the previous instructions and telling the minister to inform the Brazilians that for "technical reasons" we could not proceed. History has since revealed that the "technical reasons" were Cordell Hull and Sumner Wells, the then heads of the U.S. State Department, who feared that Canadian entry would result in the intrusion of British influence into what they regarded as Uncle Sam's private backyard.

But times have changed and situations have changed. The United States would now not only welcome our participation but is urging it. Furthermore, Washington is showing signs of construing our continued aloofness as a refusal on our part to accept a share of hemisphere responsibilities appropriate to our importance and status in the hemisphere.

Another consideration is that entry of such an important Commonwealth country as Canada would provide a useful linkage between two international groupings whose aims are not dissimilar.

U.S. Not Ideal Spokesman

Another point: It is amply evident that future cohesion within the West will demand more effective working relationships between the "have" nations of the northern hemisphere, and of NATO in particular, and of the "have not" developing nations of the inter-American system. A great power, such as the United States — a member of both systems — is not necessarily the ideal spokesman either for or to the middle and lesser powers such as those of the OAS. Canada, as a non-great-power member of both groupings might well play a useful role in this connection.

I would stress also that whether we are in or out of the OAS we cannot avoid making major policy decisions on issues arising in the hemispere. Cuba demonstrated this and there will be other Cubas.

In this context an ostrich policy would scarcely seem to be the best policy. We should not overlook, also, the hazards of continued non-participation. Latin Americans attach deep importance to the OAS both as a symbol of New World aspirations and as an instrument of hemispheric cooperation. Continued rejection by Canada of both symbol and instrument, and continued refusal to accept a share of collective responsibility. In hemispheric affairs inevitably will produce reactions detrimental to our interest, and in fact already have begun to do so.

A Mexico city columnist, writing in an important daily of that city under the heading, "Why Does Canada not Join the OAS?" said: "Canada . . . always aloof, olympically disdaining the problems of the hemisphere . . . will validate the tag some diplomats have hung on her, the Pontius Pilate of the Americas."

Another important aspect of this matter is rooted in the disparity of power between Canada and the United States. This disparity is so great that instinctively we have always known that to survive against the pressures of the United States we have to ally ourselves with counterbalancing power capable of offsetting our neighbor's otherwise overwhelming weight.

The Decline of British Power

In the 19th century and the early part of the 20th Britain provided this balancing force. Britain's power was one of the factors which enabled us to emerge as a nation on the northern half of this continent in the face of American "manifest destiny." Britain's power, however, in relative terms, has declined radically and there is urgent need to supplement it. How can this be achieved in the light of current realities?

I believe the answer lies in seizing on the trend of our times toward multilateralism and utilizing what might be termed the balancing force of numbers in collective association as a makeweight in our relations with the United States. By this I mean that whenever and wherever possible we should develop our relations with the United States on a multilateral rather than on a bilateral basis.

We already are following this policy by participating in NATO.

By this I do not mean to imply that we should enter the OAS with the intent of pursuing an anti-American course. Such an approach from any point of view would be worse than useless. All I am suggesting is that in managing our relations with the United States — which necessarily must be close and friendly whether we are in the OAS or out of it — we should make realistic use of whatever available forces may be utilized to advantage in our continuing struggle for national survival.

I realize this approach runs counter to the contention frequently advanced that we should stay out of the OAS because we would not always be able to side with the Americans against the Latins and that we simply cannot afford to become involved in that kind of direct confrontation with the power of our American neighbor.

If this argument is really valid we should not be in either NATO or the United Nations. Apart from that, however, it assumes division in the OAS inevitably takes place on the basis of the United States against the rest. And as the debates and votes on the Dominican and Cuban issues indicated, this simply does not fit the facts as they are today.

There is underlying solidarity in Latin America but the views of Latin American states on specific issues can be as diverse as they are among the countries of Europe.

Good Ground For Manoeuvre

This kind of situation, cohesion when the chips are down on such life-and-death issues as continental security, a diversity on ways and means of bulwarking free societies internally as well as externally, offers appropriate ground for manoeuvre by a country with objectives such as those of Canada.

Of course if we assume that this country is incapable of exercising independent judgment in such a forum as the OAS then my argument falls to the ground. But I for one do not accept the implication that creeping satellitism has so undermined the Canadian will we have become a people incapable of speaking with the voice of independent nationhood.

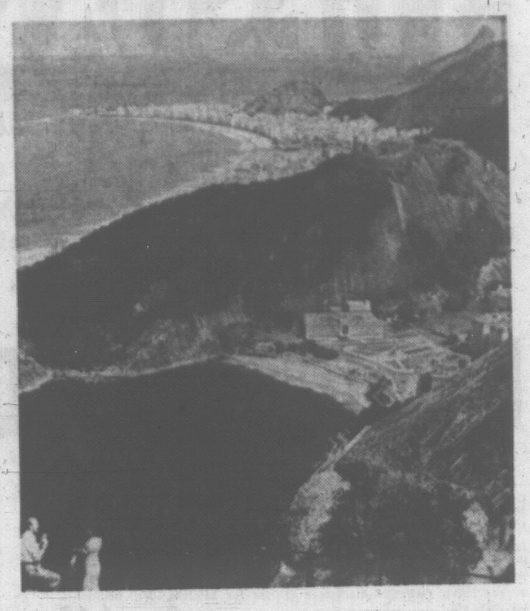
In some degree, however, I do share the concern of those who see a threat to the OAS in recent demonstrations of "hard-line" tendencies in Washington on Latin American issues. The resolution in the House of Representatives advocating military intervention at the sole discretion of the United States and the intervention in the Dominican Republic were two cases in point.

Good Neighbor Policy Going?

There are those who argue that these and other related episodes indicate the United States is in the process of abandoning the hemispheric partnership and good neighbor policies of Kennedy and Franklin Roosevelt and is returning to the Big Stick policy of the first Roosevelt — with the qualification of course the big stick is now wielded by the atomed fist.

I know some of these "hard nosed boys" in Washington personally and I agree that if they had their way this is precisely what they would do. But, will they get their way? In my view the answer is by no means a certain "Yes."

In the first place, as one of Latin America's leading statesmen, a former president of his country, said privately to me a few months ago: "Their policy can't work and won't work and sooner or later they will find this out for themselves."



LATIN AMERICA is a land of violent contrasts. In these two scenes in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, for instance, some of the world's worst slums and greatest poverty (above) coexist with great wealth displayed at the famous Copacabana Beach and in the gleaming modern city with its Sugarloaf Mountain landmark in the background (right).

Other Influences Are at Work

Secondly, there is a great deal of influential opinion in the United States which knows that neither unilateralism nor military might are the key answers to the kinds of problems which are now agitating the southern half of this hemisphere and will seek to influence policy accordingly.

This being so, it seems to me that those who argue that Canada should not now join the OAS on the grounds that Washington is in process of undermining the organization by abandoning the principles on which it is based, must ask themselves this question: Do they want to see this happen? Do they believe this is the course which would best serve Canadian interests and the welfare of the hemisphere?

If they do not want to see this happen then the logical course would appear to be to urge their country to put itself in the position where it can best collaborate with those forces — both within the United States and in the hemisphere at large — which support the principles of collective collaboration promulgated in the Inter-American Charter. And that obviously means acceptance of a place in the forum in which the great debate is being conducted — namely the OAS.

I would emphasize that attainment of the objectives I have tried to define will be neither easy nor painless. The problems which confront the hemisphere are monstrously complex. The stresses induced by the struggle to modernize formerly rigid and, in some cases — quasi-feudal, societies are acute. The level of turbulence is high and is likely to go higher. The intensity of the population explosion aggravates the difficulties enormously. All this is not conducive to simple and clear cut solutions so dear to the heart of northern pragmatism.

We Are the X Marking Spot

Nevertheless, I believe the time has come when we are going to have to recognize the full implications of our peculiar position in the world. We are the X which marks the spot where the north-south axis of the Americas cuts the east-west axis of the northern hemisphere. Heretofore we have been almost totally preoccupied with the latter and with our immediate neighbors to the south. Now our north-south relationships are taking on new implications and I would submit these demand new responses appropriate to the changing balance of forces in the world and of our relation thereto.

That is why I believe our national interest now demands occupancy of that OAS chair which for so long we have rejected.

Artilleryman Pounds Away For Old Fort

Guns of every type used by the armed forces over the past century will ultimately be displayed at historic Fort Rodd Hill Park.

"It may take 10 or 15 years to assemble these weapons, but that is our ultimate goal," says ex-artillery captain Jack Rippengale, now park superintendent.

"It will require plenty of research and a vast amount of correspondence, but I believe it can be done."

Fort Rodd Hill was built by the British to keep the Russians at Bay between 1890 and 1895. But the defences were never tested as the Russian fleet was wiped out during the war between Russia and Japan.

Mr. Rippengale is working towards restoring the fort to its original condition, backed by the federal department of northern affairs and national resources.

KNOWS GROUND

He retired last year from the Canadian Army as a captain of artillery. Having put in his first service with the coastal artillery at Fort Rodd Hill, he knows every inch of the ground.

He is particularly anxious to find specimens of the six-inch breech-loading, disappearing guns which used to be standard equipment at the fort. There were two at the lower battery and one at the upper battery.

"The original guns were scrapped years ago," Mr. Rippengale said, "but I may be able to locate one of the same type in Australia.

"The department had a choice between cleaning up the fort and making it into a pleasant place for picnics, or restoring it to its original state. They chose to restore it.

The park can be reached by following Highway 1A (old Island Highway) to Belmont Park, just before Colwood Corner. Cars turn left into Belmont Park and follow the signs to the fort.

It is open from 8 a.m. to one hour before sunset.

'Teach More Sociology, Not History'

VANCOUVER (CP)—A representative group of 82 B.C. social studies teachers has issued a call for less history and more sociology and international affairs in provincial high schools.

The teachers, attending a conference in Vancouver during the weekend, said the emphasis placed on European and American history should be placed on world history.

Topic of the conference at the University of B.C. was "teaching for international understanding."

Dr. Leften S. Stavrianos of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., said high school students should learn more about society. The physical sciences have controlled nature but man cannot yet control human nature, he said.

Dr. Lionel Tiger of the UBC department of sociology said the emphasis placed on history doesn't necessarily help the student understand the present.

Dr. Tiger called for instruction on class structures and economic inequalities.

"Students must understand their community to understand the world," he said.

DRAFT LAW FAVORS RICH STUDENT

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D—N.Y., Friday attacked the draft law as discriminating against youngsters in lower economic groups.

Kennedy told a group of high school students he considered it unfair that a high school graduate who wants to be a afford advanced training is drafted. He said a graduate printer or plumber and can't whose parents can afford a college education for him is deferred.

Kennedy said he was considering several proposals to change the present selective service law.

OAK BAY MEETING

Ratepayers Fight Increased Taxes

Increased taxation is threatening the ability of many Oak Bay residents to meet their bills, says a press release from the Oak Bay Ratepayers' Association.

"Expensive roads are being driven through our municipality, there are rumors of yet another supermarket and the annual increase granted to teachers and police among others, threaten the ability of many Oak Bay residents to meet their bills," says the statement.

"We do not want our municipality turned into just another suburb."

MEETING WEDNESDAY

At the annual general meeting of the association to be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the municipal hall the question "Are property owners unfairly penalized?" will be examined in an address by Coun. Mrs. Frances Elford.

Gordon Elworthy, general manager of Island Tug and Barge, will be nominated as president of the association for 1966-67.

VALUE IS HIGH

The most valuable tree in North America is the black walnut, of which single specimens may be worth $1,000.

C. SAANICH TO LIGHT INTERSECTIONS

A street lighting program to give particular emphasis to Patricia Bay Highway intersections will be preesnted to Central Saanich Council Tuesday.

The two-year plan, approved in principle by council last week, would provide lights this year at each of the nine highway intersections within the rural municipality, said Reeve Gordon Lee.

The highway lights would be rented with the department of highways possibly contributing half the cost.

Also in the first year, lights would be installed at the 10 main "internal" intersections, the reeve said.

Doctors Fight to Save Synagogue Gun Victims

DETROIT (UPI) — Two men, a rabbi and a brilliant student, fought for their lives today, victims of a Sabbath shooting in a crowded synagogue.

Rabbi Morris Adler, 59, a prominent Detroit religious and civic leader, remained near death from a bullet wound in the head. He was shot by a member of his congregation, Richard Wishnetsky, during services Saturday. Wishnetsky, 23, then turned the gun on himself.

It was during the kaddish — the prayer for the dead — that the young man strode to the front of the Shaarey Zedek Synagogue in suburban Southfield, fired one shot into the ceiling, and calmly picked up a microphone.

The former college honor student and substitute teacher, who had been under psychiatric treatment for a year, delivered a prepared statement criticizing the 1,000 persons sitting in the synagogue, calling them hypocrites and phonies and saying the congregation was composed of "people who on the whole make me ashamed to say that I am a Jew."

PUSHED BOY

After finishing his tirade, Wishetsky turned and called "Rabbi!" As Adler moved, he fired a shot that struck the rabbi in the shoulder. The rabbi moved again to push out of the way 13-year-old Steven Frank, who became bar mitzvah at the service and had been sitting next to him.

Wishnetsky fired again and the bullet struck the rabbi in the head, knocking him to the floor. The young assailant then turned the gun on his own head and pulled the trigger.

Rabbi Adler was rushed to the hospital as his wife comforted Wishnetsky's parents, who had witnessed the shooting.

INTELLIGENCE THE KEY

Hit-and-Run Viet Cong Frustrate U.S. Drives

By JOHN T. WHEELER

SAIGON (AP)—In South Viet Nam the U.S. military machine often performs like a well-conditioned but half-blinded heavyweight boxer pushed into a strange ring full of trap doors and stumbling blocks.

The opponent frequently seems like a cunning veteran lightweight with eyes in the back of its head.

This analogy was drawn by a U.S. commander after his troops had swooped down by helicopter in a carefully planned operation aimed at trapping a large Viet Cong force.

Aside from small-arms fire from snipers, who later escaped, the reinforced battalion missed the enemy completely.

The pattern is repeated constantly. The major battles between the Viet Cong and combined forces almost always have been on terms of the Viet Cong's choosing.

Over and over again intelligence has proven to be the most vital factor in South Viet Nam since the French war. The pattern established during the French days remains unchanged.

TOO MUCH, TOO LITTLE

The guerrillas have lots of information from its intelligence sources, the U.S. and South Vietnamese too little. This was what the U.S. commander referred to when he described U.S. combat units as half-blinded.

The fact that U.S. military operations are directed at longtime Viet Cong redoubts prompted the reference to the weird boxing ring.

The guerrillas use their intimate knowledge of the territory to full advantage in pulling out as soon as any engagement starts going too heavily against them.

Also a frustrating factor is the Viet Cong's use of extensive trench and tunnel networks as an escape trap door. In many cases too they are aided by sympathetic local villagers.

Neither the Americans nor the South Vietnamese have been able to put together an effective intelligence net to warn of Viet Cong plans. Each often operates in ignorance of what the other ally has learned. Competing intelligence agencies complicate the situation.

INFILTRATE ALLY

How do the Viet Cong know so much? It has long been accepted as fact that the Viet Cong guerrillas have infiltrated the South Vietnamese military command.

In a few cases purely U.S. operations have been launched without notification to the Saigon military—to guard against compromise. But even then the Viet Cong have somehow got advance warning.

There also are other factors. There is the dilemma of whether to warn civilians that war is coming and allow them to get out of an area, or go in without warning and subject the civilians to bombardment.

In some cases the Americans themselves have proved less than adroit in keeping secrets. A U.S. airborne combat jump was abandoned when it was learned that word it was impending had spread all the way to the United States.

Non-Political Appointment For A-G?

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Attorney-General A. A. Wishart of Ontario said Saturday night provincial governments should explore the possibility of making the office of attorney-general a non-political post.

Addressing a two-day meeting of New Brunswick lawyers here, Mr. Wishart said the attorney-general is expected to defend government policies in the legislature because he is a politician. Yet he is expected to sit in a "quasi-judicial capacity."

Outlining duties of the office, Mr. Wishart said the attorney-general must be completely free from, independent of and able to resist political pressures and considerations of any kind or degree.

In the one role he must "play the part of a political person, in the other he must play the role of a judge," he said.

IN FOSTER HOMES

Hope Offered Youngsters

How does it feel to be a foster child raised in a series of strange and unfamiliar homes?

Some of the answers were given last week when a local minister and a teacher, who both grew up in foster homes, related their experiences.

Listening were a number of youngsters who face similar situations in local foster homes today.

Telling how the difficulties of foster home life can be overcome were minister Dr. Kenneth King and teacher Bill Haley.

Dr. King spent 40 years as a research scientist before beginning his second career as an Anglican minister.

Mr. Haley, raised as a foster child during the depression, is a teacher at a local junior secondary school.

They offered sympathy and encouragement for the youngsters and their foster parents, stressing that the parents' job does not produce immediate results.

AGAIN VOTE TO ABOLISH ROYAL TIES

Student Liberals Push for Reform

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP)—Campus Liberals washed down lunch Sunday with some acidulous advice from new MP Gerard Pelletier.

But it evidently left them with a taste for more. They gave him a standing ovation and an invitation to return next year.

His comments came after a weekend convention in which the Canadian University Liberal Federation:

—Once more voted that the Queen should no longer be recognized as Canada's monarch;

—Defeated a proposal for a form of republican government in Canada;

—Suggested a judicial commission within the Liberal party to expel members found guilty of corrupt or unethical behavior;

—Upheld the concept of a "particular status" for Quebec in confederation.

These were the highlights in a broad range of resolutions that supported everything from voting at 18 to Walter Gordon's economic policies.

The convention sent the former finance minister a telegram expressing appreciation for these policies.

IT'S CALLED RAM-MER

At the same time, Culf set up a policy wing called RAM-MER. Spelled out, it means Reform Action Movement - Mouvement Edutiant Reformiste.

Prime Minister Pearson may have generated the idea Friday night when he told about 200 delegates Liberals must treat the party as one of reform.

Mr. Pelletier urged the students to sharpen their focus and present the party not as a religion but as an instrument that can be used for good.

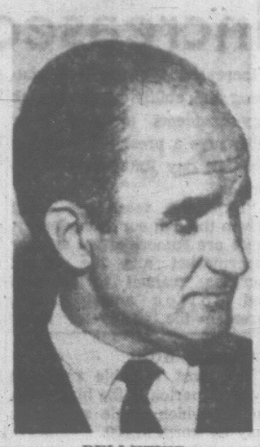
Infantile minds might be attracted by political parties as such but brighter students demanded ideas and policies.

Mr. Pelletier deplored the absence of French-speaking delegates from Quebec and said that if this was a trend, Liberalism was headed for trouble.

The former Montreal newspaper editor said the students must also come in contact with other youth groups.

"Nothing worse can happen than for students to become a caste of intellectual brahmins divorced from the rest of their generation."

Isolationaism, whether regional, cultural, ethnic or social, should be avoided.



PELLETIER
. . . liked his advice

Stormiest moments came during debate on a resolution that Canada should be a republic with an elected Senate and a president chosen by two-thirds of the Senate and Commons. The president would replace the Governor-General as head of state.

An Ontario student said the Governor-General has become "more or less a flunky of the prime minister." A president chosen by the two houses would be more democratic.

When the republican resolution was voted down, students claimed this wiped out last year's resolution to abolish royal ties.

The result was a resolution from the executive to settle the question. The students voted 60 to 47 that the Queen "be no longer recognized hereafter as the Queen of Canada."

Western delegates said such a measure would create more division than ever in Canada.

One westerner told a reporter that such positions are creating a gulf between federal and provincial Liberals in Saskatchewan. He said it had been hard to get anybody to work for the federal party there in the last campaign.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

May Be Simply Sluggish Kidney Action

It's a pity to put up with this common backache because you just don't know the cause, and the medication that may help you. You see, if kidneys become sluggish, urinary irritation and bladder discomfort may follow. The result can be an annoying, nagging backache. This is when Dodd's Kidney Pills can help bring relief. Dodd's stimulate kidney action, help relieve the irritated condition that causes the backache. Take Dodd's and see if you don't feel better, rest better. Used successfully by millions for over 70 years. New large size saves money.

More Branch Libraries To Be Asked

Saanich will press for more branch libraries following the success of the first at Town and Country Shopping Centre.

Coun. Alan Newberry, Saanich representative on the library board, said 500 readers joined the branch in the first month, including 200 children.

"These young people were not transferees from the downtown library, but were entirely new readers," he said.

The new readers took out 7,000 books in the first month.

He cited such places as Royal Oak, Cadboro Bay and the Shelbourne and Burnside shopping centres as perhaps being good library sites.

"Saanich contributes $140,000 toward the public library service and I'm going to do my best to see that other library branches are established in the municipality," he said.

1966 AUTO SHOW — VICTORIA MEMORIAL ARENA — FEB. 15 to 19

Wheels, Swingers Compete for Attention

Besides a valuable look at what's new in the four-wheeled world, the '66 Auto Show at Victoria Memorial Arena offers a hearty chunk of top-notch entertainment.

The Show, now an important event on Victoria calendars each year, is something the whole family will want to witness.

And between glimpses of the latest in chrome trim and car interiors, they'll get an earful of music and fun.

Headed by two musical teams of high repute — the Four Lads and the Harmonicats — the entertainment list boasts the best in performers from abroad and at home.

Sharing the bill with the musical groups are two single entertainers who will contrast well — comedian Johnnie Matson, of Tennessee Ernie Ford show fame, and well-known Victoria vocalist Terry Cain.

The Four Lads, a quartet whose singing has melted hearts from here to New York's posh Copacabana, head the list.

Auto Show Entertainment

The four, who first got together as choirboys at a Toronto private school, have kept the charm and engaging smiles they had then.

Known offstage as Frank Busseri, Jimmie Arnold, Bernie Toorish and Johnnie D'Arc, they are as popular with the campus crowd as with sophisicated nightclub audiences.

With five golden records, a long list of hits and a number of discs recorded with stars like Johnnie Ray, Frankie Laine and Doris Day, the Lads are guaranteed to please.

The Harmonicats, a non-vocal group who rely mostly on their flawless musical technique on the harmonica to charm their audiences, share top billing with the Four Lads.

A trio of suave and charming musicians, the Harmonicats win smiles and applause from any crowd with the rhythm and light touch they apply to their harmonicas.

Hits on the Harmonicat list include the old favorite Peg O' My Heart, the romantic Cherry Pink and Apple Blossom White, and movie themes such as the love song from El Cid.

Master of ceremonies for the star-studded entertainment at the Auto Show is Ernie Ford's old pea-pickin' friend, musical comedian Johnny Matson.

Johnnie, who toured with Ernie Ford for six summers and has an impressive list of appearances at fairs and exhibitions all over the continent to his credit, is a versatile and enjoyable entertainer.

In show business from the age of nine, Johnnie Matson is a musical clown who reels off his amusing banter with all the finesse of an expert, which he is.

One astonishing feat of his act is the musical selection he plays on an accordion and trumpet at the same time—with two cigars in his mouth.

Hard to beat, you think, but Johnny does it when he plays another piece on two trumpets at once.

Keeping the show rolling is Johnny's job, and there's no doubt it will be well done, too.

But when bright-eyed Terry Cain makes her appearance as the one female songstress at the Auto Show, there's little need for an emcee.

One of Victoria's very own contributions to show business, Terry carries off her song repertoire with a swing and a zip that is all her own.

A well-known figure in local entertainment spots, Terry is a regular performer with a dance band here and has appeared at such tourist havens at the Butchart Gardens.

Last year she chalked up appearances at international conventions in the city, as well as headlining the Daffodil Revue.

Dark-haired and vivacious, Terry pours out her songs in rich, warm tones and makes her audience feel they're the most privileged in the world.

The songs she lends her golden touch to include a variety of popular ballads, rip-roaring numbers from the Twenties, dreamy Hawaiian love-songs and a swinging selection of Broadway show tunes.

Terry also has the distinction of being one of the first examples of local talent to share billing with well-known performers from outside on the Auto Show program.

With three big performances daily of nearly one hour each, the Auto Show offers everyone a chance to catch the performances of their really remarkable bevy of musical stars.

Shows are at 4:30, 7:30 and 10:15 p.m. daily, so as you browse among the lineup of four-wheeled wonders, don't forget the ones with the light-hearted gags and golden voices up on the stage.

BRITISH GRAND TOURING car, the Unipower GT, is shown making its debut at a recent racing car show in London. Available either in component form for assembly by the purchaser or assembled and ready for the road, the car has a glass-fibre body bonded to a spaceframe chassis. Power comes from a rear-mounted 998 c.c. BMC Mini Cooper engine, developing a top speed of more than 100 miles an hour. A special competition version and an open two-seater sports variant were planned. (CP Photo from British Information Services.)

State Of Mind

Driving safely on winter roads requires the proper state of mind, a few simple driving techniques and the proper equipment, according to Elizabeth Nystrom, Europea woman's rally co-champion for the past two years and driving consultant for Ford Motor Company.

"Safe driving in wintertime begins with the understanding that your car has been checked before starting out. Clean windows all around, properly adjusted rear and sideview mirrors, good tires, good brakes, good lights, plenty of fuel, a healthy battery, and properly fastned seat belts are all must things to check each time you drive," Miss Nystrom said.

★ ★ ★

"After that, safe winter driving becomes a matter of knowing what to do, doing the things smoothly, quickly and instinctively, and, finally, having the right kind of equipment for the job.

"In the category of knowing what to do, there are two simple rules which can prevent most winter driving accidents and stalled cars," she said.

★ ★ ★

They are:

1. Making certain tires are not overly hard. Tires should be deflated to the manufacturer's suggested minimum levels of air pressure to give mximum grip and resistance on snowy and icy streets.

2. Recognizing that all wintertime driving actions take longer to complete than under ideal road conditions. It takes longer to get the car moving, longer to turn a corner and longer to stop when roads are slippery.

Equally important is the need to keep as much distance as possible between cars for stopping. Never brake a car too hard on slippery roads. Pump the brakes slowly so wheels don't lock.

DRAMATIC new styling of the Wildcat sport coupe emphasizes that it is Buick and high-performance. Styling treatment front and rear is more sharply defined for 1966 but the long, low silhouette remains. The new grille has finely spaced vertical lines and is tastefully allied to the contours of the solid new bumper. There is almost a mitre-edged treatment front and rear and the windshield is angularly rakish. At the front, this treatment is enhanced by "boxed" new headlights. All Buick models have styling refinements this year and Riviera is completely restyled.

RIVIERA RESTYLED FROM TREAD TO TOP

Buick has completely restyled its Riviera model for 1966 with styling changes in all other models, General Motors of Canada announces.

Not only is the Riviera restyled, but it now has a longer wheelbase, a wider tread, and is in all ways a larger car. The wheelbase now is 119 inches.

LeSabre, Wildcat, Electra 225 and Electra 225 Custom all have added styling changes that give new emphasis to their long, low and wide profiles.

The distinctive grilles that demarcate each model all have been restyled. Fenders have been redesigned to emphasize the flowing lines. Trunk deck lids and hoods have also been redesigned to add new distinction to the clean profile.

There are restyled exteriors and new interior fabrics and trim. There is also new exterior body ornamentation, and in LeSabre and Wildcat new headlamps and parking light frames.

Buick for '66 offers new Strato-bucket seats in addition to the regular bench and "notch-back" seat patterns and all styles can be fitted with optional new seat head rests.

Riviera's restyling features a longer hood as well as an extended wheelbase. Tread had been increased up to four inches and now is 63.5 for the front and 63 for the rear tread.

Front fenders are longer in the '66 Riviera and the windshield is much more sharply raked for a very low-car silhouette and improved visibility. Car height is only 53.4 inches.

Riviera is now offered as a six-passenger car without front console. Front fenders have been modified and instrument panels are all new with a new ventilating system which provides a constant flow of air. The car will be offered in five exclusive colors.

LeSabre now uses a new all-synchronized three-speed manual transmission as standard equipment.

There is something new in engines too. Two new engines are offered this year, a 340-cu.-in. V8 with 220 h.p. and a four-barrel carburetor version of the same engine — 260 h.p.

Standard for all Buicks this year are the following: Dual front and rear seat belts, instrument panel pads, padded sun visors, two-speed windshield wipers and washers with glare-resistant arms, outside left-hand rear-vision mirror, shatter-resistant inside rear-vision mirror, back-up lights.

Both Buick Special De Luxe and Skylark have been restyled for 1966. The four-door sedan has a new slim outline and the two-door club coupe and two-door sport coupe have a completely different concept in roof design with a gracefully curving sail panel that highlights the new profile. A new four-door hardtop style has been added to the Skylark series for the first time.

The Special and De Luxe Skylark have a lower, wider look, accentuated by new die-cast grilles and new hoods. There are new centre moldings and ornaments, new tail-lamps joined by specific molding treatment.

The Skylarks have a longer, slimmer appearance — partly achieved by the use of low side moldings. The sport coupe has extended quarter panels, making it semi-fastback — although the rear window is now recessed.

Seats available are now similar to the full-size Buicks. Instrument panels are new in Skylark and so is interior trim.

MILLION MILE TEST PROVES OLDSMOBILE 'MOST ADVANCED'

After a million miles of testing, Oldsmobile has introduced a car of radically new design that makes it the most advanced car of 1966, General Motors claims.

It's the front-wheel drive Toronado.

The announcement said the sensational car presents advantages "even beyond the original objectives" which were to build a car that would "unlick the limits on passenger space; surpass all conventional standards of ride, handling and performance; and offer a new concept of style."

The long, low look of Action-Line styling, which has characterized the Oldsmobile line is more than ever in evidence this year, and a fresh styling approach gives a more sophisticated profile.

The new look of Olds for '66 is dynamic and fast-moving with new design and new chrome adding a distinctive touch of elegance to the Ninety-Eights, 88's and Starfire. Car height has been lowered and redesigned fenders and a lowered hood produce a sleek, low and more streamlined profile.

Up front, Olds this year is designed with greater emphasis on width. Bold bumpers combine with a shallower grille that features rectangular headlamp housings for the low-profile effect.

The Toronado has a long, low, dramatic styling and is only four and one-half feet high. Concealed headlamps help give the impression of a car almost in suspended motion and when this car moves it has the power to make that motion reality.

The moldings along the body sides emphasize the low silhouette, and so does the side trim. The round wheel openings are emphasized by neatly designed lip mouldings. The front grille-bumper complex is restrained, refined and elegant.

But the most dramatic feature is front-wheel drive, and the designers have listed the advantages. Here are a few of them:

The advantages of front-wheel drive:

— More passenger space and virtually flat floors — the drive shaft is eliminated.

— Improved utility of luggage compartment — no gears in the rear.

— Reduction in noise and vibration — the long, rotating drive shaft is eliminated.

— Excellent traction and directional stability — the "pulling" wheels are also the "steering" wheels.

— A completely fresh look because the style is no longer dictated by conventional mechanical requirements.

— The up front tracking of the new car lets you take to the road with ease, gives excellent stability on curves and lets you stay on course even in gusty crosswinds.

— The car is of fastback design with 119-inch wheelbase and a manoeuvrable overall length of 211 inches. The width is nearly 79 inches and the car seats six comfortably with a flat floor that gives centre-of-seat passengers new room.

There is individual styling for the Ninety-Eight series, while the Delta 88 and the Dynamic 88 have similar grille and front-end treatment. But all are new for this year.

Mouldings are also put to new use in design. Chrome is low-placed along the body sides to emphasize the lower silhouette. The mouldings along the sides of the body produce the same effect. The lip moldings for wheel openings highlight the full round look of the openings.

The Ninety-Eights have rear-wheel opening covers and wheel discs.

Up front, smart new cornering lamps are available on all large Olds and in the rear, new tail-lights, panels and bumpers help emphasize the sophisticated look.

An extra-deep bumper ends in large vertical rectangular tail-lamps in the Ninety-Eights, while 88's have a large new bumper and tail-lights with a lattice design mounted flush in the end panel.

CHRYSLER UPS RETAIL SALES

Windsor: Retail deliveries of Chrysler-built passenger cars and trucks during January set a new record for the month, Chrysler Canada Ltd., announced.

January deliveries of Imperial, Chrysler, Plymouth, Dodge, Valiant and Barracuda cars reached 8,790, up 2 per cent over the previous high of 8,626 recorded in January, 1965.

Passenger car deliveries during the first four months of the 1966 model year were a record 46,278, up more than 14 per cent over the 40,511 delivered during the same period of the 1965 model year.

Humber Imperial New Luxury Sedan

A new luxury sedan, the Humber Imperial, is now available in Canada from Rootes Motors.

Affluent elegance is the keynote of the new Imperial, the newer, larger, more luxurious model following the Humber Super Snipe.

Speaking of the new Imperial, E. John Mackie, managing director of Rootes Motors of Canada Limited, said that the new Humber model, as did the Sunbeam Tiger, revives a model name established more than a generation ago.

Mr. Mackie said he believes there is a substantial market in Canada for "cars of refined, rather than conspicuous prestige among more successful businessmen and professionals."

"The status value of mass-produced North American luxury cars has suffered considerably because they are mass-produced and have become commonplace. The trend, for the man who really wants to impress his peers, is to look to Europe for suitable automobiles. Our new Imperial is designed to fill this need," added Mr. Mackie.

★ ★ ★

Imperial refinements include an electrically adjustable shock absorber system which allows the driver to change the firmness of the car's ride at the flick of a switch to compensate for varying road characteristics and load conditions.

Also featured are completely independent, heater-defroster systems for back and front passenger comfort.

The new Humber is one of the first European cars to employ an alternator in place of a traditional generator in order to ensure ample current for its many electrical accessories and extra lighting equipment.

The new Imperial's roof is finished with a specially treated dark vinyl material and the interior is done in genuine, top grain leather. Exclusive hand-woven West of England cloth trim is also available at no extra cost.

The Imperial comes complete with automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, radio and fully reclining seats.

BRONCO BUSTING is a comparatively comfortable chore from the seat of Ford's new Bronco. More than 3,000 newsmen and dealers tested the new addition to Ford's stable at 10 Bronco Roadeos across Canada recently. They churned through mud, waded in water and dropped over cliffs at a 60 per cent grade. At the Toronto area rodeo, newsmen and dealers watched the Broncos put through their paces by three drivers from the Comstock racing team—crew chief Paul Cooke, former Canadian champion Eppie Wietzes and Mustang driver Craig Fisher. In the photo (above), Toronto newsman Chris Almey waves his Stetson in cowboy style as Weitzes "reins in" the bucking Bronco. Roadeos were held at Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary and Vancouver. The four-wheel drive Bronco comes in three body styles—a sporty roadster, a roomy wagon and a short-roof utility model.

This is the Car for Batman and James Bond Fans in 1966

HERE'S THE TURBINE RACER

Rover engineers, with the help of their colleagues from the Owen Organization and America's Corning Glass Works, achieved what they set out to do with a lone ROVER-BRM entry at the Le Mans Twenty-Four Hour Race of Endurance at Le Mans, France, last June.

Running a turbine engined racer in 1963 at Le Mans demonstrated the reliability of that kind of engine in a most dramatic fashion. The car ran the 24 hours at an average speed of 108 m.p.h., some 15 m.p.h. faster than was required to win the special prize set up for the first turbine engined car to complete the race.

But that was without the heat exchanger, the device which allows waste heat from the exhaust to preheat the air fed into the combustion chamber and thus makes a turbine engine more efficient and therefore use less fuel.

The car did 6.93 miles to the gallon, roughly comparable to the consumption of some of the big piston engined cars, such as Ferrari, in the race, and, had it been counted as a full contestant, it would have placed eighth overall, right behind six Ferraris and a Ford Cobra.

The point of the excercise was to demonstrate not only reliability but fuel economy. This year the car, quite a bit heavier, was equipped with a heat exchanger especially designed and manufactured from glass ceramic material called Pyroceram by Corning Glass Works whose engineers have worked closely with those of Rover during the last two years.

The car, number 31, got 13.52 miles per (imperial) gallon (said by engineers to be roughly equivalent to a medium sized car used for family driving at an average speed of 40 m.p.h. at a fuel consumption of about 25 miles per U.S. gallon), ran at an average speed of 98.87 m.p.h., used 175 (imperial) gallons of kerosene and 3 (imperial) pints of oil. It did 283 laps and never required a tire change. The rear brake pads were changed once. (Piston engined cars, of course, require frequent tire changes and experience considerable brake wear.) The fuel economy was the best of any of the finishers except one smaller, lighter, and slower car.

Subtle Changes in Mustang Retain the Overall Flavor

After 17 months of record-smashing success as a 1965 model, the Mustang of 1966 incorporates several subtle styling changes while retaining the over-all Mustang flavor.

Changes include a restyled grille, new air scoop ornament, new wheel covers that give the car a "competition look,' a five-dial instrument cluster, and six new safety features.

New Mustang options for 1966 include a stereosonic tape player for music lovers and a high-performance engine-automatic transmission combination.

John B. Naughton, vice-president, sales and marketing, Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, said "the 1966 Mustang represents the third evoluntionary step to enhance the Mustang's proven triple appeal as a practical car, luxury car and sporty car.

"Less than six months after the Mustang was introduced in April, 1964, we added a fastback model, styled steel wheels, new standard six and optional V-8 engines, and optional front-wheel disc brakes," Naughton said. "Six months later, in April last year, we announced three more Mustang options — the GT equipment group, interior decor group, and full-width front seat.'

Naughton noted that in view of Mustang's Tiffany Award-winning design, exterior styling changes in the 1966 model are limited to the grille, side scoop ornament, wheel covers and gas filler cap. He described the changes as "inspired by the Mustang II.' a styling experimental car that preceded the Mustang.

The air scoop ornament on the Mustang II consisted of five horizontal windsplits emanating from a vertically canted scoop just ahead of the rear wheels. On the 1966 Mustang, three bars emerge from the scoop in similar fashion.

Perhaps Mustang's most distinctive change is the new grille design of fine horizontal bars behind a frame that encases the running Mustang emblem.

New wheelcovers suggest a "magnesium-wheel' look, and the gas filler cap has a heavier, sturdier design with brushed finish and Mustang emblem.

Standard Mustangs have new door insert trim panels and new textured vinyl pleated inserts on the bucket seats. The instrument panel and glove box door have a black camera finish on standard models, and an optional wood-grain luxury trim.

Ford Made Choice Not to Stand Still

Dramatic fresh styling, a new "7 Litre" series with 428-cubic-inch V8 engine, and even higher standards of quietness, luxury and performance stand out among 1966 Ford features.

"The Ford was all new just a year ago," said John B. Naughton, vice president—sales and marketing, Ford of Canada.

"In every sense, we had a sound competitive base for 1966 but we chose not to stand still. On that solid foundation we have built still more safety, convenience, quietness and performance into all 1966 Fords."

●

Important revisions have been made in the revolutionary Ford suspension design introduced in 1965 to provide an even quieter ride and better handling in 1966. Front spring and shock absorber rates have been modified, and the rear suspension track bar has been lowered to achieve a better balanced ride. This fine tuning of the 1966 Ford suspension provides a better handling feel with reduced pitch and improved straight-line stability.

The number of engines available to Ford buyers has been increased to eight in 1966 from six in 1965.

Heading the list of new engine choices is a 428-cubic-inch V8 with hydraulic valve lifters. This engine is standard on the new 7 Litre series, and is optional on all other Ford models. It offers the best of two worlds—outstanding performance combined with smoothness and low-speed tractability.

●

Another advantage is that the new 428 can be ordered with automatic transmission, power brakes, air conditioning and limited-slip differential—options not available with the extra high-performance 427 engine.

A special handling package similar to that standard with the 427 engine—including heavy-duty shock absorbers, springs and stabilizer bar—is optional for 428-powered cars.

Front-wheel power disc brakes are another standard feature of the 7 Litre series. They may be ordered on all other Fords for 1966. Disc brakes were pioneered on the Thunderbird and Mustang in 1965.

●

Advantages include optimum fade resistance, quieter operation, easier serviceability, self-adjustment, and lining life equal to or better than regular brakes.

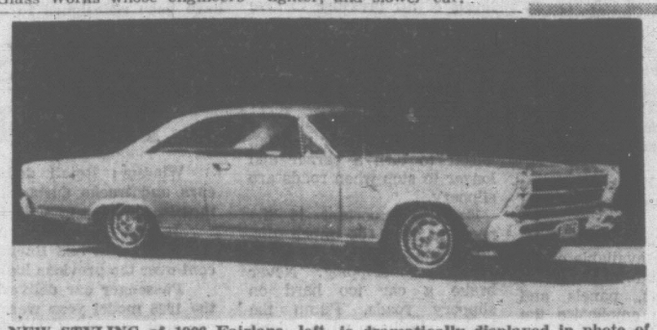
A stereosonic tape player that provides up to 80 minutes of select stereo music is another option new for Ford buyers in 1966. The tape player mounts underneath the dash.

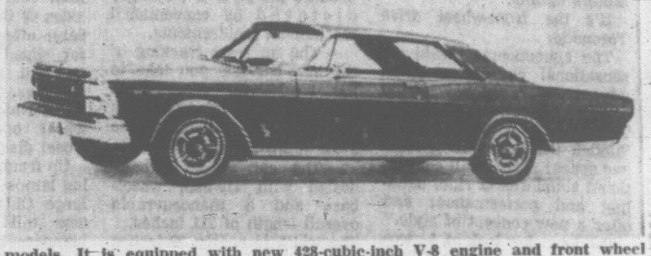
Ford pioneering in station-wagon design also continues in 1966. To the dual centre facing rear seats and built-in rear window air deflector introduced last year has been added a new standard equipment dual-action tail-gate. The dual-action tail-gate may be opened either as a conventional tailgate for carrying long loads, or as a door to permit easy access to the cargo area or the dual-facing rear seat.

●

Introduction of the all-new Ford Galaxie 500 7 Litre series with convertible and 2-door hardtop models expands the 1966 Ford line-up to 17 models in nine series from 15 models in eight series.

New safety features standard on all 1966 Ford include outside rear-view mirror, back-up lights, padded dash and visors, rear seat belts and windshield washers. New Fords also feature a thicker laminate winshield which has been shown to provide added protection in the event of a collision.





NEW STYLING of 1966 Fairlane, left, is dramatically displayed in photo of 500XL 2-door hardtop. It and Fairlane GT are available in convertible and 2-door hardtop models designed for sports and luxury-oriented customers. Ford Galaxie features a new 2-door hardtop roofline. The 500 7-Litre 2-door hardtop is shown at right. The 7-Litre i's a new series which comes also in convertible models. It is equipped with new 428-cubic-inch V-8 engine and front wheel power disc brakes as standard equipment. Both the disc brakes and the new engine are optional on all other Fords. Other features include unique 7-Litre identification, distinctively-styled wheel covers and special dual accent paint stripes.

WELCOME TO THE

AUTO SHOW

You will see many sleek looking domestic and foreign cars in this year's outstanding automobile show.

But remember . . . of all the cars you will see at the show, only the Chrysler, Plymouth and Valiants displayed by Ensign Motors are backed by a 5-year, 50,000-mile warranty.

A warranty tells you two things about an automobile manufacturer: how much confidence he has in the way his product is built; how much concern he feels for those who buy his product.

Every 1966 Plymouth, Valiant, Chrysler and Fargo Truck is backed by Canada's only 5-year, 50,000-mile power-train warranty. This exclusive Chrysler Canada Ltd. warranty protects the engine and all internal parts, intake manifold, water pump, transmission, drive shaft, universal joints, differential, rear axle and rear wheel bearings. New Punch In Acadian Makers Say

Acadian has packaged new power in an all-new design for 1966, General Motors of Canada states.

All six Acadian models in three series have been completely redesigned to add new styling touches and to emphasize the wide, low appearance. The three series are: Invader, Canso and the Canso Sport De Luxe.

New, more powerful engine models are available in addition to regular low-cost power.

The body is completely new —new roofline on coupes and sedans, new bumpers and an extended grille. A new grille-bumper-headlight complex combines to emphasize a low, road-hugging appearance.

New tail-lamps combine with a redesigned bumper which features wide, horizontal lines to again emphasize the low look. New backup lights standard in all models for 1966 are recessed.

There are all-new body panels, windows, fenders and hood and new series ornamentation

Inside, the padded instrument panel has been redesigned. Interior trims have been changed and match beautifuly with the 18 exterior colors.— 11 of which are new.

All models have thick fiberglas felt hood insulation this year. Other features: A new four-way ignition switch with a depressed "accessory" position. This prevents battery drain through accidentally leaving the ignition switch on. There are head rests available for bucket or bench-type seats.

THREE WAYS to buckle up for safety are demonstrated, not by twins but by model Loretta Bergen in a montage. In the front seat she wears a standard lap belt with the new Chrysler installed shoulder belt. In the back seat she wears the lap belt which has been factory installed in all Chrysler cars since last April.

SHOULDER BELTS SAFETY OPTION

Front seat shoulder belts are an added safety option on all all 1966 Chrysler Canada Ltd. cars. The shoulder belts are a dealer-installed accessory and supplement the standard equipment front seat lap belts.

It is important to note that the shoulder belt is not intended to replace the lap belt, but rather serves to increase the basic body protection offered by the front seat lap belt.

Some of the specific advantages of the Chrysler shoulder belt are:

—It can be added to any 1962 or later model Chrysler-built car.

—It allows use of the lap belt by the guest passenger who is not accustomed to wearing both lap and shoulder belts.

—It can be adjusted separately without affecting the tension on the lap belt.

—It can be installed and used safely with any body style, not being dependent upon anchorages in the roof or side pillars. It is available for convertibles and hardtops as well as for sedans and station wagons.

It is attached to the rear wheelhouse structure to provide a rearward restraint rather than a downward pull such as is exerted by shoulder belts anchored immediately behind the front seat.

—The Chrysler shoulder belts allow for individual adjustment for maximum comfort and safety. Not only can the wearer adjust the shoulder belt tension for comfort but he can also shift the buckle and adjust to the area alongside the hip.

Ten years ago, Chrysler offered a lap-type safety belt for every occupant as a first step in promoting greater protection from serious injuries in the event of a collision.

This simple but effective safety advancement ultimately gained widespread acceptance from various safety-oriented organizations as well as from the general public.

Automobile crash studies carried out since 1954 by Cornell University dramatized the importance of keeping the occupant inside the vehicle to reduce injuries in the event of a collision. Restraining the occupant by the use of a lap belt has been shown to save lives and to provide further reductions in injuries.

Research information has been made available by the University of California showing that much greater protection from such impact becomes possible when the occupant supplements his lap belt with a shoulder belt.

Collision research studies by Chrysler have emphasized the necessity of adding the upper torso restraint via shoulder belts for maximum protection.

In exhaustive tests shoulder belts have been found to:

. . . Minimize the likelihood of injuries to the head and chest resulting from striking the steering wheel, windshield, instrument panel and other surfaces directly in front of the driver and his passengers.

. . . Provide a restraint of the occupant that reduces the risk of knee impact during a forward collision.

New Chev Series Tops Its '66 Innovations

New styling, new power and an all-new series — the Caprice — highlight Chevrolet for 1966, says General Motors of Canada.

The Caprice series is "top of the line" and includes a custom coupe with a distinctive roofline, a custom sedan model and a six-passenger station wagon with wood-grained trim. A nine-passenger station wagon is also available.

Chevrolet's lineup totals 15 models in four series. The line includes Chevrolet, Chevelle, Chevy II, Corvair and Corvette.

•

Chevelle has a full range of two and four-door sedans, convertibles and coupes, in two series with nine models.

Chevy II has six models in three series — all redesigned.

Corvair, with the Corsa, Monza and the 500 series, returns with optional turbo supercharged rear-engine power. Also available are both models of the powerful Corvette Sting Ray.

All models have been restyled for '66 in sparkling new colors, dazzling new interiors, and the longer, lower and wider look that will be the pace-setter this year.

•

All Chevrolets feature full-coil front and rear suspension with tailored springs and refined shock absorbers, wide-stance tread design, thick body mounts, and sound and vibration absorbers and sealers at hundreds of points.

As standard equipment, all the new models have a new smooth-operating three-speed transmission that can be shifted into low without first coming to a halt.

The range of power teams is higher than ever before. The literally hundreds of options mean that the new cars are virtually custom built.

Instrument panel pad and padded sun visors are standard along with a host of features that include: Seat belts front and rear, two-speed windshield wipers with glare-resistant arms, windshield washer, outside mirror, shatter-resistant inside mirror and backup lights.

The 15-model lineup for Chevrolet is in four series — Capriee, Impala, Bel Air and Biscayne.

Impala has a new sport option expected to win high favor with purchasers of Impala sport coupes and convertibles.

A luxurious special sport interior is standard equipment for the Caprice coupe. It includes slim, tapered stratobucket seats, a lower instrument panel, and a centre console with a lighted carpet-lined compartment, ashtray, courtesy light with trim matching other insets in the interior. The console contains calibrated generator, temperature, vacuum and oil pressure gauges.

Elegance is standard with Caprice. Interiors are color-teriors, insets with the look of hand-rubbed walnut enrich the doors, instrument panel, glove compartment door, floor console and the steering wheel horn ring.

New exterior ornamentation emblems and name plates give a distinctive touch to Chevrolet's low-lying silhouette. All models have newly styled front fenders and grilles, rear quarters, deck-like front and rear bumpers and distinctive tail-lamps.

Available on all Caprice models this year are adjustable front seat headrests, a tilt-steering wheel and a bucket seat for the driver that can be power-adjusted four ways.

Safari Stands Up to a Rhino

In a bid to increase its share of the utility vehicle market the British Motor Corporation has introduced a new on-or-off-the-road vehicle, the Austin Gipsy Safari.

After being tested for 100,000 miles in Africa and South America, BMC claims the vehicle will stand up to the charge of a rhinoceros; survive the fall of a heavy tree; and in its double capacity as a personnel carrier, hold seven men plus equipment.

In its North American capacity the vehicle is ideal for heavy bush work yet can cruise comfortably on the highway.

The large cabin can be removed to turn the Gipsy into a pickup truck or hold a netted cougar. On top of the cabin there is a heat shield which bounces tropical sunlight off the vehicle. BMC claims, in the tropics, the Gipsy is the coolest ride around.

At the front of the vehicle there is a drum winch with a maximum pull of 2,500 pounds and at the rear of the vehicle there is a rig for a drum pulley which can be used to drive stationary farm machinery.

For power the Gipsy packs a heavy-duty 2.2-litre BMC engine which makes light of the four-wheel drive duties. Leaf spring and independent flexitor suspension get the Gipsy through anything.

Other features of the vehicle are iron bars to protect rear tail and flasher lights; room for three people in the driving cab; spare wheel mounted on top of the engine hood; side hinged rear door; mounting step, rubber mats and roof vent.

GM Exceeds Car, Truck Records

General Motors of Canada has reported that record-breaking sales by its dealers in 1965 of 354,849 North American type cars and trucks exceeded the previous record established in 1964 by 8,735 vehicles.

December sales totalled a record 30,228 units compared with 13,658 in December, 1964, when dealer inventories were low due to strikes at GM plants.

The company also reported that domestic sales of North American type cars and trucks by GM during the past year were up 19 per cent over 1964. Of 1965's total, 300,697 were passenger cars and 54,152 were trucks.

BMC Says You Can Please Everybody —It's Automatic

Who said you can't please everybody?

The British Motor Corporation of Canada says you can and they have.

Soon you can have an automatic Mini or an Austin 1100.

The Mini — the car that won more international competitive events than any other of its kind — is the smallest in the world to have automatic transmission

With it and the 1100, BMC sees another great step forward as leaders in automotive ingenuity.

But back to automatic transmission with a difference . . . simply, it works this way:

You can be on automatic, but if you want to switch to feel the thrill of the smooth gear stick change you can.

A central floor-mounted gear lever can be used to select either fully automatic operation of the gearbox or to make individual changes between any of the four forward gears. With the 2nd, 3rd or 4th gears selected individually full engine braking effect can be obtained.

On fully automatic operation, the gearbox makes use of four forward speed ranges. A kickdown switch linked to the throttle allows instant changing-down for overtaking.

A torque converter to provide a smooth getaway from rest in conjunction with the four forward gear ratios give the optimum performance for an automatic transmission linked to a small engine.

Previously there have been technical difficulties in providing a satisfactory automatic system for small cars and this new transmission represents a major breakthrough towards more relaxed and sophisticated motoring for the small-car owner.

By modifying the torque curve of the Mini and 1100 power units, the same performance can be obtained as with an ordinary manual gearbox model.

The layout of the automatic transmission corresponds closely to the existing BMC Mini and 1100 transverse engine arrangement with the gearbox and final drive mechanism being contained within the sump.

The torque converter replaces the normal clutch and flywheel assembly while a large capacity camshaft-driven oil pump serves both the engine and transmission lubrication systems. Manufacture is a joint venture, the torque converter coming from the Automotive Products Group, while the gearbox is produced by The British Motor Corporation.

VALIANT GETS THAT 'SPRIGHTLY LOOK'

A sprightly new look has come to the Valiant this year as refinements to styling, performance and comfort further enhance this popular car.

Strong on quality and ride, Valiant for 1966 offers a wide range of body styles and options to satisfy individual tastes and preferences.

Body style, which follows in the well-established Valiant reputation for attractive simplicity, is highlighted by a striking new grille.

The bold theme presented by the new grille is carried gracefully back in flowing contours to the neatly-tailored rear end.

Ten new colors are included in the range of 18 exterior finishes all in the remarkable Acrylustre which, with simple buffing, keeps a car looking in showroom condition.

Tasteful ornamentation sets off the slim, trim Valiant lines.

Deep-skirted front and rear bumpers eliminate any further need for protective stone pans and are designed with high-impact points for extra protection to the grille and rear.

Rubber-faced bumper guards, front and rear, are optional.

New and improved interiors build even greater value into the Valiant.

A choice of five colors is possible in the all-vinyl trim that highlights the high-line Signet. Bucket seats are of a new design that adds greatly to driving comfort and interior appearance.

A new full-size floor console accommodates a choice of two new gear selection levers. These levers in both automatic and manual transmission systems have a new lockout feature that prevents the driver from inadvertently selecting reverse gear.

The engine lineup ranges from the powerful 273-cubic-inch V-8 that can come equipped with a four-barrel carburetor option, through the peppy 225-cubic-inch six cylinder, to the economical and spunky 170-cubic-inch six cylinder.

Design revisions to engine mounting, suspension and steering add to Valiant's fine handling, performance and smooth-riding characteristics.

Classic in Seven Models

199-CUBIC INCH "Torque Command" six, rated at 128-horsepower, is the new standard engine on all Rambler American models for 1966, including the 440 four-door station wagon shown here. A 232-cubic inch six with two-barrel carburetor, rated at 155-horsepower, is offered as an option on Americans. Both engines feature seven main bearing crankshafts with eight counterweights for smoother operation, high performance.

There are seven models of the 1966 "Rambler Classic."

Emphasis has been placed on more luxury, more sporty styling and special options this year.

Station wagons are two inches longer to provide more cargo space and provide longer flowing lines. The new "Rebel" two-door hardtop, which is a newcomer to the line, has a crisp-line roof which gives the appearance of a convertible.

More emphasis has been placed on sporty two-door hardtops this year.

The Rebel custom-trim option includes a black vinyl top while slim bucket seats are offered as standard equipment.

The 1966 "Rambler Classic" displays fresh styling details on all models. The twin headlights have new diecast frames and are accentuated by a newly styled extruded aluminum grille.

Newly designed roof panels are evident on the station wagon models and the restyled rooftop travel racks are standard equipment. "Wrap-around" tail-lights feature excellent side as well as rear visibility.

New interiors feature redesigned instrument clusters while front seat headroom has been increased by a half-inch on most models. A choice of AM or a combination of AM-FM radios are available on all 1966 "Rambler Classic" models. Two and four-door sedans, two-door hardtops, four-door wagons and the new "Rebel" round out the Classic models for 1966.

Rear seat belts, padded instrument panel and sun visors, back-up lights, left outside mirror and windshield washers are standard on all the new "Rambler Classic" models. Parallel-action variable speed vacuum windshield wipers are standard while electric wipers become an option for the first time.

Double action safety brakes, ceramic-armored exhaust system and advanced unit construction continue to be standard safety features on all American Motors products.

Windshield glass is constructed of a new higher-strength laminated safety plate glass to ensure greater durability and resistance to penetration.

Headrests continue to be a safety option and a new four-way hazard warning system to activate all four turning indicators is a new safety option.

Three engine choices are available on all the Classic models. Two six-cylinder "Torque Command" engines with seven main bearings, rated at 145 and 155 horsepower, give excellent performance and stress economy. The 198-horsepower V-8 engine gives extra performance while still using regular fuel.

Sporty Rogue Loose

American Motors (Canada) Limited's compact model, the "Rambler American" has a newcomer — a two-door sporty hardtop, named the "Rogue."

The "Rogue" is priced and styled to appeal to a very large segment of the market which shops for economy and performance as well as comfort and beauty.

The "Rogue" has reclining slim bucket seats with centre cushion and arm rests as standard equipment. Other selections include individual front seats, solid front seats, with reclining or non-reclining backs. Seven positions of the reclining back are provided for maximum passenger comfort.

THUNDERBIRD SOARS HIGH WITH ELEGANCE, STYLING

NEW GRILLE and distinctive new roof line added, the Thunderbird moves into 1966. Two models, the Town Landau and Town Hardtop (above) offer the new top with the elegant "town car" look, while the hardtops and convertibles retain their sporty flare. Other new options include a stereosonic tape player integrated into the radio in the centre console, and fingertip automatic highway pilot speed control integrated into the steering wheel. An overhead console containing door-ajar warning light, fasten-seat-belt warning light, emergency flashers and low-fuel warning light is standard on all "Town" models.

The elegance, sportiness and distinctive features that add up to Thunderbird, reach new standards for 1966.

John B. Naughton, vice president — sales and marketing, Ford of Canada, said four Thunderbird models are offered in 1966 compared with three in 1965. The new lineup includes the convertible and hardtop which are retained and a new Town Landau and Town Hardtop which feature a new roof line.

New features for 1966 include an overhead safety-convenience console in "Town" roof models, a new stereosonic tape player built into the radio in the centre console, and a new fingertip automatic 'highway pilot' speed control integrated into the steering wheel.

"New elegance is evident in the new Town Landau and Town Hardtop models with their unique roof line," Naughton said. "New sportiness is reflected in the lighter, more graceful styling of all 1966 Thunderbirds and in the new optional high-performance engine.

"So widely copied was the Thunderbird roof, with its broad rear pillar, that Ford stylists were inspired to develop a new definition. In bold styling stroke, they eliminated the rear side window and extended the pillar to the front window for a special 'Town Car' effect."

The new 'Town' roof line not only offers a distinctive exterior appearance but also affords greater rear-seat privacy, he said.

★

The Town Landau and Town Hardtop interiors have a molded headlining with integrated sun visors and an overhead console incorporating the safety-convenience control panel standard on these models. Lights and switches include door-ajar warning light, fasten-seat-belt warning light, low-fuel warning light, and emergency flashers. The safety-convenience control panel remains an option on convertible and hardtop models and is mounted above the centre console on the dash panel as before.

In addition to the new "Town" roof, a competition-type grille, new power-dome design, and full-width taillamps are the most obvious styling changes in the Thunderbird for 1966. The exclusive Thunderbird sequential turn signals are retained.

The performance look of the 1966 Thunderbird is matched with a new performance engine option. The new engine is a 428-cubic-inch V8 which combines performance closely comparable to that of the famed Ford "427 high-performance engine with the smoothness and quietness of the standard Thunderbird 390-cubic-inch V8 engine.

The engine offers Thunderbird buyers added performance over the standard engine, yet permits availability of automatic transmission, power steering, power brakes, air conditioning and limited-slip differential.

★

Perhaps the most futuristic innovation among the many in the 1966 Thunderbird is the fingertip-operated optional automatic speed control integrated into the steering wheel.

Called "highway pilot control," the new system, which supersedes the manual-control wheel formerly used to select the desired cruising speed, offers new control possibilities.

With the unit in operation, the driver can maintain his desired cruising speed by merely touching a "speed set" button. If he wishes to slow down, he may do so by touching a "retard" button and holding it until the desired lower speed is reached. When traffic clears, he may return to his former cruising speed by touching a "resume" button — all without moving his hands from the steering wheel.

It thus becomes possible, with today's freeway driving conditions, for the Thunderbird driver to cover long distances without removing his hands from the wheel or touching his accelerator or brake.

Music of his choice — in full stereo and ranging from concert hall to Broadway — is at the command of the Thunderbird owner who selects the new stereosonic tape system.

Integrated with an AM radio for newscasts and "live" entertainment, the stereo system is mounted in the centre console and occupies little more space than a conventional radio. The tape cartridge — only 4 inches by 5 inches by ¾ inch in size — slips into a slot above the regular radio dial, much like a small drawer sliding into a table. Removing the cartridge actuates the radio.

The tape is played at a speed of 3¾ inches per second, providing as much as 80 minutes of music — equivalent to both sides of two long-playing records — from each cartridge. Should the listener wish to move to a different segment of the tape, a touch of a button indexes the playing head to the next four bands. If the button is not touched, the player indexes automatically to the next band and will continue to play through the entire tape indefinitely.

Separate tracks are used for right-and left-hand speakers to provide the stereo effect. Because driver and passengers sit in fixed locations, the speakers can be ideally located. In the Thunderbird, the speakers are mounted in the lower door panel at front and rear.

In addition to the usual tone and volume controls and the index button, the system also includes a right-and left-balance control for fine tuning of the stereo effect.

Rover Company Built Name On Craftsmanship, Value In an Age of Assembly Line

The Rover Company says it has been building fine, successful cars for nearly 60 years. Its foundations, which are now firmer than ever were built on craftsmanship and real value for money.

Today, in an age of automatic machines and fast-flow production, the company still maintains its traditional outlook insisting on the rigorous inspection of materials and finished parts and the thorough testing of every completed vehicle.

It is against this background of careful endeavor and unhurried pride that the Rover 2000 has been produced.

A four-door, four-seater saloon of an entirely new design, it has fresh simplicity of line that gives an elegant appearance with excellent vision and high aerodynamic efficiency. It is low and compact yet characteristically Rover in refinement, finish and attention to detail. In its construction it combines light weight (24 cwt.) and great strength while the small turning circle of 31½ feet makes manoeuvring unusually easy.

Power is provided by a four-cylinder engine of robust single overhead camshaft design which develops 90 b.h.p. (installed) at 5,000 r.p.m. This excellent power output is combined with extreme economy of operation, fuel figures over 30 m.p.g. being readily obtainable without special effort. The Rover 2000 is an exciting car to drive with its brisk performance, cruising speeds in the upper nineties, high safety factor and a grip on the road that is quite unshakeable.

Grand Turismo on MGB Family Showcase

FAMILY OF 4 IN FASTBACK

An MGB family fastback sportscar is on the production lines for Canada before the spring, British Motor Corporation of Canada announced today.

The MGB GT — Grand Turismo — is a break for the family of four — or more — who want the fast sleek sportscar looks plus performance and the comforts of family accommodation with a big trunk to boot.

The handsome closed body of the MGB GT has been designed to provide maximum space for passengers and luggage.

A folding bench is fitted behind the two front seats together with a large flat luggage area accessible through a lift up rear trunk lid which incorporates the rear window.

The rear seat of this widearama wrap-around of vision can be used to carry two children over long distances — or more depending on size — or two adults over reasonable distances.

For two only flop and flap and the trunk space area you get is 3 ft. 2 in. square.

Features of the fastback top — apart from the big rear window — are slim rear quarter panels giving an excellent all-round vision for drivers and passengers.

Other things worth talking about — in addition to standard BMC safety devices — include;

More speed.

More silent running.

Built-in demisters and heaters.

Adequate ventilation.

Rear quarter lights.

Stronger springs to cope with the additional load.

Washable seats and roof lining.

And BMC's tradition of unique, fast, reliable, sleek and performance in mobile engineering.

The doors are fitted with wind-up windows and swivelling quarter lights as in the two seater version.

The interior of the car is upholstered in leather with washable, plastic-covered door panels. The roof lining is also washable and twin sunvisors are provided.

American Shows Largest, Most Sophisticated Car

American Motors (Canada) Ltd. have unveiled their largest and most sophisticated product for 1966—the "Ambassador."

"The Ambassador gained tremendous public acceptance in 1965 with an increase of over 225%," stated E. K. Brownridge, president of the Canadian Company. "Canadians, with the knowledge that our economy is sound are interested in prestige cars with plenty of options available. The 1966 models represent our answer to the consumer who demands the finest in driving comfort and performance," said Brownridge.

Pacing the top-line cars by American Motors is the new DPL, a sleek hard-top, and the convertible, both of which will be made in the Brampton plant. The complete line-up includes two-door and four-door sedans, four-door station wagons, a two-door hardtop, convertible and the new two-door "DPL."

The overall length of Ambassador wagons has been increased two inches to give added cargo space. The new front features a newly-styled extruded grille with a V-line motif. Vertical wrap-around tail lights compliment the dual vertical headlight theme which has been retained.

The new DPL and 990 hardtops have a new crisp-line roof which closely resembles a convertible top, especially when used with the new vinyl cover which becomes an option for the first time.

Luxury interiors have been newly trimmed and front seat headroom has been increased a half-inch for greater passenger comfort on most models.

Now Volkswagen Drops the Engine

A new Canadian-built car with a price tag of thirteen ninety-five has been introduced across Canada by Volkswagen Canada Limited.

The new vehicle is three feet long, 14 inches wide and constructed of strong yet pliable smooth-edge plastic, with sure gripping wheels built to take miles of punishment.

The company claims that the new Volkswagen has even more advantages than the big one it makes. Not only does it do away with radiator, water and anti-freeze problems, it also does away with gas and oil because it has no engine. It just pedals.

The new vehicle is made for children up to five years old. As a typical VW advertisement would put it: "See our new Volkswagen. It peddles for $13.95 (Maximum suggested retail price)."

New Chrysler New Yorker Four-Door Hartop Model

NEW PINNACLE OF LUXURY

Chrysler for 1966 offers a new peak in luxuriousness and performance with an expanded range of models.

A more flowing profile than ever before is accomplished by distinctive body styling changes. Further refinements to the renowned Chrysler engineering excellence create new levels in safety, smooth, noiseless riding comfort, and a new maximum in performance.

The power range for the 1966 Chryslers has been extended to the lively new 440 cubic inch V-8 engine that comes as an option, equipped with four-barrel carburetor, twin snorkel air cleaner and dual exhaust.

This power plant with single exhaust and silenced air cleaner is standard on the New Yorker series. Two-barrel and four-barrel versions of the 383 cubic inch V-8, power the other series.

A host of other engineering refinements further improve performance and reliability.

Convenience, comfort and function are the principal features of the wide range of optional equipment for the Chrysler line.

Among the new 1966 advances are a rear seat air-and-heat system, tilting and telescoping wheel, new six-way power seats, air conditioning and a Safeguard Sentinel Light.

'Sleek and Sassy' Fury Has Crisp, New Styling

Crisp new styling treatment has created a sleek and sassy new Plymouth Fury for 1966.

Handsome new interiors and refinements in engineering make Plymouth Fury the most decorative and drivable Plymouth ever offered.

This year, the addition of four new models provides a total choice of 32 models in the Fury I, Fury II, Fury III and Sport Fury series.

Big new six-passenger and nine-passenger wagons are added to the Fury III series.

The Plymouth Fury finery begins with 10 new colors in the over-all range of 18.

From the front, Plymouth gets a new grille of classic contours. The theme is carried through to the rear end, which with its striking tail-light arrangements and solid bumper displays a look of action.

Adding dash to Plymouth's exterior appearance are the neatly-styled new wheel covers that are optional on the Fury I, II and III.

Enriching the Plymouth interiors for 1966 are new trim styles that are a careful blend of cloths and vinyls.

Newly-designed bucket seats, engineered to provide the maximum in driving comfort, are one of the many striking new interior features. Attractive new armrests blend gracefully in with the trend-setting door-handle which, as well as adding beauty, counts with the top safety features of the year. The handle is shaped like the buckle of a seat belt and operates in much the same way. It is positioned flush with the armrest and thus eliminates the possibility of a car occupant inadvertently opening the door with the bump of a knee or elbow.

A new speedometer cluster makes it even easier for a driver to read gauges and indicators.

Adding an extra touch of style to the Sport Fury is the all-new console which provides roomier storage, and accommodates a choice of two new gear-selector levers.

Both the automatic transmission lever and the four-speed manual transmission lever incorporate a remarkable new "lockout" mechanism that guards against a driver accidentally selecting reverse gear.

Only by depressing a button on top of the automatic lever, or lifting a T-shaped bar on the manual lever, can reverse be selected.

For the sports-minded, a tachometer can be mounted in the console.

A new high in performance is offered in the Plymouth Fury power plant lineup for 1966. The new 440-cubic-inch V-8 comes equipped with four-barrel carburetor and dual exhaust to give sparkling performance.

Other engines available are the economical 225-cubic-inch six-cylinder, the hearty 318-cubic-inch V-8 and the Hi-Performance 383-cubic-inch V-8.

Roadability, superior handling and relaxing ride are enhanced through the development of new engine mounts, refining of the drive train and suspension system. All build on the high level of performance and durability backed by Chrysler's five-year, 50,000-mile power train warranty.

Detail changes of the Torqueflite transmission system to accommodate the growing number of optional tire sizes and axle ratios result in a new high degree of accuracy in Plymouth speedometers and odometers.

Full power assistance during parking movements is assured with the improved power steering system available on the 1966 Plymouths.

Longer wearing life has been given to brakes by increasing the thickness of linings. Power brakes, now equipped with a new power booster, give the driver a more realistic feel of his braking action.

For hard-driving conditions, such as those encountered in competitive events, disc brakes are available as optional equipment on all Plymouth Fury models.

Less Gear Changing In Traffic

The new Vauxhall Viva offers two models — Viva Sedan and Viva De Luxe Sedan — and both feature exceptional top-gear pulling power that means less changing in traffic.

On the highway Viva performs for wide-open traffic with fast and ready acceleration from the four-speed transmission. Changing gears is as smooth as silk.

The Viva has an outstanding lightweight four-cylinder engine with 64.5 cu. in. and 50 horse-power. One of the most manoeuvrable automobiles, it has a turning radius of only 29 feet!

The lines are clean and sculptured and with the maximum use of space, Viva gives the roominess usually found only in larger cars.

The driver-planned instrument panel provides rocker-type switches for greater driver convenience and controls are within easy reach.

The outside finish is a durable acrylic lacquer that holds a mirror-like lustre for many years.

Independent front suspension runs in the same direction as the axles and provides maximum roll resistance without loss of springing.

Rear suspension is also highly roll resistant but provides a soft ride with a departure from the usual procedure of attaching the axle directly to the springs.

The new Vauxhaul Victor, Viva's big brother, features tortional rigidity, cold-weather starting and a heater designed for sub-zero temperatures, and splash guards inside the front wheels that can be removed for cleaning.

Its overall length on a 100-inch wheel base is 174.7 inches. It is 55.2 inches high and 64.7 inches wide.

The design includes curved doors and curved side glass which makes travelling three abreast comfortable both front and rear!

FORD'S OUTLAY GROWING

Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, has announced that a record $380.6 million was spent by Ford in Canada in 1965 for goods and services, wages and salaries and fringe benefits.

This represents an increase of 15.1 per cent over the $330.6 million spent in the same categories in 1964.

The amount spent of goods and services supplied by more than 2,800 Canadian businesses from coast to coast was $261.1 million, compared with $225.9 million in 1964, a 15.6 per cent increase.

Salaries and wages and fringe benefits accounted for $119.5 million, compared with $104.7 million in the previous year. Included in these totals are Ford of Canada's contribution of $17.2 million to employee benefit plans in 1965 and $10.7 million on 1964.

The greater part of the salary and wage bill was in Oakville, Windsor and Niagara Falls, Ont., where Ford of Canada's assembly, manufacturing and glass fabricating plants, respectively, are located.

Caddy Still Long and Low

The classic profile of Cadillac for 1966 remains long and low with dramatic new styling front and rear, new standards of elegance and excellence and an all-new model, General Motors says.

The popularity of the Fleetwood Brougham, an option last year, was so great that it is being offered as a regular model. Similar to the Fleetwood Sixty Special, the Brougham is automotive luxury at its best. With elegant appointments, it offers such passenger conveniences as folding footrests, adjustable reading lamps for rear-seat passengers and fold-down convenience trays. The roof is padded.

The new model brings to 12 the number of Cadillacs offered in the three series: Calais, de Ville and Fleetwood.

★

Front-end styling is all new this year, symbolizing the elegance, power, endurance and excitement that is Cadillac. It's bold, broad and big. An all-new grille has bolder grid lines, wider spacing, and a new full-width horizontal member which parallels and complements a new extension of the sweeping hood.

This new horizontal grille member contains the parking lamps and turn signals to provide added visibility for oncoming drivers.

The new, massive Cadillac bumper combines with the vertically mounted headlights which are individually recessed within a cleanly sculptured enclosure. The entire front end of the 1966 Cadillac has a distinctive new elegance created by fine sculpturing and more integrated, more unified design.

★

The headlamps are framed in moldings finished in body-colored paint. The elimination of chrome here is part of a reduced use of chrome throughout, giving new distinction to the long, low silhouette. Cornering lights now are part of the front fender extension, ahead of the front-wheel opening.

New design in the rear also emphasizes Cadillac's appearance of greater width and lowness. The tall bumper ends house all lighting and are split vertically by a heavy chrome bar. Below the new trunk cover, the deck lid now extends to the top of the bumper.

The 1966 Cadillacs appear longer in side view, due to the extended front fenders, and all models feature new brushed chrome wheel discs.

★

The Fleetwood Brougham, Sixty Special sedan and Eldorado convertible share a brushed chrome rocker panel and a thin-line parallel molding which extends from the front wheel opening to the rear bumper.

The Seventy-Five sedan and limousine are restyled, matching the rest of the line in appearance and these models are 1.6 inches lower and almost three-quarters of an inch linger at 244.5 inches. This compares with 224 inches for Calais, de Ville and Eldorado convertible models.

All 1966 Cadillacs have a new and beautiful three-spoke steering wheel to go with Cadillac's exclusive variable-ratio steering — famed for its steering ease.

Styling features inside include a vinyl-covered padded roof in five colors — one more than last year. It is standard for Fleetwood Brougham and optional on three de Ville models and the two Seventy-Fives. Tinted glass rear windows are standard for convertibles when the soft-ray option is ordered.

Cadillac comes in 16 colors, nine of them new, and there are 171 upholstery options in eight cloths (one more than last year) and leather combinations. Perforated leather is available in 17 colors on six models.

Volks Fastback, One of Two New Models

Volkswagen Introduces 2 New Models in Canada

Two new models have been introduced to the Canadian automotive market by Volkswagen Canada Limited. The VW 1600, an elegant, sporty fast-back sedan, and the VW 1300, the familiar beetle with a more powerful 50-horsepower engine, are new additions to the Volkswagen line of passenger cars for 1966.

Other innovations introduced with the 1966 VW cars include disc brakes on the front and new drum brakes on the rear axles of all VW 1500 and VW 1600 models of sedans and station wagons, in addition to 23 new improvements in the 1200 cc and 1300 cc Beetles.

A new inspection policy provides that all 1966 models require inspection only at 6,000 mile intervals.

The fastback gives the new VW 1600 a sporty appearance, a spacious interior, generous headroom above the rear seats, a wide parcel shelf in front of the car window and—in addition to the front luggage compartment with a capacity of 6.5 cubic feet—a rear luggage compartment with a capacity of 10.2 cubic feet. The long quarter windows follow the contour of the roof at the rear. They have no hinges. The glass bends on being opened.

The VW 1600 is powered by a twin carburetor engine with a capacity of 1584 cc (96.66 cubic inches). The engine develops 65 horsepower and has a torque of 87 foot-pounds covering a wide revolution range. The flat torque curve ensures the flexibility of the engine. The compression ratio is 7.7:1 with an octane requirement of 90, which permits to operate on ordinary, rather than premium gas.

The combination of disc brakes on the front and newly designed drum brakes on the rear axle of the 1500 and 1600 has the advantage of both brake systems and increases ability. The disc brakes guarantee minimum fading with maximum efficiency even under extreme conditions and require very little maintenance. All 1500 and 1600 models are provided with slotted wheel discs, and the wheel caps and trim rings have been altered accordingly.

The new VW 1600 fastback is a five-seater with individual front seats. The designs and colors of the interior trim have been matched accordingly. All control knobs are chromed. The arm-rests are provided with an aperture making it easier to close the doors. A moulding is fitted to the armrests. In order to facilitate the operation of the heating, a knob has been fitted underneath the instrument panel, by means of which both slides in the front foot wells can be operated separately and with ease. The chrome grip on the front hood is extended over the entire width.

In the new VW 1300, the more powerful, 50-horsepower engine gives improved acceleration and a higher cruising speed. This engine, which is basically the same in design as the 41.5 horsepower engine (identical bore), has a capacity of 1285 cc (78.41 cubic inches). The characteristics of the engine guarantee long service life, economical operation and reliability.

The VW 1300 is fitted with a new interior trim. A trim plate matching the interior trim is now fitted to the lower part at the front seat frames. Haircord carpeting and rubber floor coverings are supplied in six colors. A few of the interior improvements which make driving safer and more pleasant include a third defroster vent in the middle of the instrument panel, a non-reflecting steering wheel, a new locking device for the front seat backrests, a manual dip switch which also operates the turn signals, and a new safety closing device on the doors.

The VW 1200 and 1300 models are fitted with a new front axle. The steering knuckles and torsion arms are connected by maintenance-free ball joints. The few grease nipples require lubrication only at every 6,000 miles. Improvements to the transmission—which have also been made in the VW 1500 and 1600—increase service life and ease of operation. The new models are equipped with slotted wheel discs and flat wheel caps.

The practical and technical improvements to the VW 1300 Sedan also apply to the 1966 four-seater convertible, which has a new plastic top in black, silver grey or teak. The new top is considerably more weatherproof and is easier to clean and has a long service life.

The two Karmann Ghia models for 1966 are also equipped with the 50-horsepower engine, which makes them even faster, and their new internal trim has made them even more attractive. They are fitted with a different air cleaner for the 1300 engine, mounted on a bracket to the right of the engine, with the battery to the left.

'HIS AND HERS' TRANSMISSIONS

A new "his and hers" Sportshift automatic transmission, two new model series, three big new engines new convertible and completely new styling highlight the Fairlane for 1966.

"In completely re-engineering and re-styling the medium-sized Fairlane for the first time since its introduction as a 1962 model we have improved on the nimbleness and roominess that have led many owners to think of their Fairlanes as family sports cars," said John B. Naughton, vice-president — sales and marketing, Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited.

●

The new model selection — four series instead of two and 13 models instead of eight — is indecative of the broadened family and sports appeal of the 1966 Fairlane.

The new series — Fairlane 500-XL and Fairlane GT — are available in convertible and 2-door hardtop models and are designed for soprts — and luxury-oriented customers, Naughton said.

The standard Fairlane GT transmission is the all-synchromesh three-speed manual. A four-speed, all synchromesh transmission and the new manually controlled Cruise-O-Matic "sportshift" are options. All Fairlane GT and GT-A trahsmission controls are floor-mounted.

"Cars equipped with the sportshift are designated Fairlane GT-A hardtops or convertibles," McNaughton said.

He described the Fairlane GT-A as unique among high-performance cars. The new sportshift automatic transmission control offers complete manual selection of the three forward Cruise-O-Matic speeds by the driver. Yet, the same transmission can be driven without moving the control lever from the fully-automatic "drive" position, if preferred.

●

"We think of it as "his and hers" transmission," Naughton said, "because it can be driven just like a conventional Cruise-O-Matic. But the driver who demands still more precise control can downshift and upshift at will — and more quickly than in a comparable car with a manual transmission."

The Fairlane series retains 2 and 4-door sedans and a 4-door station wagon, while the Fairlane 500 series retains 2 and 4-door sedans and a 4-door station wagon, while the Fairlane 500 series is broadened to include five models — 2 and 4-door sedans, a 2-door hardtop, a convertible and a 4-door station wagon.

The Fairlane Squire station wagon, with distinctive simulated wood trim, returns to the lineup for 1966. All Fairlane station wagons for 1966 have a new, dual-section tailgate that may be opened either as a tailgate for loading cargo, or as a door for passenger entry without the need of stepping over a tailgate.

All 1966 Fairlane bodies retain unitized construction but are completely new. They have been engineered for greater rigidity and stength with front frave members welded to torque boxes to provide controlled flexibility. The torque boxes are isolated from the underbody structure to eliminate transfer of motion into the body.

●

In addition, the 1966 Fairlane torque boxes have been scientifically designed — like those of the quiet-riding Ford — to divert vibrations from the passenger compartment into the underbody structure. The sturdy, integral side rails and cross-members are galvanized to reduce corrosion.

The 1966 Fairlane doors are designed with new, thin, curved window frames and inboard weatherstrip retention to reduce wind noise. The front and rear doors have stronger and safer lock assemblies that accommodate reversible keys and keyless locking.

Other comfort and convenience features include increased shoulder, hip and head room; a new instrument cluster with blue and red indicator lights replacing the temperature gauge; larger, 20-gallon-capacity fuel tanks; suspended accelerator pedal and foot-operated parking brake.

New safety features standard on all 1966 Fairlanes include outside rear-view mirror, backup lights, padded dash and visors, rear seat belts and windshield washers. New Fairlanes also feature a thicker laminate windshield which has been shown to provide added protection in the event of a collision.

●

The 1966 Ford Fairlane is a strong expression of new, sporty and distinctive styling for a medium-sized car. The design epitomizes youthful flair, but tailored touches of formality continue to suggest the outstanding quality that has been a Fairlane hallmark.

New 500-XL and GT models exemplify Fairlane's expanded market coverage.

The profile view of Fairlane begin with thrusting front fenders that cant sharply and rakishly downward to emphasize a look of motion. A long, graceful hop-up and slight outward swell in the rear quarter panel also suggest power and performance, while a full-length sculptured windsplit in the bodyside accentuates the longer and lower appearance.

All Fairlane roof options flow smoothly into the lower body. Beltline moldings are noticeably absent from all but two-tone models. Wheel openings are crisply tailored and, on the upper-series models, are trimmed in chrome. Tucked-under rocker panels co-ordinate with the curved side glass to add to the trim, sporty look.

TWO WAYS exist to get into the rear of every 1966 Ford station wagon—over the tailgate or through the door. Ford's latest station wagon innovation is a dual-action tailgate. Open it with the centre latch, left, and it's a tailgate. Open it with the handle, right, and it's a door. Illustrated on the 1966 Ford Country Squire Wagon, top, the new feature is standard on all Ford and Fairlane station wagons and is optional on Falcon wagons. The door feature permits easy passenger entry and provides ready access to a lockable storage compartment, while the tailgate is available for hauling or loading cargo. Earlier innovations which pushed Ford to station wagon sales leadership in 1965—dual centre racing rear seats and built-in rear window air deflectors—are retained for 1966.

Falcon Has Sweeping Changes

With the most sweeping changes since its record-setting introduction as a 1960 model, the 1966 Falcon has become in effect a family Mustang.

The Mustang styling influence is readily apparent in the long hood, short rear deck, rear quarter "hop-up" and round wheel openings of this Falcon Futura Sports Coupe. The 1966 Falcon has new roominess, outstanding economy and technical innovations.

Lengthened wheelbase and wider tread improve riding comfort. Reversible keys and keyless locking, curved side glass and integrated air conditioning are among other customer comfort and convenience features.

MARLIN CONTINUES FASTBACK THEME

The Marlin by American Motors, introduced as a mid-1965 model, continues its unique fastback styling theme for 1966 and has a number of changes for product refinement and improvement.

For 1966 a sway bar is standard on all Marlins for improved handling.

Interiors, including the instrument panel, have been newly trimmed and the Marlin extruded aluminum grille has been restyled.

The 232 cubic inch Torque-Command, 145 horsepower engine is standard on the '66 Marlin with 155, 198, 250, and 270 horsepower options available.

Fiat Tests Cover Three Continents

The Fiat 850 Coupe, the second of the three new "850" models from Fiat Torino, world's fifth largest automobile manufacturer, is a more powerful and more luxurious version of the 850 Sedan which was introduced to the Canadian market last summer.

Safari tracks, desert, frozen lakes, mountain passes and super-highways were all included in the 620,000 miles of pre-introduction testing carried out on three continents in temperatures ranging from 35 deg. F. below zero to 120 deg. F. above.

The new car has a 52-h.p. engine in the rear, all-independent suspension, front disc brakes and a fully-synchronized four-speed gearbox. Another interesting feature is the anti-smog system which recirculates and burns away the blow-by gases before they can escape from the exhaust outlet.

The top speed of the 850 Coupe is given as over 84 m.p.h. and gasoline consumption as cruising speeds is said to be in the area of 35 m.p.g.

The Fiat 850 Coupe comes equipped with bucket seats with special locking device, large instrument panels (including a tachometer), sports steering wheel and attractive pleated leatherette upholstery. The driver has exceptional all-round visibility through the wide front and rear windows. Heating and ventilation of the cockpit is efficient: external air intakes just ahead of the windscreen, opening rear side-windows; special sealed cooling system and fresh-air heater.

Henri Hassid, Fiat's Canadian marketing manager, said that since the Canadian introduction of the 850 Sedan in July of last year, the Fiat dealer force had increased to over 70 and that car sales had shown a very satisfactory upswing: in October, Fiat registrations in Canada have shown a spectacular increase over previous-year and previous-month figures, bringing Fiat into the "top ten."

"I am confident," he said, "that the new coupe will accelerate this success, especially in British Columbia."

Mr. Hassid reported many additions to the Fiat organization in Canada and a considerably strengthened field group. "Particular attention is being paid to service," Mr. Hassid said.

GUARANTEED to compete for attention with new cars at Victoria Auto Show this week is local song stylist Terry Cain who appears on stage with Four Lads and Harmonicats at Memorial Arena. There are three shows daily until Saturday, 4:30, 7:30 and 10:15. Admission is $1 or 50 cents for students. Victoria Automobile Dealers' Association is sponsor.

WOMEN BEST DRIVERS . . . IT SAYS HERE

Well now, is it a man's world or a woman's world? When it comes to cars manufacturer have done considerable research on the subject.

They found, that while there is a whiskery antagonism aimed at the woman driver much of it is based on false premises.

For instance it is a fact that:

- Women are more temperamentally suited to driving.
- They learn more quickly with fewer mistakes.
- They are a better insurance risk.
- Women get fewer speeding tickets.
- A woman is more polite than a male motorist.

According to the survey doctors, psychologists and traffic researchers agree it is plain male conceit that makes him think he's better at the wheel. For example, the woman driver really feels the full apeman reaction if she happens to be driving a red sports car.

Everytime she passes a male driver especially one in an obviously 'used car special' he reacts as if she had run off with his manhood. He will risk life or limb, his or hers to repass.

Is this prejudice against women drivers justified? Is there any truth in the myth that there are three types of male drivers, very good, good and average, but only one kind of woman driver—bad?

Well, women are capable of competing on equal terms with them in racing, rally or town driving, but the point is they are not given a chance.

Most women get the use of the family car under sufferance. This means the woman does not get the driving practice her husband does.

Psychologically women tend to be more patient and tolerant and less aggressive than men. This makes for a very good driver.

Actually the woman, if she's a wife in this instance, deserves high marks for patience when her knight in shining armour in a chat with a friend refers to 'the car,' or 'my car' and never 'our car' even when she has helped pay for it. Does she do the same with her friends? Never.

Is it surprising then, for a woman to feel out of place in a vehicle? After all when it was bought, even though she might have been present, she will find out the driving seat suits him better than her. She will usually find she would need a mountaineer's climbing boot to fit the gas pedal. For him it's just perfect.

But with her ingenuity she makes do, and say, the experts, she will park the car better, it will last longer with her; and if you drive with her you will be safer in the long run.

Pontiac Family Larger

Pontiac has new power, new handling ability and a great new series — Grande Parisienne — for 1966, General Motors of Canada states.

The new series is available in two models — sport coupe and sport sedan — and offers a new standard of luxury. Altogether, this year's lineup totals 14 models in four series — Grande Parisienne, Parisienne, Laurentian and Strato-Chief. A sport option is available in Parisienne on convertible or sport coupe models.

A new, lower line is achieved in Pontiac for '66 with a new hood and a redesigned cowl panel, which complement a new grille and fenders.

Each series: Grande Parisienne, Parisienne, Laurentian and Strato-Chief is distinctive in features.

Grande Parisienne sport coupe, for example, has a roofline unique to itself — sharp, angular quarter panel and deck treatment and gracefully curved rear window that won such favorable comment in the Grand Prix model.

A new tail-lamp, and ribbed molding across the body stress the long, low ground-hugging look. The molding runs along the body rear panel below the deck. Tail-lights are invisible until the brakes are applied or the lights are turned on.

Standard equipment includes Strato-bucket seats in the sport coupe, and Grande Parisienne features simulated wood-trimmed instrument panel and steering wheel. Rear-wheel opening covers are standard in the series and so are special wheel-disc covers.

A Glance Makes It Dance

Rennault dealers claim the Dauphine automatic responds to a glance and a fingertip.

Besides the pushbuttons for Drive, Neutral and Reverse there are two extra buttons for special circumstances.

"1" is for climbing or descending steep hills.

"2" locks the transmission in first or second gears to permit you to drive smoothly over difficult terrain or provide a powerful burst of speed for passing.

The Renault Automatic Transmission is designed to operate without absorbing and wasting engine power. It differs entirely from the usual North American automatic.

While the Dauphine is fast and lively, it maintains its reputation for economy; it gets an average of 44 m.p.g.!

AMC Buys 25 Per Cent Of Foundry

American Motors Corporation has acquired a 25 per cent interest in Holmes Foundry Ltd., one of Canada's major independent grey iron foundries.

The announcement was made by AM president Roy Abernethy and John S. Blunt, president of Holmes Foundry, of Sarnia, Ontario.

Holmes has been a prime engine-block supplier to American Motors since 1962.

In announcing the move, Abernethy and Blunt said:

"This new partnership, in keeping with the new U.S.-Canadian trade agreement, is a positive example of the 'international bridge' concept of business that we are confident will be beneficial to both companies."

Shower of Valentines To Surprise Shut-In

By ELIZABETH FORBES

This is Valentine's Day! Messages have been flying back and forth across the country. Parents and children and grandchildren have received colorful cards, some made by childish hands.

Forbes

Sweethearts have conversed in the universal language of love and those who prefer to spice their offerings with humor have had a field day.

I don't suppose anyone in Victoria has enjoyed this day more than a young lady, crowding 17 years, who, if everything went according to plan, received a deluge of valentines this afternoon, from near and far.

Her first name is Susan. She's a "shut-in." A polio patient who is unable to use her legs.

★ ★ ★

Susan attends First United Church. When she does, she is carried in by her widowed mother and a friend.

A while back, someone who also attends this church and who had seen Susan and her mother there conceived the idea that it would be a wonderful surprise if she received an anonymous "shower of valentines" on this Feb. 14.

The person who had this thought (I'm sorry, I don't know if it's a man or a woman) set to work to make a list of people that just possibly might co-operate.

When the list was completed a letter had to be composed, telling Susan about the idea. These letters were sent anonymously to each person on the list. Stamped envelopes were also included and with each envelope went a suitable valentine.

★ ★ ★

I received one of the letters. In essence it read:

"If you approve of the idea will you kindly address the envelope as given at the top (it was Susan's full name and address). Add your initials ONLY and Victoria, to the valentine herewith together with any little message of good wishes. Seal it, postage is on the envelope, MAIL this on 9th February, Thursday."

How did this unkown friend of Susan arrange so that valentines, posted not only in Victoria but in Florida, Arizona, California, State of Washington, the seven western provinces and also in London, England, and Buenos Aires in the Argentine, would all reach the young recipient on the same day?

★ ★ ★

Officials in our main post office co-operated. They gathered mail arriving for Susan over a period of several days ahead of this date and made sure it was delivered all at one time. That time was this afternoon.

Last sentence in the letter of instructions assured that Susan would have a real surprise, as those chosen to send cards or messages were entirely unknown to her.

There was an expression of thanks, too, in anticipation of "assistance in this little valentine surprise for a wonderful girl."

I didn't know Susan before I received that letter. Actually, I do not know her now.

★ ★ ★

I can only guess that anyone who inspired an unknown friend to organize this delightful project must be a very fine girl.

I hope that today Susan's mail came in an extra large bundle. I hope she is still opening her valentines. I hope that as she touches each one, she will know that with every card comes the warmth of friendship and a wish for her health and happiness.

I know that the person who thought of the idea and who carried it through to a successful conclusion must be happy in the knowledge that Susan is happy.

We, who assisted by sending one small card each, are sharing in that happiness.

Indeed, it was a wonderful idea!

SURGEON NEAR DEATH

Severed Hand Mailed to Wife

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A surgeon from India was near death today after what police described as a bizarre self-amputation of his right hand, which he sent by a taxi driver to his estranged wife.

The husband was identified by police as Dr. Khurshed Ansari, 30, a resident in neurosurgery at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, where he was taken after police found him on the floor of his blood-spattered apartment.

The severed hand was received early Sunday by a roommate of Dr. Ansari's wife, Margaret, 26, in a dormitory of Children's Hospital, where Mrs. Ansari is a staff physician.

Dr. Caroline Romshe, 28, said she received the package which had become blood-soaked and partly opened. She found the hand in the parcel with a note which read: "This is the hand that caused the trouble."

She telephoned police, who went to Dr. Ansari's apartment and found him lying in a coma on the floor of the bathroom.

Police said friends of the Ansaris told of having heard Mrs. Ansari talk of divorce.

Vancouver Port Crisis Growing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The world's busiest grain handling port is suffering acute indigestion — and officials are wondering just how much it hurts.

Grain shipments through the port in February are expected to total less than 17,000,000 bushels—1,000,000 below the monthly average.

Efforts to assess the cost of shipping and rail car congestion in the port were made Sunday after a ship's capatin said he would not bring back his freighter into Vancouver until he can be guaranteed "a normal loading time."

Capt. Anastoasios Marcoupolos of the freighter Sonic said the 28 days he had to spend in Vancouver loading grain was the longest layover he had experienced as a seaman.

LOAD ELSEWHERE

"We normally load elsewhere in five days or less."

The Sonic, 746 feet long and with a cargo capacity of 48,000 tons, is the largest cargo ship ever to enter Vancouver harbor.

Capt. Marcoupolos completed loading of 44,400 tons of grain Saturday only after he had moved his ship to six different piers as grain supplies were exhausted at each one. The capatin also complained of the short length of piers here.

Port officials estimate a shipping company loses anywhere from a couple of hundred to thousands of dollars each day a freighter lies idle in port.

LOADING GRAIN

During the weekend eight freighters were loading grain while another 10 waited their turns at the loading docks.

Meanwhile it was learned two Montreal executives of the Canadian Pacific Railway were coming here this week to assess the railway's interest in the situation.

The railway has been blamed by many for at least part of the delays in loading.

R. B. Greer, president of Greer, Tidewater Shipping Ltd., said the port may have been "considerably" harmed by the recent congestion.

"We're not getting very many grain ships any more," Mr. Greer said. "A lot of them are being diverted—for the very reason that the CPR can't supply grain cars."

VERY CROWDED

W. A. Sankey, secretary-manager of the Vancouver Merchants' Exchange which represents all the grain, ship, wharf, tug and dock operators in the harbor, said harbor conditions have been unusually crowded. But, he added, "They've moved an awful lot of grain in the last week or so."

"It won't clear up overnight but it's over the hump," commented one.

PINE POINT NET GAIN $22 MILLION

TRAIL (CP)—Net earnings of $5.55 a share for the year ending Dec. 31, 1965, were reported today by W. G. Jewitt, president of Pine Point Mines Ltd.

The reported earnings were contained in a preliminary report released by the company pending publication of the annual report late in March. The net earnings totalled $22,100,00.

Gross earnings were listed at $25,300,000. Interest on long-term debt less income from short-term investment was $700,000. Depreciation and depletion allowances totalled $2,300,000 and provision for Northwest Territories' royalty of $200,000 totalled $3,200,00.

CLC Launches White-Collar Worker Drive

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress launched a campaign today to have more white-collar workers included in the organized labor force in Canada.

The CLC's national committee on white collar organization opened a two-day convention here attended by delegates from throughout B.C. representing 75 locals of national and international unions affiliated with the CLC.

In the keynote address, Jack Moore, president of the IWA district council, said, "The age of the white-collar worker has arrived."

He told the delegates that white- collar workers have been denied the enormous benefits to be derived from collective bargaining, and said "promises of potential promotions can't be taken home in the weekly or monthly salary cheque."

John Fryer, CLC assistant research director, said automation could be either a blessing or a curse for the white-collar worker.

In an address, Mr. Fryer said 40 per cent of Canadian workers fell into this category and "there will be major problems for this class of worker through automation and technological change in the office."

Winters Bids For More French Trade

PARIS (CP)—Trade Minister Winters of Canada told French businessmen here there is room for growth in Franco-Canadian trade and that they should share in Canada's expansion.

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the Chamber de Commerce France-Canada, Winters said Canada welcomes capital, technology and skilled labor.

"France has already contributed to some of these needs but it can do much more," he said.

Winters said a top-level Canadian economic mission to France will come here this spring, led by a cabinet minister.

"We see this mission as the forerunner of subsequent initiatives."

Winters is visiting Paris for conferences with Canadian trade commissioners stationed in Europe, and for talks with French government authorities on the sale of Canadian uranium for France's growing electrical power needs to be met with nuclear energy.

U.K. Wants Preference

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Wilson would like the Commonwealth to give British bidders a specific preference in awarding contracts that could help exports.

He told the Commons the proposal has been aired at various Commonwealth meetings and will be raised again when Commonwealth trade ministers meet at a date to be set.

While Wilson did not elaborate, a board of trade official said something similar was proposed by Lord Brown, joint trade minister, when he spoke to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce recently.

'ALL B.C. IS A PARK'

Mining Man Stresses Conservation

By AB KENT
Times Business Writer

When a mining engineer starts defending conservationists who are defending virgin parkland from mining exploiters it is like having Satan and Santa on the same team.

Charlie Campbell Jr. is one of those who want the land for the fabulous mineral wealth it contains.

But he wants to spend millions doing it.

He wants to do it so the nature lovers will profit too, so fishermen and campers can enjoy freely for the first time Buttle Lake and Strathcona Park, where Western Mines Ltd. has B.C.'s first park mining rights.

Access roads of highway standard, hydro power generation and an esthetic model industrial town to serve as home for mine families and supply base for tourists—that's what the company is willing to do.

To illustrate Charlie flew a float plane of reporters to Campbell River intending to hop over Campbell Lakes for a look at the Lynx mine and proposed townsites on the south end of Buttle.

MADE HIS POINT

They got stuck at the jumping-off point due to fog, but the company general manager made his point anyway.

Incongruously, he scanned the jagged Coast Range from the window of the plane roaring down Johnson Strait and said:

"All of British Columbia is a park.

"There is an emotional resistance to mining in the parks that must be overcome," Charlie said.

"The conservationists want to protect the wilderness, and rightly so.

"The prime use of the country is recreation.

"Look at it," he shouted above the Beaver's ear-splitting cacophony.

Lose the wilderness? No fear. But it will have to be developed in co-operation with the conservationists and the provincial government, Campbell said.

GOLD PRODUCER

Charlie's father was a mining engineer, and Charlie was once vice-president of Bralorne Pioneer Mines Ltd., one of the richest gold producers in B.C.

You could expect him to be tough, the archtype hard-rock miner.

Maybe it was the altitude; he waxed philosophic.

The concept of resource and recreational development goes beyond Western Mines, he said.

"We have here the opportunity to develop something for society."

ORE TRUCKS

What about the ore trucks wheeling down the access highway to tidewater? Won't they be a hazard to those tourists with their campers and boat trailers?

Not likely, Charlie says. Ore concentrates are so heavy that normal size trailer trucks will make only about seven trips to take care of a day's production.

How about the mine itself—won't it scar the landscape?

Not an underground mine with portals to surface.

And the surface buildings—pretty hard to hide a mill, isn't it?

CEDAR SIDING

Charlie thinks not. Western Mines will use cedar siding on its buildings, which will be architect designed in contemporary style.

"Why not do it right?" he says. "It costs no more than to make a mess of it."

After all, he pointed out, with more than two million tons of ore to come out of the Lynx mine, its value set at more than $100 million, the company is planning for a long and profitable life on Buttle Lake.

TRUCK STRIKE OFFICIAL AS NEW MEETING SET

TORONTO (CP) — The independent Teamsters' Union officially declared a strike Sunday against 55 Ontario trucking companies represented by the Motor Transport Industrial Relations Bureau.

The union's dispute with the trucking companies about a new wage and working agreement began Jan. 20.

Ray Taggart, president of Local 879 in Hamilton and chairman of the union's joint bargaining committee, said in a statement that a meeting of the committee is to be held today "which may or may not be followed by further negotiations with the employers' group.

Hunters Guard Forest Wealth

Successful use of forests by loggers and outdoorsman last year is an outstanding example to Canada, reports MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co.

Except for a major forest fire and some vandalism the season went unmarred as far as Mac-Powell operations are concerned.

The report gives weight to growing demand for multiple use of B.C.'s back country by both industry and persons seeking recreation.

The company recorded 57,361 visits to its woods districts last year, bringing visitor-days since 1963 to 153,476.

Among the outdoor enthusiasts to take advantage of access permitted by the company are fisherman, hunters, photographers, hikers, prospectors and rock-hounds.

More than 3,000 miles of roads were opened to them by Mac-Powell last year—a total distance equivalent to driving from Vancouver to Bermuda.

LARGEST FIRM

The company—Canada's largest forest products firm—built and maintained all of the roads. They are open to the public during non logging daylight hours and over weekends.

Roads are closed during peak periods of forest fire hazard, but there are risks at most other times. A hunter is blamed for a blaze that burned over much valuable timber for several days in the Mount Hkusam area north of Campbell River.

In addition, vandals and thieves damaged property and stole such equipment as chain saws and fire extinguishers from other districts.

Hunters bagged 3,747 deer, 2,793 grouse, 589 other game birds such as ducks and geese, 83 bears, 20 cougars and 12 elk during 1965. Anglers landed 29,848 fish.

The subject of access to privately-controlled forest land or mineral claims is being considered by a legislative committee.

Of current interest is an application by Western Mines Ltd. to erect a model town for its mine families at a point on an access road along the east shore of Buttle Lake, inside Strathcona Park.

Mineral Surveys Estimate Jumps

Special mineral surveys estimate is up by $40,000 in mines and petroleum resources, budget estimates brought in by Premier Bennett Friday indicate.

The increase to $100,000 reflects the current mining boom in B.C., which is expected to accelerate in 1966.

Trying to score against Black Hawks was invitation for thumping in National Hockey League game Sunday night at Chicago. New York's Phil Goyette gave it a try in first period and got hammered away from net by Bill Hay (11) as goalie Glenn Hall blocks net. Hawks were rough on Rangers all night and posted 6-1 win to take over first place. (AP Wirephoto.)

Habs Find No. 13 Antidote for Jinx

Win at Detroit; Hawks in Front As Hull Injured

By Canadian Press

For Montreal Canadiens it seems that 13's the charm. The Habs, unable to gain a National Hockey League victory on Detroit ice for a long time, had to wait until after the 13th loss before being able to notch a win.

Sunday night the Canadiens snapped their 13-game winless streak on Detroit ice by edging the hometowners 4-3. The Hab's last victory in Detroit was Feb. 16, 1964.

And the day Canadiens picked to break the jinx was February 13.

Three of the six weekend games ended in ties. Saturday Detroit Red Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs deadlocked 3-3 and Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks came off 2-2 while New York Rangers trounced Boston Bruins 9-2.

Scorers for New York were Bob Nevin and Jean Ratelle with two goals each and Vic Hadfield, Reg Fleming, Bill Hicke, Earl Ingarfield and Gary Peters. Ron Stewart and Pit Martin tallied for Boston.

HULL SCORES 45TH

Paul Henderson scored twice for the Wings and Norm Ullman got the other. George Armstrong, Ron Ellis and Frank Mahovlich scored for Toronto, were the Montreal marksmen while Bobby Hull and Ken Wharram did the honors for Chicago.

The goal was the 45th for Hull in as many games and he has another 20 in which to smash the NHL record of 50 in a season shared with former Canadiens Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion.

Hull has missed five of Chicago's games due to injuries and seems destined to miss more as a freak accident during Saturday's game is expected to put him out of commission for the next week.

Hull injured his knee when his skate locked with that of Claude Provost.

DETROIT DROPS

However, despite the lack of their super-star, Chicago beat New York 6-1 Sunday to take over sole possession of first place.

Detroit, which went into weekend action tied with the Hawks for first, dropped into a second-place tie with Montreal, two points off the pace with 59. However, Montreal has two games in hand over Chicago and Detroit.

The positions of the last two teams also changed. Going into the weekend, it was New York and Boston second-last but coming out it was a deadlock for the cellar at 32 points each.

Two weekend ties gave Toronto 51 points. The Leafs tied 4-4 with Boston Sunday while the other game of the day was Montreal's win.

SECOND ONE COUNTS

Chicago's lopsided victory came from Chico Maki, who scored two goals, and Ken Wharram, Doug Mohns, Red Hay and Eric Nesterenko who managed one each. Don Marshall scored for the Rangers in the final game, setting the red light ablaze for the second time that evening.

However, the first time the light was lit for him rookie-referee Bruce Hood disallowed the goal, saying the puck had not gone into the net.

Hood also gave and took away a goal from Ranger's Vic Hadfield. The referee at first said there had been a goal but then, after consultation with the goal judge and linesmen, reversed his judgment.

Merry Marcel Steals 'Amateur Night' Glory

MARCEL PELLETIER
. . . star of show

Los Angeles 5, Victoria 3

By DOUG PEDEN

Los Angeles Blades are heading back to sunny California today and it's a good bet they're just counting the hours until Wednesday night.

That's the date of their next Western Hockey League meeting with Victoria Maple Leafs and they know there's an excellent chance they'll get another shot at the Victorians before the Leafs get back to playing like professionals.

Blades caught the Leafs in an "amateur night" performance Saturday at Memorial Arena and the veterans of coach Lynn Patrick made the most of the occasion. They trimmed the Leafs 5-3 in a free-wheeling contest and finally climbed out of the league cellar, moving ahead of San Francisco Seals, who were clipped 5-3 in an interlocking game at Hershey by the American League Bears.

For the Leafs, their third straight defeat on home ice was the climax to an unhappy week. In front or sharing first place since the start of the season until they lost an overtime decision to. Portland Buckaroos here last Wednesday, the Leafs slipped four points back of the Bucks with Saturday's defeat.

However, the Blades took some of the sting off the defeat as they proved Sunday night at Portland that they have something good going for them. They upset the Bucks 3-1 to step three points ahead of the Seals.

While the smallest crowd at Memorial Arena this season watched the Leafs continue a slump that has left them with only a tie in their last five games and one victory in their last seven, many of the 2,535 fans could hardly believe they were seeing the same team that once was threatening to romp to the league title.

Blades Could Afford To Gamble

Apparently gone from the Victoria lineup was the spirit, tenacity and cohesion of earlier games. Missing, too, was the controlled anger that losing usually brings to professionals and the Blades had a merry time roaming in front of the Victoria goal without a worry about spine-rattling checks.

With only a slim hope of grabbing a playoff berth, the Blades are cast in the role of spoilers and can afford to go for broke. Currently they are playing a gambling game, shooting the puck quickly to forwards cruising near centre, hoping for the fast break, the quick goal, and goals in bunches.

It's a system that can upset opponents until adjustments are made. But this time the Leafs never did adjust in the manner of pros against the improved Blades, who showed a remarkable willingness for work. The fact remains that Los Angeles would probably have been held to less than three goals if the Victorians had remembered their defensive fundamentals and pulled together as a team.

Forwards were continually being trapped in the Los Angeles end and sometimes defencemen met the same fate. Making the Victoria forechecking appear all the more amateurish were forwards who several times followed rival puck-carriers behind the Los Angeles goal.

For some of the Leafs, backchecking was a sometimes thing, and on defence most of them seemed afflicted with the hockey malady called "puck magnetism," which at times drew all the Leafs to one side of the ice, leaving one or two Blades skating unmolested in front of goalie Al Millar.

Marcel Loved Every Minute of It

Victoria, of course, had no monopoly on errors. The Blades also made plenty of them and also seemed to agree to a body-checking armistice after Victoria's Jack Chipchase and Bill Orban of the Blades tangled angrily in the opening period.

The result was a wide-open game, filled with individual efforts and wild scrambles for the puck around both goals. Before it was over, spectators had plenty of excitement and the Leafs had owned enough of the play to grab a victory. But they allowed their rivals too many open shots, had too many unlucky bounces near the Los Angeles goal and ran into a red-hot goalie in the flamboyant Marcel Pelletier.

Pelletier was the star of the show and the veteran loved every minute of it, roaming out of his net to make passes or shoot the puck out of danger, shouting orders to his mates and making spectacular saves.

Marcel finished with 47 stops to his credit, missing once in each period. Andy Hebenton, finishing off the most professional play of the night, got the first Victoria goal. Defenceman Aut Erickson bounced a shot past Marcel in the second period and John Sleaver connected in the third.

Millar blocked 29 shots, yielding two goals to Warren Hynes and single tallies to Willie O'Ree, Buddy Boone and Bob Schmautz.

STARS TO RETURN

Leafs have road games at Los Angeles and San Francisco this week and make their next start at home on Feb. 23, against Seattle.

By that time they expect to have back in the lineup Milan Marcetta and Fred Hucul, currently serving a sentence (on orders of Toronto Maple Leafs) at Tulsa. Hucul was sidelined by a minor injury and Marcetta was held pointless for the first time in five games with the Central League club Saturday as Tulsa lost 4-3 to Oklahoma City.

They may intend waiting until their two stars return to start a serious pursuit of Portland, but unless they get back to good fundamentals in the next two tussles the Leafs may find amateurish habits hang on longer than they think.

GOLDEN GLOVES

Desrosiers Takes Title

Victoria sailors would be advised not to get into heated arguments with Fred Desrosiers. He's handy with his fists.

Desrosiers, a tar, knocked the tar out of Tony Jacobs of Portland, Ore., to win the B.C. Golden Gloves welterweight title Saturday at Vancouver.

Another Victorian, Ian Middleditch of Royal Roads, had the misfortune to encounter Dick Findley of Vancouver.

Findley flattened Middleditch en route to three straight victories and the coveted Golden Boy award.

The wins brought Findley's record to 25-10.

Dea's Streak Ends at 548

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Billy Dea of Buffalo Bisons, who had played in a record 548 consecutive games in the American Hockey League, ended his streak Saturday night when he missed the game here against Cleveland Barons.

The left winger was in Edmonton for his father's funeral.

Rossland Skier Produces Lone Triumph for Canada

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Nancy Greene of Rossland, B.C., gave Canada its only victory during the first half of the Canadian international ski championship —first held in Canada under sanction of the International Ski Federation.

Miss Greene captured the women's slalom Saturday by more than three seconds over runner-up Heidi Zimmerman of Austria.

Two Austrians captured other competitions. Christl Haas, 1964 Olympic downhill champ, won the women's giant slalom and Gerhard Nenning earned the men's slalom title. Nenning finished second to Kurt Hugler of Switzerland in the men's giant slalom.

The international competition —to conclude next weekend with an identical schedule at Mont Ste.-Ann, near Quebec City—was attended by large crowds in near - perfect conditions. More than 4,000 fans, largest crowd in the history of this Rocky Mountain resort for an Alpine event, watched the final day of competition.

Miss Greene, 23, was one of only seven to finish two rugged runs Saturday on the 1,000-foot Mount Norquay slalom course. Third behind Miss Zimmerman was Miss Haas, with Karen Dokka of Burnaby, B.C., fourth, Inge Senoner of Italy fifth, Stephanie Townsend of Banff sixth and Heather Quipp of Ottawa seventh.

In the women's giant slalom Sunday Miss Greene fell about halfway down the course and finished fifth, less than two seconds from the lead.

"If I hadn't slipped," she said, "I'd have won. I was having a fine run."

Miss Greene carried an injured ankle into both competitions but showed no effects.

Miss Haas nipped Miss Zimmerman by 1-100 of a second in the giant slalom and Madeleine Bochatay of France was third, 6-100 of a second further back. Burgl Faerbinger of Germany edged Miss Greene for fourth place.

Huggler edged Nenning by only 17-100 of a second for the men's giant slalom title. Ed Bruggman of Switzerland finished third, Louis Jauffret of France fourth and Scott Henderson of Banff fifth.

Peter Duncan of Montreal was ninth, Keith Shepherd of Lake Louise, Alta., 10th and Gerry Rinaldi of Kimberley, B.C., 11th.

Students from 20 nations participated.

One of the gold medals was in a hockey tournament in which the University of Manitoba Bisons finished fourth. Canada was entered only in the hockey event.

Cowper, Lawry Shove Aussies to Safe Spot

MELBOURNE (Reuters) Scoring more than a century each in a massive third wicket stand, Bob Cowper and Bill Lawry steered Australia to virtual safety in the fifth and final test against England here today.

Australia, replying to England's first innings 485 for nine declared, was 333 for three wickets at the close of the third day's play — only three runs short of averting the follow-on.

Cowper hit 159 not out—his highest score in Test cricket—and Lawry scored 108, his third century of the current series. Together they brought their third wicket stand, started Saturday when Australia was 36 for two, to 212 in 323 minutes.

With only two days' play left, the match seemed bound for a draw. With the series score at one match each, England must win this game to regain the mythical Ashes, emblem of world cricket supremacy. Two other matches in the best-of-five series have ended in draws.

Even when England got rid of Lawry with the total of 248, the Australian march went on. Doug Walter (35 not out) joined Cowper in an unfinished fourth wicket stand which put on 85 in 130 minutes to the close.

MEXICO CITY—Vincente Saldivar 124, Mexico, knocked out Floyd Robertson, 124, Ghana, 2. Saldivar retains world featherweight title.

X-Ray for George Royal's Leg

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ernie Hammond, co-owner of George Royal — Canada's horse of the year in 1965 — said today the dark bay colt will be X-rayed to determine what has caused a swelling in the left foreleg.

George Royal was scratched from the $57,000 San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita.

"He was all right last night," Hammond said at his home here.

"This morning he had a swelling in his leg and we decided to scratch him. We don't know what it is — maybe he kicked himself."

Hammond said X-rays will show whether George Royal will be fit for his next scheduled race, at a mile-and-a-half on the turf at Santa Anita next Saturday.

The handicap was won by Hill Rise who came from far back to beat Terry's Secret by half a length. Bold Bidder was third.

Hill Rise stamped himself as a strong threat in the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

A crowd estimated at 53,000 watched the five-year-old Hill Rise take advantage of a duel by Native Diver and Bold Bidder.

Bold Bidder was 2½ lengths back, and pacesetting Native Diver finished well out of the money.

Hill Rise, ridden by Manuel Ycaza for the El Peco Ranch of George A. Pope Jr., earned $34,000 and boosted his lifetime earnings to $624,599.

Bold Bidder, winner of the Charles S. Strub Stakes for four-year-olds two weeks ago, was ridden by Bill Shoemaker and went to the post the favorite.

The time for the 1⅛ miles was 1:47, three-fifths of a second off the track and world record set here by Bug Brush in this same stakes in 1959.

Lord Date and Kentucky Jug hit the finish line in a dead heat in Hialeah's $34,300 Bougainvillea Turf Handicap at Miami. Point du Jour took third money.

Ron Turcotte, a native of Grand Falls, N.B., who made up most of the 123 pounds on Point du Jour, claimed a foul against the first two but it was not allowed.

Sailor Cap took the $23,450-added Francis Scott Key, closing-day feature at Bowie in Maryland.

McGILLIVRAY DAZZLES FIGURE-SKATING FANS

Toronto Skaters in Front

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) David McGillivray of Toronto Saturday won the junior men's figure skating title with an exhibition that seemed more suited to a gymnasium than a rink. But it pulled him from a possible third-place finish to a title in the Canadian championship finals.

He dazzled fans with a pair of triple rotation jumps—a toe loop and a salchow—to steal the lead from Vancouver skater Joe Summerfield, who ended in third place behind Douglas Leigh of North Bay, Ont.

McGillivray's coach, Sheldon Galbraith, said the two jumps had been performed before but never by one competitor in a single competition.

In the junior women's event, Cathy Lee Irwin, 13, of Toronto, combined a winning performance in compulsory figures with an almost-flawless free-skating exhibition for her win. Second was Linda Ewisak of Toronto.

Another clubmate, Judy McLeod, was a close second after the compulsory figures, but dropped to third as a result of mechanical difficulties with the phonograph record to which she was skating.

Heather Fraser of Victoria finished 16th.

The one bright spot for the west was the performance of Vancouver skaters Joni Graham and Don Phillips, who won the dance finals with their free-dance performance.

They had already won the compulsory dance and edged Janet Cowling and Thomas Falls, both of Toronto. In third place were Maureen Peever and Bruce Lennie, both of Newmarket, Ont.

Blades Stay Sharp —Cut Down Bucks

Lowly Los Angeles Blades are making the most of their recent helter-skelter tactics to foul up contenders for the Western Hockey League title.

Playing a wide-open, gambling game, the Blades followed up a 5-3 victory over second-place Victoria Saturday by upsetting the pace-setting Buckaroos 3-1 Sunday before 8,200 fans.

Portland had defeated Vancouver Canucks 4-2 Saturday night.

Meanwhile, American Hockey League clubs dominated the WHL on both sides of the continent.

SEALS IN CELLAR

San Francisco Seals, now in the WHL basement, fell 5-2 at Hershey Saturday night and 6-3 at Providence Sunday. First-place Quebec Aces beat Seattle Totems 5-3 before the second largest crowd of the season at the west coast city, 7,000 fans.

Portland's loss was the first in eight games and the third at home this season. Willie O'Ree, with his 25th goal, Leo Labine and Bob Schmautz scored for Los Angeles. Gerry Goyer scored his 26th for Portland.

7,000 AT HERSHEY

Saturday Fred Hilts scored twice for the winners before 8,700 at Portland and Goyer and Connie Madigan got the others. Wayne Larkin and Gordon Vajprava got the Vancouver goals.

More than 7,000 Hershey fans saw the Bears win and San Francisco lose its fifth straight game.

Jim Mikol scored two of the winning goals before 2,800 Providence fans. Rookie Jules Bouchard, Eddie Kachur, Bob Leduc and Jim Bartlett scored one each. Seals' goals were by Wayne Connelly, Wayne Maxner and Gerry Brisson.

United Explosion Blasts Royals 7-2

VANCOUVER — Don't close that coffin lid yet, because it looks like Victoria United has no intention of giving up the ghost on its Pacific Coast Soccer League playoff chances.

Clicking right from the start, United rolled up its most impressive victory in years in Vancouver's Callister Park when they stomped on New Westminster Royals 7-2 Sunday.

"That's the best I've ever seen United play in Vancouver," declared happy Victoria manager Fred Magee.

Victory boosted United into a fifth-place tie with Royals, one point behind Burnaby Villa. It also gives United a big boost in its drive for one of the league's four playoff spots.

GOOD SCHEDULE

"The balance of our schedule is a good one," said Magee, "so I think we've got a good chance of claiming one of the playoff spots."

Five of Victoria's remaining eight games will be played at home. That includes two games each with Columbus and the Royals and one with St. Andrews. United's remaining Vancouver dates are with Firefighters, North Shore and St. Andrews.

THREE FOR IKE

Barrie Mansell and Metro Gerela scored Royals' goals, one in each half. United led 3-1 at the half.

And strange as it may seem, it was a brilliant defensive play that ignited Victoria's big explosion. That came at the 12-minute mark when Victoria goalie Barry Sadler made a brilliant, diving save to turn aside a hard shot by Joe Alexis of the Royals.

The ball was cleared downfield to Ball. The inside relayed it to Jim Jamieson who, in turn, passed to MacKay. The rookie finished off the brilliant combination by scoring United's first goal.

Victory did not come without a price. United, already missing the services of Jim Schulz (away in Edmonton) and Tony Quinn (injured leg), lost Jamieson in the second half. He suffered a broken toe in his left foot.

In games Saturday, Columbus moved into a tie for second place with UBC by defeating the Thunderbirds 3-1 on goals by Steve Djorich, Sergio Berti and George Zambrano.

Burnaby jumped into fourth at the same time by clipping North Shore Luckies 4-1.

The 38-year-old veteran from Lost Tree Village, Fla., has put together rounds of 66-69-71—206 over the 6,765-yard Phoenix Country Club course, a par 36-35 layout which has baffled the bulk of the field.

Nanaimo's bantams grabbed a three-goal lead in their Island series with Victoria, defeating the Cougars 3-0 at Memorial Arena. The series winds up Wednesday in Nanaimo.

Goalies Brett Kneen of Nanaimo and Ken Broadland of Victoria were standouts in Saturday's juvenile game.

Accuracy Is Accidental As Chinooks Bow Again

VANCOUVER — They pass. They run. They check. They dribble. But shoot?

Victoria Chinooks shoot alright, but their relationship with the hoop is purely hearsay.

Because they can't dunk the doughnut, Chinooks are down 2-0 today to UBC Jayvees. One more loss at Victoria Friday at Central Junior High, would leave Chinooks high, dry and out of the Intercity Junior Men's Basketball League title hunt.

Jayvees pulverized Chinooks 53-29 at Vancouver Saturday in the second game of their best-of-five final.

IT WAS EASY

How?

"Easy," said Harold Turner, manager of Chinooks. "They brought the ball down, worked it until a man was free and scored. We brought the ball down, worked it, took a shot and missed. Not one guy did this—all 11 couldn't hit."

No one is more surprised than Turner, unless it's coach Ollie Goldsmith. Why one of the finest basketball machines in the country suddenly can't turn on the tap is an enigma within a mystery.

Not in three years has any team—and this includes senior clubs — held Chinooks to 29 points. Their Ken Jackson, a league first string all-star, was third high scorer over the season. Now inexplicably even Jackson has found the cage unfriendly.

JACKSON HELD TO FOUR

Jackson has not been aided too much of course by Bob Molinski. The Jayvee guard, designated to discomfort Jackson by clinging to him like a leach, has done his job well. Jackson scored four (4) points, an unheard of low production for him.

To make matters worse the other Chinooks operating under less restricted circumstances aren't hitting.

Ron Bowker, who played an otherwise excellent game, found the mesh for only six points. Bob Brampton of the soft floaters managed eight digits. Barney Spaven, tireless on rebounds and a sharp shooter when he's in the mood, collected only six. And so on.

Perhaps shooting isn't the entire problem.

T ner said as much when he admitted Chinooks were "not as strong as they have been" in gathering offensive rebounds.

As they say "you don't control the boards, you don't win." Especially when you're gunners are cold. More than ever that's the time when you need that second or third whack at the target.

CHINNOKS—Rick Humber 1, Don Frampton 8, Ken Jackson 4, Ron Stubbings 2, Barney Spaven 6, Doug Gregory 2, Ron Bowker 6, Brian McIntyre, Barry Burch, Barry Turner, Brian Brumwell. Total: 29.

JAYVEES—Joe Kalner 12, Bob Molinski 6, Sam Vandemeulen 16, Ken Kern 2, Dave Rice 17, Phil Langley, Reinhardt Blumenscheit, Glenn Carter, Alan Quinn. Total: 53.

All Work and No Pay For Scottish, Luckies

It was all work and no reward for Canadian Scottish and Luckies in Province Cup soccer play Sunday.

The District League sides battled for two-and-a-half hours at Heywood Avenue Park Sunday. After it was over, they were exactly where they started.

Their 3-3 deadlock included an hour of overtime play and forces a replay next Sunday at Central Park.

Hourigan Kickers and Gorge Molsons didn't work as hard, yet moved into the semefinals of district playoffs. Kickers outgunned Navy 7-4 in a free-scoring affair at Central on Sunday afternoon while Gorge nipped Brodies 1-0 on a goal by inside left Brian Figgins.

Kickers now face Victoria West, which drew the opening-round bye, while Gorge has to wait for a winner from the Scottish-Luckies' replay.

Scottish and Luckies were tied 2-2 at the end of the regulation time Sunday.

Ced Robb scored twice for Carl Pedersen's Luckies, including the overtime goal, while Mauriee Bunyan got the other. Ron Jenkins, Russ Lamb and Ron Stubbings, in that order, pulled the trigger on Scottish scoring shots.

Hank DeBruin was the big man for Kickers. He scored four goals. Mernford Heyer, Gunter Beyer and Jurgen Stossel also counted for Kickers.

Navy scorers were John Latham, Jack Strachan, Peter Umenwofer and Ian Stewart.

Esquimalt continued its unbeaten march through the second division, blanking Colony Inn Lions 3-0 on goals by John Tregear (2) and Gil McIlraith.

In other second division games Sunday, second-place University Vikings nipped Gorge 3-2 and Victoria West tied Sidney Hotel 2-2.

Gerry Booth scored two goals for Vikings while Tony Fontenello added the other. Playing-coach Larry Decosta and Kurt Clark counted for Gorge.

West scorers were Dennis Wing and Dave Bishop. John Sam and Dave Paul scored for Sidney.

Second Look For Writers

CHICAGO (AP) — Closed circuit television for the benefit of sports writers covering Chicago Bears football games in Wrigley Field will be installed this fall, owner-coach George Halas announced Saturday.

The object is to give writers an opportunity to view important plays on instant playback of the action.

Halas said he will make a suggestion at this week's National Football League meeting in Miami that all league teams install press box television facilities.

Impressive Field In Island Tourney

Tournament officials are branding the annual Vancouver Island open badminton championships a "Parade of Champions."

And rightly so.

One of the strongest contingents of national titleholders ever to play here at one time has entered the Island tournament, to be run off this week at Cordova Bay Community Hall.

Play starts tonight at 7 with a full slate of first-round handicap matches involving players from the Victoria and Duncan areas.

Nanaimo and other up-Island players will be required to play their first matches Thursday while the "big guns" from Vancouver, Seattle and Port Angeles will step into action on Friday.

In all, over 140 players are entered.

Finals in the week-long tournament will be run off next Sunday.

Tonight's draw:

7 p.m.—Bob McMynn vs. Dave Bishop; L. Palson and R. Johnson vs. B. Law and J. Lequenne; Bob Lewis vs. Pete Isbister.

7:30—Ken Cartwright vs. Rich O'Neil; Dave Haime vs. John Meija.

8—H. Murdock and H. Mulholm vs. E. Schmelz and B. McMynn; R. and F. Branting vs. K. Tsey and R. Atkinson; I. Lap and R. Brousseau vs. P. Knott and D. Sluggett.

8:30—F. Pugh and B. Lewis vs. L. McLean and J. Meija; E. Mellor and K. Vinden vs. J. and P. Isbister.

9—V. Mowat and J. Bryant vs. G. and A. Wharton; S. Atkinson and C. Faulkner vs. I. Beale and B. Powell.

FOLLOW U.S. GUIDELINES

Grits 'Bend in the Wind'

By KEN CLARK

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative leaders sounded off against the Liberal government's stand on U.S. economic guidelines at the weekend annual meeting of the Progressive Conservative Student Federation.

Some 200 university students heard George Hees, member of Parliament for Northumberland, say retaliation promised by the Liberal government if the U.S. guidelines hurt Canada would be too late.

He said the U.S. must be made to understand that Canada should be exempted from the guidelines, which aim at restricting U.S. foreign investment.

Mr. Hees, a former cabinet minister, also said the Liberals' "disastrous' tight-money policy should be halted.

Davie Fulton, another former Conservative cabinet minister, said a responsible Canadian nationalism will not be created by a government that accepts as the basis for Canadian corporate activity guidelines laid down by a foreign government.

Foreign capital, although welcome in Canada, "must act as Canadian,' he said.

'BENDS IN WIND'

Conservative Leader Diefenbaker said the guidelines have shown the Liberal government bends in the wind by accepting a proposition that undermines the Canadian economy.

Dalton Camp of Toronto, national president of the Conservative Association, said Canada is learning something about the realities of its economic life.

"We now are in a position whereby we must accept the policies devised in the interests of another country, but operative in our own," he said. Canada had been dominated for a generation by the continentalists.

Student delegates split 50-50 on the question of retaining the death penalty. Sixty per cent answered a questionnaire on the issue, soon to come to a free vote in the Commons.

Delegates voted 26-16 to support the U.S. position in Viet Nam and to urge the Canadian government to extend non-military assistance to the government of South Viet Nam.

Also approved was a resolution that spending on education should take priority over further spending on welfare programs.

The federation urged that bursary and other programs be expanded to help those in need. Delegates steered away from advocating free tuition.

The federation also supported the national government-sponsored medical care insurance plan but insisted it be voluntary. The government should pay premiums for the needy.

The federation also called for a conference of federal and provincial delegates to discuss how the Canadian constitution can be amended in Canada. The constitution should "incorporate the just political, social and cultural aspirations' of French Canada.

Another resolution called for the removal of the six-per-cent interest ceiling on loans by chartered banks. Other Bank Act revisions were proposed.

Michael Vineberg, 21, a McGill political science student, was elected federation president, succeeding Joe Clark of Edmonton.

STRENGTH SQUELCHES CRITICISM

Nigeria Quiet After Military Takeover

By KENNETH L. WHITING

LAGOS (AP) — Life has returned to what passes for normal in Nigeria, Africa's most populous country, a month after the military revolt.

Nigerians discuss the policies of the new military governor, Maj. - Gen. J. T. U. Aguiyi-Ironsi, while sipping palm wine between glances at British or U.S. programs on television.

Few soldiers are seen. The police, who seemed to disappear during the uprising, have again taken up their duties. Trade union leaders who have led two general strikes in three years are promising industrial peace.

Many civil servants have adopted a smug and righteous attitude since the army ousted cabinet ministers and most political appointees.

Prices of staple foodstuffs like rice and plantains increased after the revolt, but were rolled back under army orders. Market mammies complain that persons wearing "military-looking uniforms" demand free food.

Roadblocks inside the cities have been lifted.

Village petitions for "pipe-borne water and other amenities" now are sent to military authorities instead of politicians.

Nigerian newspapers, most of them shrill political organs before the coup, now use much space praising the military regime.

Mail is no longer opened for inspection, as it was for a week after the revolt. But the government cable office exercises strict censorship on news dispatches. All references to tribalism or corruption in the old government are deleted. Only flattering descriptions of the military rulers are accepted. (This story was sent by air mail.)

Schools opened on schedule for the spring semester. College students have so far obeyed a military rule against shouting party slogans, carrying placards or holding political meetings.

AGONIZING DEATH FOR DOG

POISONINGS START AGAIN

'All of a Sudden Her Hind Legs Went Stiff'

By GLEN ALLEN

Lady, a friendly two-year-old Shetland sheep dog, died a horrible death Friday night.

Her owners, Sid and Barbara Hayward, 52 Cadillac, have been told she was poisoned.

"She's the third in a month and about the twelfth in two years to die from strychnine poisoning on our street," says Mr. Hayward.

"We went around to tell the neighbors she had died and learned about the others.

"It was horrible. Our nieces and nephews had just come from Edmonton to visit us.

"Lady had been in and out with them all day. When she came in for the night, all of a sudden her hind legs went stiff. It looked like she was trying to swallow her tongue.

"She died in the taxi," says Barbara. "She was my baby."

Dr. M. L. Olsen said he assumed Lady died from strychnine poisoning.

"Though I haven't done an autopsy on her, I think from the symptoms they describe that's what it must have been."

He said there are epidemics of it from time to time.

"I don't know what brings it on—either misplaced rat poison or something more deliberate."

It looks strangely like "something deliberate" in the area bounded by Cadillac and Rowland Avenues.

A random check by house call and telephone revealed many householders who had lost their dogs and cats in mysterious circumstances in the past few years.

Elaine Canham, 85 Cadillac, whose year-old Labrador died last Christmas, said her vet confirmed the dog was killed by strychnine.

"She was a very friendly puppy," says Mrs. Canham.

"We can't believe anyone would kill her on purpose.

"We think somebody is setting poison out on the street but we can't prove it.

"What we're really worried about now is the children getting it.

"We're going to get a German Shepherd next week. If anything happens to it, so help me . . ."

Mrs. Canham's neighbor, Mrs. Elaine Nixon, 71 Cadillac, also lost a Labrador at Christmas on the same day.

Mrs. Nixon said she knew of five cases of suspected poisoning of dogs from Rowland Avenue.

Another woman on Cadillac who declined to give her name said, "I've been here nine years, and it's happened every year without fail. Always several dogs and a few cats."

Mrs. Edna Waddington, 41 Cadillac, said she had lost her cat by poisoning and had heard of other cats dying the same way.

A woman on Rowland who did not wish her name published said her dog was poisoned by strychnine two years ago.

"The vet saved him once, but the second time he didn't pull through.

"We won't get another pet. Why get them if they're going to die that way.

"All we have now is mice."

Thieves Blast Wall; Get $403 From Safe

TOPICS of the DAY

Thieves used a crowbar to jimmy a door at Marshall Wells Hardware, Royal Oak Plaza, where two appliances were taken over the weekend.

Saanich police said a $50 radio and a $400 television set were taken.

Two young thieves were sentenced to one-year and six-month terms after they pleaded guilty to a pair of break-ins.

They got quantities of cigarettes and confections when they broke into Brand's Restaurant, 1009 Government, and Fernwood Purity Store, 2009 Fernwood last month.

Pennock received the 12-month sentence.

Magistrate William Ostler termed him as the "principal instigator and ringleader of these activities."

It will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Sands Mortuary, Quadra St.

Police said she was struck by a pick-up truck as she crossed Pat Bay Highway on foot near Piedmont Drive.

They identified the driver of the truck as Allan Gordon Smith, 32, of 6603 Tunstead Rd., Central Saanich.

Police said Mrs. Petrie was crossing to get to her car parked on the other side of the road.

Canadian coins valued at $39 were taken from the apartment of R. A. Gaundry, 2622 Quadra, city police said today.

The theft is believed to have occurred sometime last week.

Professional Job Pulled At Auto Firm

A Sunday night safecracking at National Motors, 819 Yates, netted thieves $403.

A hole was blown in the wall next to the walk-in vault to get at the money in two metal cash boxes.

Two other city businesses were broken into during the weekend.

Nothing was taken from a safe at United Auto Wrecking, 420 Bay Street, and cutting torches were taken from Jim Dandy Cleanup Service, 3252 Irma.

Police said the safe jobs were done "by professionals or a professional."

Thursday night a blown safe at Palm Dairies Ltd., 930 North Park Street, yielded $400 and a quantity of milk tokens.

Entry to the auto dealer's premises was gained by forcing a roof window at the rear of the building.

KNOCKED DIAL OFF

The yeggs first knocked the dial off the safe and drilled a hole near the door spindle.

A small amount of forcite was inserted in the ¼-inch hole but a blast attempt proved unsuccessful, police said.

So two holes were drilled in the wall adjoining the door and another opening was blasted out about three feet up from the floor.

CRAWLED THROUGH

Thieves were then able to crawl through the opening into the vault where they found the two cash boxes.

No attempt was made on a smaller safe inside the vault, police said.

Police found three metal drilling bits at the scene and two men's socks.

Thieves entered the auto wreckers' premises by pushing out a plywood section on a rear door.

JIMMIED

They carried a filing cabinet-type safe from the front office to the rear of the building and jimmied it with a small crowbar.

A desk in the main office was also ransacked.

They got into the cleaning establishment by forcing a rear window. Taken was 50 feet of hose and cutting torches, regulators and gauges.

FOUND BY BOYS

Meanwhile, two boys have been credited with the discovery of the cash box taken from the Palm Dairies safecracking.

The box was found Saturday by Glen Isberg, eight, of 1238 Vista Heights, and Jim Clarkson, 12, of 1215 Montrose.

They found it in blackberry bushes near Smith's Hill reservoir.

Police recovered $54.11 in milk tokens found in the box and bushes nearby. The $400 was gone.

Fire Chief, Inspectors Take Stock of School

Mother Sounds Warning Against Hasty Action on Alternatives

Fire Chief James Allen and several city inspectors this morning carried out a safety inspection of North Ward School.

They said later that they would make their report to the school board and it would be up to the board whether to make it public.

The board was to meet this afternoon with city council to discuss the future of North Ward School.

The 72-year-old school has been under fire during the past week from parents of pupils. They are concerned about the safety of their children in the ancient, dilapidated building.

They are pressing the city to rush urban renewal plans in order to clear a site on which a new school can be built. The school board has been waiting four years for the new school site.

Mayor Toone last week suggested the board provide alternative accommodation for students until the new school is built.

SHIFT SYSTEM

But this morning one of the parents warned against any hasty action in transferring children from the school.

Mrs. Irene Rowan, 2721 Rock Bay, said that if North Ward youngsters were transferred to other schools it would result in a shift-system of classes.

"This would be bad not only for our children but for the other children. And it is out of the question to put North Ward students in such places as the Arena, or the Armoury or Holyrood House as has been suggested."

Mrs. Rowan said these places have no facilities for teaching and no equipment.

"Our children would be worse off than if they stayed where they are.

"If the city inspectors say the present school is structurally sound and safe—or could be made safe with a few repairs—then the children should stay there until a new school is built."

Mrs. Rowan said the safety checks should be made thoroughly.

"I know when we have Home and School Association meetings we can't plug in two appliances at once without blowing a fuse."

BOYCOTT

Mrs. Rowan said "a large number of parents" she has talked to "are quite serious when they threaten to keep their youngsters away from school because of the conditions there."

Ask The Times

Q. How much beer or how many ounces of rye whisky would the average person have to consume to show .05 per cent blood-alcohol content? A. B.

A. A 150-pound man would have to drink at least 2.5 ounces of hard liquor or one and three-quarter bottles of beer to attain this reading.

Or he could also drink seven ounces of wine, says city police breathalyzer expert Sgt. Dick Ward.

But all this depends on the condition of the man's stomach, he points out.

To illustrate this, he referred to a recent test taken here among men who were being trained as breathalyzer operators.

One man had a light breakfast of toast and another had one pound of fried cod. Each drank six ounces of hard liquor over a four-hour period.

The man who ate toast rose rapidly to a .07 reading while the other remained at .03 per cent.

Both eliminated their alcohol at the same rate of .015 per cent per hour.

PARK TOWN OPPOSED BY DIRECTOR

Harold McWilliams, director of the provincial parks branch, today strongly opposed the proposal to put Western Mines townsite inside Strathcona Park.

He told a special legislative committee he is adamantly opposed to the company's request to locate a townsite for its employees near the mine at Buttle Lake Narrows on about 300 acres of forested lakeshore.

"A townsite would be entirely foreign in a naturalistic park," he told the committee.

"The scarcity of useable land along the shore of Buttle Lake makes it imperative that every available section be retained for recreational use."

Mr. McWilliams said the townsite should be located outside the park border, about 30 miles from the mine, on property that could be bought from Elk Timber Company.

Sea of Trouble Awaits The Unskilled Skindiver

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

Playing "Seahunt" is a favorite game with young television buffs, but "parents beware, it's a deadly game."

The warning came today from Art Burgess, YM-YWCA physical director, as the water-sports season approaches.

Skindiving is no game. Its a serious sport and can be dangerous.

The "Y official said one of the dangers lies on store shelves—the underwater masks and fins. Some are poorly made and cheap.

●

"We might as well make firearms readily available to children because they couldn't be any more lethal," he said.

Handled with care—controlled training, discipline and respect—skindiving is a pleasant sport.

To promote underwater safety and fellowship among enthusiasts, the "Y" has formed the Aqua-Knights Skindiving Club.

Strict qualifications must be met by prospective members. The applicant has to have a "Stage 5" swimmer's badge (accredited proficient swimmer) and must be a mature individual.

"There's no room for horsing around, here," Mr. Burgess said.

The trainee must learn 25 water skills with emphasis on safety and endurance.

He learns underwater-life basics, marine safety, first aid and then is taught the "skill of skindiving."

The training is done in the "Y" pool. The trainee must pass rigorous tests.

The club has been in operation eight months and so far has restricted the use of SCUBA gear.

"Early SCUBA (Self-Contined Underwater Breathing Apparatus) use kills most novices," Mr. Burgess said.

"If you go underwater with SCUBA gear without complete training, you literally take your life in your hands.

●

"You should have at least one year of skindiving first."

During the year "Y" instructors add spice to the training by organizing spear-fishing competitions for the 24 club members.

A meet on Sunday at Horseshoe Bay at Beacon Hill Park was suspended 30 minutes after it started because of rough seas and wind. It will be rescheduled.

"We don't take any chances," Mr. Burgess said.

Sermons and Hymns Strictly Dullsville Youths Tell Elders

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Church services are dull and boring. Many of the hymns are meaningless and most of the sermons are out of touch with the times.

Such were the opinions of teen-agers attending a conference on church worship in the Fellowship Hall of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, Sunday night.

They were among 35 youngsters of different church denominations who were asked to contribute to a discussion on Why People Don't Go to Church.

"We asked for frank opinions and we got them," said Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of St. David's and organizer of a 10-week course on worship sponsored by the Anglican Diocesan Board of Religious Education.

The teen-agers came up with these objections:

Most church services are over their heads and they get no inspiration from them. The Bible readings are phrased in a language they don't understand. Many of the hymns are meaningless and the tunes are dull and old-fashioned. The sermons are long-winded and concerned with people who belong to the past.

"The relationships between young people and adults in church life are very poor," said a university student.

"The older people are satisfied with the form of worship because they have grown up with it and don't want anything different.

'SUSPICIOUS'

"Many are suspicious of the younger generation and there is a lack of trust and understanding between them."

Another student said adult churchgoers underestimate what young people can do and give them little opportunity to express themselves creatively.

Some 25 adults taking part in the discussion were outnumbered by the 35 teen-agers.

"We were frankly surprised at some of the views expressed by the young people," Mr. Walker said, "but we hope they continue to give us honest opinions. The church must keep pace with the times and its future rests with the younger generation."

Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria, participated in the discussion with representatives of Anglican, United and Baptist congregations.

DRASTIC CHANGES

He said the Roman Catholic Church has made drastic revisions in its form of worship in order to relate itself to the modern world and to other Christian churches.

"English is replacing Latin in the celebration of the mass and this trend is likely to continue," Monsignor O'Connell said.

"The priest no longer conducts Holy Communion with his back to the congregation. He faces the congregation in dialogue with the people.

"The trend is towards a more intimate type of worship."

Father Pierre Berger, Roman Catholic chaplain at the Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Rd., will speak at a second conference in the Fellowship Hall, Cordova Bay, tonight at 7:45.

The discussions will continue every Sunday, Monday and Wednesday for 10 weeks.

Discussion leaders are John Lort, chief librarian at Victoria Public Library; Alan Newberry, principal of Sooke Elementary School; Faith Lort, Win Life and Mr. Walker.

Man Injures Leg, Hip In Collision

A man was rushed to hospital Saturday afternoon with leg and hip injuries following a two-car collision at Bay and Tyee Rd.

In fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital is Robert Halbert, 26, of 65 Kingham Place.

Police stid he was driving east on Bay when in collision with an auto driven by Margaret Bradley, 1259 Richardson, as she was turning from Bay to Tyee Road.

In another weekend accident, Herbert Arthur Stark, 20, of 1424 Hillside, escaped with only a cut hand when he flipped his sports car Sunday morning.

Police said his car was found upside down in a ditch off the Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream Park.

He was heading south on the highway at the time of the mishap.

Girl Breaks Leg In Beach Fall

A 13-year-old girl suffered a fractured leg following a fall Sunday at a Dallas Rd. beach near Wellington St.

Police said Dorothy Louise Smith, 13, of 100 Wellington, suffered a severe fracture of the left leg above the knee.

FUNERAL TUESDAY FOR SLAIN CHILD

Funeral services for seven-year-old Linda Crocker, slain near her Brentwood home Thursday, will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

They will be held in Brentwood College Chapel followed by interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Crocker, 6875 Woodward Dr., and is also survived by a brother and sister.

The pretty, blonde youngster was found strangled and beaten on a rock bluff a quarter of a mile from her home Thursday evening.

Police have charged a 16-year-old youth in connection with the slaying. He will re-appear in juvenile court Wednesday.

Central Saanich coroner D. G. Ashby said today an autopsy revealed the tot's death was caused by "asphyxiation, shock and multiple injuries."

He added he "couldn't say" whether or not she was sexually assaulted.

The girl was found only partially clothed after a search was instigated when she failed to return home after playing with school chums.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Insufficient Evidence

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently, someone I know very well (I'll call her Vera), made a 6,000-mile round trip in order to be with her daughter when she gave birth to her first baby. Vera stayed 10 days, leaving her own husband at home with a heart condition. He didn't want her to make the trip, but Vera convinced him that she had to go. Vera returned exhausted. I told her that she should have stayed home and sent her daughter the money to hire a competent helper. And later on, she could have made the trip with her husband to see the daughter and new grandchild. Vera insisted that her presence at the time of the child's birth was necessary and appreciated, and she had no choice but to go. What do you think?

"CURIOUS."

DEAR CURIOUS: I would have to know more about the husband's "heart condition," and how he really felt about Vera's making the trip. Also more about the relationship between Vera and her daughter and their respective financial situations. I would also have to know how accurate your reporting is, who YOU are, and why you are so "curious."

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend, a married woman, who has a collection of hub caps you wouldn't believe. She said she "bought" some, and others were given to her, but I found out different. Last evening I saw this woman walk over to the curb, take a screwdriver out of her purse, and remove the hub caps from a parked car. What would you do in a case like this?

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Your friend is a thief. Tell her what you know and urge her to stop "collecting" before she collects a jail sentence.

DEAR ABBY: I seldom saw my daughter studying, so I wasn't too surprised when she brought home a warning that she was failing in two subjects. Her teacher called and asked me to come to school for a private conference. I did, and this is what I learned:

My daughter had told the teacher she was failing in school because of her "home situation." She said her father and mother fight constantly about bills, and his drinking. Also that I sleep all day and she (the child) has to do all the cooking and housekeeping. Abby, I just don't know what to do about this because there is not one word of truth in it. My husband and I get along very well. I am a competent cook and housekeeper and neither my husband nor I drink. Why on earth would a child make up such wild tales? Can you help me?

FLABBERGASTED

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Whether your daughter is just an imaginative storyteller or is psychologically disturbed is something you should look into. If her school provides a counselling service for "problem children," utilize it. If not, ask your family doctor or pediatrician for his recommendation.

Let's hit the waistline again! If you have a slim waist you will feel younger and look slimmer even if you have a few pounds to lose. This is the measurement which gives your silhouette either a youthful or a middle-aged appearance, perhaps more than any other.

The abdominal muscles play a part in the size of the waist. This exercise is fairly difficult but I think that many of you are now ready for it. It is slimming to the waist and flattening to the abdomen. Lie on your back on the floor with your legs straight and your arms extending straight out from the shoulders, palms toward the floor. Now swing your legs like the pendulum of a clock, knees stiff, first as far to the right as you can go and then as far to the left, and continue.

WHY GROW OLD?

How Many Calories Will Maintain Ideal Weight

Here we are with February well launched and speeding along. Lovely spring clothes are already winking at us from store windows, reminding us of the soft, lovely, romantic days just ahead. They also remind us that if we are to do the clothes justice we will have to work on any bulges and rolls, overweight and droops we may have.

Lowman

This is the sixth week of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan. Those of you who have been following it from the first must be happy by now, but don't settle for less than the best. Keep on until you have reached your goal.

Many of you started late and have several weeks longer than two to go.

Anyway, by now many of you are beginning to wonder how many calories you should have in order to maintain your ideal weight once you have reached it. When calculating the number of calories you will need, you must consider two factors. First is the so-called minimum calorie need or the number of calories required just to keep your body functioning. Second are the calories needed for your daily activities, work and play.

The minimum calorie need is influenced by age, size, and the composition of the body. Larger folks need more calories than smaller folks to keep the body running. Men usually need more than women and older people fewer than younger ones. The number of calories required for your activities, of course, depends on the kind of activity and the length of time you indulge in it.

You can get a general idea of how many calories you need to maintain your ideal weight if you are moderately active by multiplying it by 18 if you are a woman and by 21 if you are a man. If you are quite active you will need about one-fourth more calories. If most of your work or life is sedentary you will need about one-fourth fewer calories.

Here is today's sample menu for those of you who want to lose 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks or about 2½ pounds a week.

Look and Feel Better In This Cosy Sweater

By Penny Saver

Thinking of the staccato pace that people today are trying to maintain, the ideal name for our world would be the "a-go-go" world. There seems to be no time at all to sit still, as something pressing is always around the corner. Women in particular are always "on the go." After a day spent shopping, or a hard day at the office, it is difficult for a woman to come home and feel in the mood for starting her chores. I have found that it helps considerably to dress in something feminine and comfortable after such a day. If you look better, you feel better.

In one shop, I spotted perky skirt-toppers that are a boom to my wardrobe. These are the new shell sweaters, made of washable orlon. Shells have been on the market now for quite some time, but the new styles for 1966 have marked a change in these sweaters.

Completely adorable crocheted wonders are a 'must' at $3.98 to $14.95. The colors are so soft that you feel better just looking at them. Shades are blues, pinks and white. Some sweaters are plain in color scheme but not in style.

I was surprised to find the high, turtle-neck collar appearing on these sleeveless creations. These have a small zipper in the back. Others still retain the dainty rounded neckline, with the buttoned back.

Necklines and sleeves are edged with heavy crocheting. In some, this edging is done in another color, to perk up the sweater. Others have the same crochet work appearing on the waistband. This new look in the shell world will do wonders for your after-five wardrobe. Pick one up and see for yourself.

Some women prefer a little luxury item to boost their spirits. These articles are those which you buy after saving "for a rainy day", as the saying goes.

My morale booster is a hand-woven handbag. These charmers are made right here in Victoria, by skilled craftsmen. They feature a gold chain and clasp, and sell for $20. Buy one to match a coat or suit. You'll be glad you did.

Remember, if you want to know where Penny shopped for these spirit-lifting items, give her a call at 382-3131.

Annual IODE Festival Scores Record High

The brick and gold-papered walls of the McPherson Playhouse have witnessed some outstanding performances in their time. But even those silent onlookers would agree that the performance they witnessed Saturday — both on-stage and in the lounges — would have to be the most gigantic, most colorful and possibly the best-received spectacular they have ever contained!

Playing to a record crowd (the "gate" for the afternoon was $4,000), this year's IODE festival, sponsored by the Victoria Municipal and primary chapters, went "all out" in providing enjoyment for all — in stalls, refreshment and entertainment.

The playhouse has often resounded with the laughter and applause from many an appreciative audience and Saturday was no exception. The review, "1866 and All That" kept the accent on entertainment in the two performances presented.

The stage rocked with the melodious sounds of Vanessa Lax and Bill Hosie and the intricate steps of Sylvia Hosie and Paul Blakey as they attempted to "raise the roof" with songs and dances from "The Boy Friend." Instead, they "nearly brought the house down" with laughter and cheers as the delighted audience called them again and again for encores.

MUSICAL TRIP

Lending a quieter air to the program was the soprano voice of Miss Erica Kurth, who led the audience on a musical trip through the years from Elizabethan days to this century, with vocal numbers from "Showboat."

Harry Hill, her accompanist, was also master of ceremonies, and had the assembly almost "rolling in the aisles" with prime examples of his master wit in a "burlesque of composers."

In the second performance, the emphasis was on youth, the Uplands School choir led by Mrs. Lorna Griffiths captivating its audience with a variety of songs. Thomas Tucker conducted the Greater Victoria Schools Junior Symphony Orchestra. They kept all spellbound as they performed numbers from the classes and more modern compositions.

In the upper and lower lounges, the stage was set with a wealth of stalls and booths to make any bargain-hunter's dreams come true. The only decorations festooning the gold-tinted walls were artists' palettes, splashed with color, directing guests to the particular stalls set about the walls or to the "continuing" coffee party area in the centre of the upper foyer.

The unique signs were designed especially for the festival by students in the Kootenay School of Art in Nelson, B.C.

A valentine theme was the high point of the head table, however, which was centred with a large arrangement of red roses and carnations, set with hearts.

AT HEAD TABLE

Special guests at the festival seated at the head table included Alderman Lily Wilson, who opened the affair; Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mrs. Waldo Skillings, Alderman and Mrs. Robert Baird — and representing the IODE, municipal regent Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, municipal vice-regent, Miss Christine MacNab, and Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, vice-regent of municipal and provincial chapters respectively, and Mrs. A. B. Hall, Nanaimo, provincial vice-regent. Greeting the guests and convening the affair was Mrs. Harold Menzies.

Valentine's Day also crept into the decoration themes of several of the stalls — including home cooking.

It's well-known that the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach and Mrs. J. A. Church, Mrs. R. R. Jeffels and members of the Robert Burns McMicking Chapter IODE took full advantage of the fact. Not only did they use silhouettes of Dan Cupid himself, swinging from the front of the booth and dangling from a cupid "tree" as a decoration theme, but also featured the most delicious hearts — made of frosted cakes, cookies and even buns, to tempt hungry and romantic natures.

The candy stall, convened by Mrs. A. B. Carson, also took full advantage of the festive day approaching.

Their stall featured the valentine theme, too, with large heart-shaped boxes of chewy, crunchy home-cooked fudge, spicy cinnamon hearts or sugary, flavorful hard candy, designed to soften the heart of any sweet-toothed romantic.

Some women confessed that they wouldn't really mind housework if they wielded a mop when protected by some of the attractive skirt-savers featured at the apron and novelty stall supervised by Mrs. V. A. Downard. Frothy, filmy hostess covers swung string by belt with serviceable yet smart-looking heavy-duty aprons.

Highlights for many of the guests at this stall were waste-paper baskets made from magazines, or hand-sewn "necessity covers" — one of the most attractive ways to beautify a bathroom.

COFFEE GUESTS

Many guests migrated to the refreshment area, to rest feet and relax for coffee and conversation, before returning to browse and buy at the stalls. More than one woman, seated at the tables, was deeply engrossed in a book, too, which she had picked up at the veritable library offered by Miss Margaret McNeill and her committee at the book stall.

Guests enjoyed dainty sandwiches of every description, and delicious little cakes and cookies were served by conveners Mrs. J. A. Talbot and Mrs. C. E. Beirnes and their committee. Convening other stalls, all which had their own raffle, were Mrs. B. Harvey and Mrs. W. Roskelley, delicatessen, Mrs. P. Fecteau, French shop, and Mrs. J. T. Jones, lucky dip. Mrs. V. Shepperd was treasurer, and Mrs. C. C. Corneille managed the main raffle.

In charge of the variety program was Mrs. Herbert Barnes. Mrs. J. Pettersson supervised the publicity and Mrs. V. Pritchard, the receipts.

The home of Mrs. C. Y. Spratt, 3000 Rutland Road, will be the setting for a coffee party, being given by the Altar Guild of St. Philip's Anglican Church, Thursday. The affair will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Pictured discussing final arrangements are left, Mrs. W. T. Armstrong and right, Mrs. C. L. Aylard, who will be presiding at the refreshment tables, and Mrs. R. O. Wilkes, centre, who will assist the hostess and president Mrs. E. E. G. Boak in greeting guests.

REPORTER TAKES TO THE AIR

SOME JITTERY GYRATIONS

By PENNY MURPHY

Try to tell a person with a bad case of the jitters that "the only thing to fear is fear itself." You'll receive a nervous giggle. Try to tell that person that the experience she is about to have, which is inconceivable to her imagination, leaves nothing to be afraid of. You'll feel the tremors.

Ask Lynda Gower what it's like, en route to the Victoria International Airport, to give confidence to a passenger who is scheduled for her first flight. Perhaps the task would be easier if the flight was to be an ordinary one, instead of aboard a plane like Citaborca.

When Lynda learned that I had never flown before, she had her doubts about sending me up in Citaborca. I was scheduled to take a spin in SPF, a four-passenger craft "that's simple to handle," she tried to tell me. When we arrived at the Victoria Flying Club, we discovered that SPF was stranded in Seattle.

A cup of coffee later, and no less nervous than I was when we arrived, Lynda and Bud Rude escorted me to Bud's gem, Citaborca. Lynda's parting words were, to Bud, "You won't do anything —will you?"

Once racing down the runway, fastened securely in the seat behind Bud, I don't know which made more noise — the roar of the engine or my teeth chattering. The roar changed to a steady buzz, and Bud's encouragements reached the back of the cockpit. "See, it's easier than driving a car. Nothing to it! It's flying automatically."

I opened my eyes. The ground was gone! It was fun, gliding around with the ease of a great seagull, without having to do anything but watch the land below.

Bud explained the mechanics of turning a plane by easing your feet on pedals, and guiding the stick in the same direction. Then, he decided to show me what distinguishes "Citaborca" from an ordinary plane.

With one quick motion, I felt the stick go straight forward. The plane shot straight up in the air. One moment, you could look down and see the ground. From our perch, a few seconds later, looking down, we saw the sky. My stomach hit my throat, then swerved into my rib cage as we flipped sideways, back to an upright position.

Gambling against the strength of my stomach, Bud pushed the stick all the way up, and again, ground and sky switched places. Like an incomplete summersault, the plane flipped back again.

Before my digestive tract could make any signs of protest, we were upside down, then heading for the ground. One complete flip . . . oops, two . . . three magnificent flips!

The name "Citaborca" can now be seen in its true light. "Citaborca" is "acrobatic" spelled backwards.

It was a funny feeling to be back on solid ground again. It wasn't for long, though. Jack Ellard, chief flying instructor, and manager of the Victoria Flying Club, was sitting beside me in a four-passenger plane, telling me how to take off. Everything was happening so fast that I hardly realized that I was behind the controls, and we were steadily gaining altitude.

He seemed perfectly at ease, even when the plane started going straight down, and a warning buzzer sounded. Nearing a state of absolute panic, I managed to ask why we were going down. With a casual adjustment to the throttle, and a pull on the stick, Jack had the plane high up in the air. All that had happened, he explained, was a simple stall.

The landing was the part that I thought would get the best of us. I guided the plane straight down one of the streets of Sidney, towards the landing strip. The ground was creeping up faster and faster. Red barriers at the beginning of the field almost scraped the belly of the plane. Then the wheels touched the ground. Perfect landing!

After spending a daring, exciting afternoon in the air, it is easy to see why people who love adventure take to the sky.

MacDONALD-LARSEN VOWS

Lace Appliques Enhance Exquisite Wedding Gown

Embossed lace appliques accented the fitted bodice of the gown worn by Mary Margaret Greer Larsen, recently, when she became the bride of John David MacDonald in Sacred Heart Church.

The bride's gown was of silk taffeta and floor-length, with bodice featuring sleeves ending in lily points. Her veil misted to chapel-length from a headpiece of a single pearl droplet and leaves, surrounded by a circlet of crystals. She carried a single mauve catalaya orchid, surrounded with white net, freesia and streamers. The mauve of the orchid was repeated in the streamers, starred with lovers' knots. Her only jewelry was an heirloom necklace, belonging to her family.

Fr. J. Planeta heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Larsen, "Erindale", Sooke, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. MacDonald, 3760 Winston Crescent, Victoria. Mr. Larsen gave his daughter in marriage.

Floor-length gowns of peacock blue peau de soie and matching self-fabric headpieces were worn by maid of honor, Miss Joan Perry, and bridesmaid, Miss Lelonde. Junior bridesmaid Tora Larsen was in a gown of peacock blue velvet with headpiece to match. All carried bouquets of beige cymbidium orchids and wore small pendants, gifts of the bride.

Wayne Nuttall was best man. Ushering guests to their pews were brothers of the principals, Ron MacDonald and Lawrence Larsen.

A three-tier wedding cake, decorated in white and silver tones, centred the head table at the reception following in the home of the groom's parents. A bud vase of white freesia and fern topped the cake.

For travelling on honeymoon up-Island and to the mainland, the new Mrs. MacDonald chose a wool knit suit in beige and brown topped with a matching coat and accented with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Kolberg travelled from Alameda, Calif., for the ceremony. Also from out-of-town were Mrs. K. Coutts and family of Vancouver.

Other Countries Studied by Toastmistresses

A program designed to encourage a better understanding of other countries set the theme when the Victoria Toastmistress Club held its meeting in the Princess Louise Room of the Empress Hotel recently.

Table topic mistress, Mrs. K. S. Bains, distributed travel folders on various countries, and each member was asked to give a one-minute impromptu speech on the country of her folder, choosing from landmarks of interest, famous people, the people of that country and their way of life.

Mrs. J. J. Wiart gave a 10-minute lesson "Points to Ponder" and introduced toastmistress Mrs. J. R. Pipes, who subsequently introduced the following speakers: Miss Gladys Edwards, "The Knack of Intelligent Travel"; Mrs S. Gibbins, "Voice From the Grave"; Mrs. V. Keziere, "A Way of Life"; Mrs. N. E. Blackmore, "Winging South"; Miss Donna Keoppel, "Defender of Youth," and Mrs. P. A. Petersen, "Land of Frost and Fire."

Critics were Miss Donelda Lentz and Mrs. Frank Hong. Mrs. E. Brady was evaluator and Mrs. W. H. Davies gave the closing thought.

Miss Gloria Johnston was inducted as a new member and presented with a corsage. The ceremony was conducted by vice-president and membership chairman, Mrs. J. M. Speers. She was assisted by president Mrs. T. Y. Grant.

Of Personal Interest

Co-Hostesses

Mrs. C. A. Fields and her daughter, Mrs. Kerry Stevenson entertained at a shower in Mrs. Fields' Foster Street home for bride-elect Miss Lynne Fields, recently. Red rosebuds and white carnations en corsage were presented to the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. R. B. Fields. A decorated laundry basket contained the gifts. Attending the affair were the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. Ruth Howell, Mrs. F. Argyle, Mrs. D. Anderson, Mrs. I. Bishop, Mrs. J. Bishop, Mrs. R. Putt, Mrs. V. Warder, Mrs. G. MacPherson, Mrs. M. MacPherson, the Misses Nancy Johnson and Penny Putt.

Travel Overseas

Residents of Vancouver Island continue to call at British Columbia House while in London, England. Among those who have recently signed the visitors' book are Dr. Andrew McCormick, Brentwood Bay; Mrs. John Angus, Victoria, and Miss Julie Stone, Duncan.

Boy Shows Slight Improvement

Nine-year-old Clifford Bouvette of Alberni is in "slightly improved" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital after being struck by a truck in Alberni last Wednesday.

The semi-conscious boy was transferred to Victoria Saturday.

He received severe injuries when in collision with the truck moments after he stepped from a school bus.

Driver 'Fair' After Surgery

After emergency surgery in Royal Jubilee Hospital here Saturday afternoon, William McDonald, 825 Burdette Avenue, Victoria, is in "fair" condition.

McDonald received a fractured skull and serious chest injuries when his truck collided with a station wagon three miles south of Duncan Saturday morning.

The Goodwill Enterprises truck rolled over several times before coming to rest on its roof.

The accident occurred at the intersection of the Trans-Canada Highway and Bench Road.

McDonald was headed toward Duncan with a load of clothing which, after the accident, was strewn along the highway.

McDonald was apparently thrown through the windshield and was under the truck when the Duncan Kiwanis ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Beverly Berkey, Cobble Hill, driver of the station wagon, was apparently going to make a turn off the highway to a cafe when the crash occurred, police said.

Neither she nor her two children in the vehicle were badly hurt.

Total damage was over $3,000.

HEAD COACH of B.C. Lions Dave Skrien will attend sportsmen dinner April 1 sponsored by Cowichan Minor Football Association. Others attending will be Tom Brown, Lions linebacker, Schenley Trophy winner and former Canadian all-star and Olympic track star Harry Jerome.

MOTHERS FIGHT OLD WELLS

ALBERNI—McCoy Lake area residents have begun a campaign to "fill in or fence off" abandoned wells and ditches.

The action was taken because of the death last week of seven-year-old Terry Hurd who was drowned in a water-filled open pit.

Old wells, septic tanks and storage reservoirs could easily be hidden by the thick underbrush which grows in the area.

Six mothers met at a home Friday to plan a neighborhood safety program.

25-Year Members To Be Feted By Mac-Powell

Tall tales about tall timber—and the mills that convert them into forest products—will flow freely Friday when 156 forest industry veterans gather in Vancouver.

The occasion is the annual dinner of the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited 25-Year Club at which 156 company employees will be presented with engraved gold watches.

Entry of the employees to "the club" will raise to 1,349 the number of employees who have completed 25 years of service or more with Canada's largest forest products company. MacPowell has more than 15,000 employees in Canada.

Among the 156 are brothers George and Walter Goodings, employees at Alberni Pacific Sawmill Division, Port Alberni.

Bonner To Speak

NANAIMO — Attorney-General Robert Bonner will be the speaker at the monthly meeting of the Nanaimo and The Islands Social Credit Association Tuesday.

Out of Polynesian Paradise Into Canada's Banana Belt

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — In his scrapbook John Mei has written: "We would have loved to spend the rest of our lives in Brunei."

But unfortunately for the Mei family rebellion broke out in the British protectorate which borders North Borneo.

That was in December, 1962.

After being freed by the rebels, Mr. Mei left for Canada.

●

John is happily adapting himself to life in Canada's banana belt from his Polynesian paradise.

He is employed at Crofton Mill as an instrument technician.

In two years in Canada, the Mei family has tried living in Port Alice and Fort St. John.

The cold weather at Fort St. John literally almost killed their youngest child, six-year-old Jimmy.

Although he didn't elaborate, he said the rebellion which prompted him to leave Brunei was Indonesian-inspired.

It was an attempt to keep the small protectorate from joining the Federation of Malaysia, he said.

Some 3,000 British troops were flown in to quell the uprising.

But before their arrival, John was held a prisoner for five days in harsh conditions.

John has a fascinating background. Born in Canton, China, 43 years ago, he left for Hong Kong while still a boy. He was brought up there by his grandmother.

John learned his trade first in free China at Chungking during the war and later with a Hong Kong airline.

●

After the war he joined the Royal Dutch Shell Company and was moved to Brunei.

In Brunei his family became British subjects.

"We followed the customs of the British people for 12 years and had no difficulty adapting to our new life in Canada."

John's biggest difficulty was having to adapt from being a supervisor to having to work with his hands again.

The Mei children are mixing well in Canadian life.

Eldest daughter Lily must be one of the youngest students on the UBC campus.

At 17, she is in her first year of a science course.

For each of five years in Brunei she won scholarships.

Lucy, 16; Thomas, 10; Susan, 8, and Jimmy, 6, are all in school in Duncan.

●

John, who was rector's warden in an Anglican church in Brunei, last month was elected to the church committee of St. John's in Duncan.

He says few people in the West realize that Brunei has the highest standard of living in the Far East.

John says: "There is free education, no income tax, no business tax, and there is an old-age pension.

"The majority of the people don't want independence because some other country would just step in.

"They have domestic self-government."

Brunei's wealth stems from its oil resources.

Duncan city council was increased by two seats today.

A provincial cabinet order approved a council request for a boost in size to mayor and six aldermen.

The two new seats will be filled by an election not later than June 30, the order said. One term will be for the rest of this year and the other will run until the end of 1967.

Gas Chamber Constructed At Dog Pound

CAMPBELL RIVER—Vancouver Island's first gas chamber is being constructed here by the municipality.

At present unwanted occupants of death row at the dog pound are taken out and shot.

The gas chamber is being constructed as a more humane way to do away with wayward pooches.

No date has been set for the first execution, but when it occurs SPCA officials from Victoria will be on hand as witnesses.

CARBON MONOXIDE

The gas chamber makes use of pure carbon monoxide which is filtered from fumes of an engine.

It was designed by the Montreal SPCA which has been doing research in better ways to kill animals.

In Victoria, the SPCA uses an electric chamber, similar in principle to an electric chair.

The gas chamber costs about $600 and the electric chamber about $800.

His report was made to a branch meeting here Sunday presided over by Will Dobson.

Present was Ray Tingley, B.C. secretary of the society, who showed a film of the work of the society in Africa.

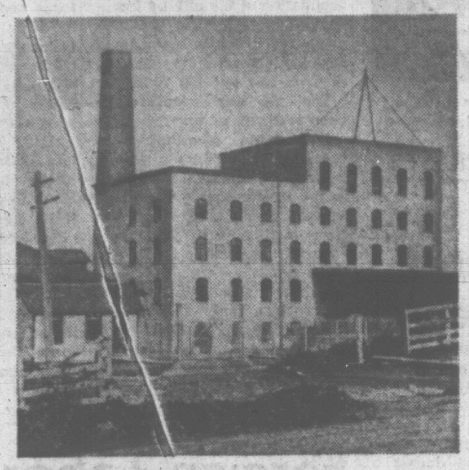
B.C. Sugar observes its seventy-fifth birthday as one of B.C.'s great pioneer industries

B. T. Rogers.



The original plant.

Just four years after Vancouver received its first electric power, telephone, bank and transcontinental railway services, a young American, Benjamin Tingley Rogers, established Western Canada's first sugar refinery. That year of 1891 Vancouver City had a population of only 13,685 people, but Benjamin Rogers envisaged a future for it as one of the world's great cities with much to offer men who would place their trust in that future.

Continuously supervising every department, he produced the first batch of refined granulated sugar on January 16, 1891. From that day the company he built has never looked back. As Western Canada looks forward to more record-breaking years, B.C. Sugar is keeping pace through the modernization and expansion of its facilities. The Company is proud of the role it has played and will continue to play in the West's economic growth and prosperity.

'Smell of Disaster' Again in Dominican

ABEL

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

SANTO DOMINGO (AP)—The disquiet and smell of disaster, so faimliar at the height of last April's Dominican revolution, pervades the heart of Santo Domingo.

Streets get dirtier and emptier, people seem angrier, shuttered homes even more hostile and a sense of apprehension increases as one drives from the western part of the city toward the downtown sector.

An acrid smell rises from burning mounds of garbage uncollected for weeks. Many people are in black — some mourning lost ones, others the occupation of the city by foreign troops.

Gunfire crackles sporadically here and there in the old part of town laid out 470 years ago. The old rebel enclave has been restored in spirit, if not in actual form. Mounting resistance to the country's military leaders is finding its most eloquent expression in the 20-square block area where for four months last year rebel "constitutionalists" fought for their ideals.

Although the old military checkpoints have disappeared, it's difficult and probably more dangerous to get into the central sector these days. Roving bands of teen-agers throw rocks at almost every passing vehicle. This being a baseball-minded city, excellent throwers are in abundance.

Snipers fire with apparently less concentration on specific targets and stray bullets are the norm, not the exception.

Understandably traffic is at a minimum. Foreigners, particularly Americans and especially newspaper men, are not welcome.

The angry mood led to a wave of disorders that began last Wednesday and has taken 17 lives so far. The violence set off a strike, mostly in government offices and the sugar industry. Its chief purpose is to force two more military leaders to obey a presidential order transferring them abroad.

The chief target of the constitutionalists, former armed forces minister Francisco J. Rivera Caminero, finally left the country last week. But to get him to go, provisional President Hector Garcia - Godoy rescinded his order transferring two of the three chiefs of staff.

Former president Juan Bosch, of the constitutionalists' leader, says the strikers don't want to destroy the military because "without armed forces there can be no country." But, he adds, most Dominicans "also know there can be no country if the military does not respect civil authority."

DURING ARREST

Master Spy 'Outwitted' FBI Agents

MOSCOW (UPI)—Col. Rudolph Abel, the former Soviet master spy in the United States, said Sunday he was able to outwit FBI agents and destroy an important decoding device and other evidence during his 1957 arrest in New York.

Abel, who was convicted in Brooklyn federal court on Oct. 25, 1957, of spying for the Soviet Union and sentenced to 30 years in prison, was exchanged for U-2 pilot Francis Gary Powers on Feb. 10, 1962.

Writing in a Soviet newspaper about his arrest and interrogation, Abel said he had been in communication with Moscow the night before his arrest and that his code and a copy of a message from Moscow were in the hotel room when FBI agents arrived.

Under the careless watch of an FBI agent, Abel said, he flushed the decoder down the toilet.

"The message was under a pile of papers on my desk," he said. "While packing art material I had used for painting, I simply cleaned my brushes on the paper, then crumpled it up and flushed that too."

"The FBI saw me do all of this," he added.

Abel also said he disposed of another piece of incriminating evidence during the ride with the agents to FBI headquarters after the arrest.

Abel said he adjusted his tie clip which contained a thin film and as he had hoped an agent grabbed it. "But instead of looking at it, he started immediately to dismantle it," Abel said, and "the film slipped out of the clip unnoticed."

Abel, 63, is living in retirement in Moscow and paints for a hobby.

Russia Aids Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Soviet trade minister announced Friday night a new trade agreement had been signed with Cuba, boosting commerce between the two countries by 20 per cent. The Soviet Union will give Cuba $91,000,000 credit to make up the difference between the goods shipped to Cuba and those sold to the U.S.S.R., the trade minister, Nikolai Patolichev, said on a Havana radio broadcast.

Foreign Labor Cut Poses Swiss Problem

GENEVA (AP)—A scheme to preserve the Swiss way of life by reducing the influx of foreign workers is beginning to be felt in this Alpine nation.

Suggestions are being made that the government revise its plans to cut by 10 per cent the number of foreigners employed in traditionally hospitable Switzerland.

The campaign, conducted with typical Swiss efficiency, has borne fruit. The reduction surpassed the originally intended five per cent for the first part of the program, cutting the number of foreign laborers in some areas by as much as 13 per cent.

The result has been a dearth of personnel in the building and hotel industries, in manufacturing and in the ranks of household servants.

Maids are at a premium and restaurant owners compete for the services of a foreigner lucky enough to have a work permit.

At the same time, international organizations in their traditional Swiss haven have begun to wonder whether they are welcome.

FIRMS MOVE OUT

Because of difficulties in recruiting personnel and the general anti-foreign attitude, some foreign firms began to move out. The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries moved its headquarters to Vienna, the Chrysler Corporation closed some of its offices and Mobil Oil announced a move to London.

The plan to cut foreign labor stemmed originally from mounting annoyance with foreigners, particularly in the German - speaking part of Switzerland. Annoyed Swiss burghers complained that "foreigners are taking over the country," disrupting its way of life.

The federal government acted early last year, coupling popular pressure against foreigners with its desire to restrict an unprecedented but inflationary boom.

Swiss employers now have suggested that the government reconsider its quota system and adopt a more elastic way of restricting immigration.

U.S. Bases Stricken With Spinal Epidemic

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—Trainees at Lackland Air Force Base are in semi-isolation and authorities at three U.S. Army bases have taken similar measures to combat outbreaks of spinal meningitis that killed two recruits this week.

Meningitis, spread like a cold and with the same early symptoms, has stricken at least 28 other trainees.

Authorities at Lackland, where all of the U.S. Air Force recruits are trained, announced that new recruits are to be sent to Amarillo Air Force Base, Tex., instead. This measure, the announcement said, was taken to avoid exposing more trainees to the disease.

Authorities reported five cases of meningitis at Lackland, four at Fort Gordon, five at Fort Polk, La., and 13 at Fort Knox, Ky. Two who contracted the disease last month are recovering at Fort Lewis, Wash.

There have been 58 cases of meningitis this year among the army's 124,000 basic trainees, the army said in Washington. Three of those infected have died.

Meningitis is an inflammation of the covering of the brain or spinal cord.

BEST MEDICINE in world is champagne according to Mrs. Georgiana Larivee, celebrating her 100th birthday in Detroit. Native of Quebec, Mrs. Larivee says she learned of wine's curative power after being told to take a teaspoonful before each meal to combat a stomach disorder. (AP Wirephoto).

Labor Begins 'White Collar' Drive

VANCOUVER (CP)—The 100,000-member B.C. Federation of Labor (CLC) will take initial steps toward an organizational drive among white collar workers in B.C.

The drive is the outcome of a two-day meeting sponsored by the Canadian Labor Congress' national committee on white collar organization here.

The meeting is one of a series being held across the country.

The federation will take the first steps toward beginning a drive to bring office workers of all types into the ranks of organized labor.

John L. Fryer, the CLC's assistant director of research, told the 75 delegates at the meeting automation may turn today's business offices into factory-type operations.

He said the use of more and more electronic equipment will change offices beyond recognition.

Henry Rhodes, acting director of organization, said the labor movement has made progress in organizing the white collar worker. There was an encouraging new interest in unions among professional groups.

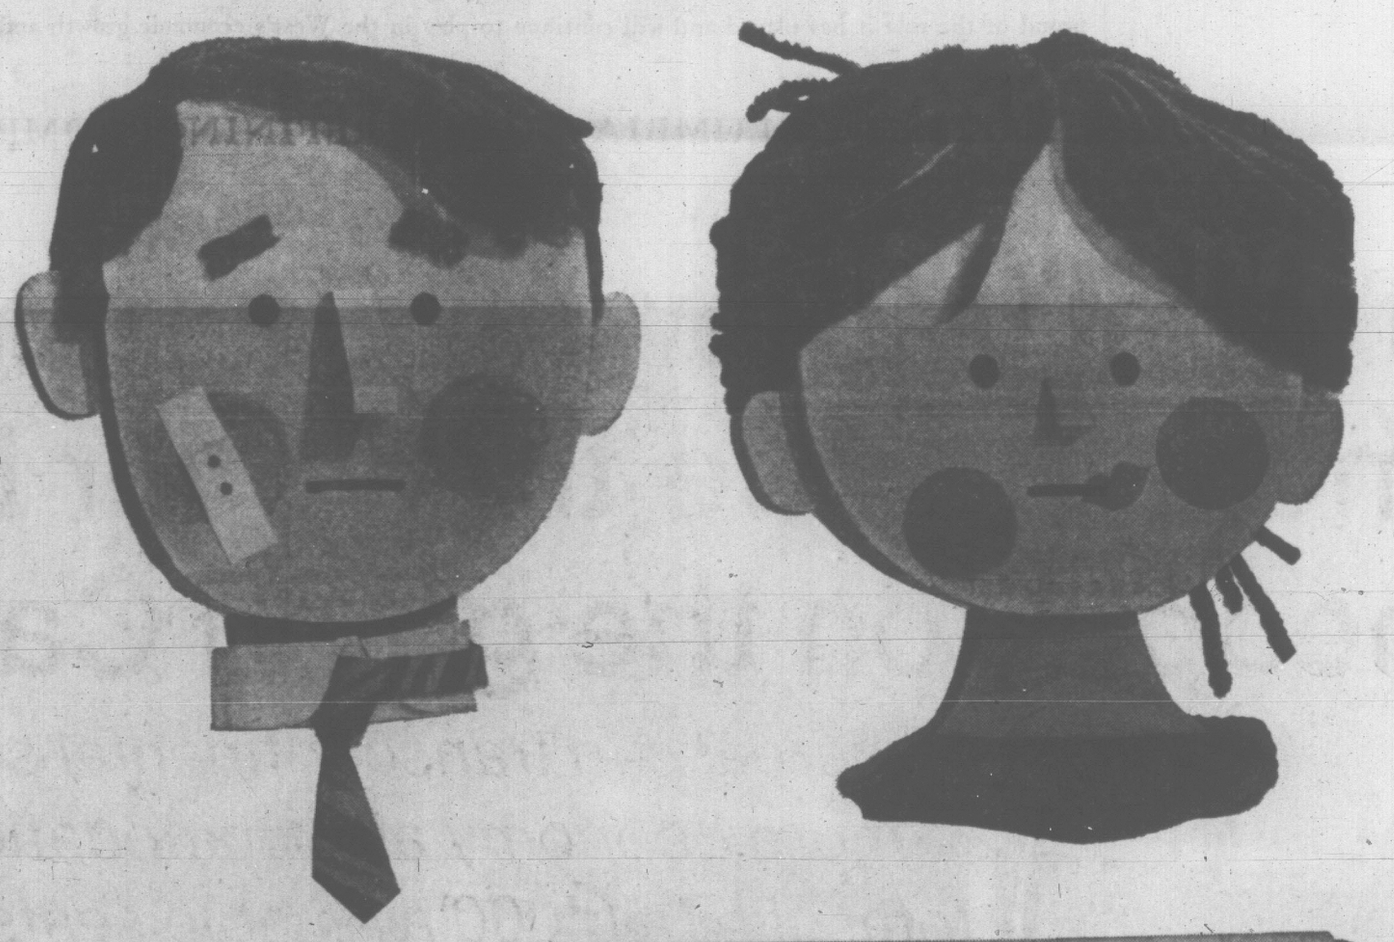
No more nicks... No near misses!



Put your best face forward — with good bathroom lighting

A razor nick. A little bit of lipstick in the wrong place. These are the things you can avoid with good bathroom lighting. Good bathroom lighting? It may be as easy as installing a single fixture. Start at the mirror. The light should be on your face, not the mirror. And there should be plenty of it. A single fluorescent strip, correctly placed, will solve this problem. A luminous soffit will do the same job and make your bathroom a little prettier in the bargain. Expense? Up to you. But it won't cost much, and the pay-off comes in solid confidence. In your bathroom's appearance . . . and in your appearance, too. Face up to good bathroom lighting. Here's how:

By mid-June, two new DC-8's and six new DC-9 Twin-Jets will have joined the rest of our fleet. They'll provide you with the most improved jet flight frequencies—the most convenient flight schedules ever, for travel in Canada. You'll have 5,050,000 seats ready and waiting for your travel plans.
And next year will be even better. Between January and June 1967, four more DC-8's and twelve more DC-9's will be ready for passenger service with Air Canada's growing jet fleet.
Now, where was it in Canada that you said you wanted to go?

RETURN FROM THE ASHES
Adult Drama
Royal Theatre

The lovely Samantha Eggar drinking champagne in her bathtub is far from elevating, but her performance as a doe-eyed schemer plotting the murder of a rival is in the best traditions of dramatic art.

Her appeal is subtle and elusive so that, as with Shakespeare's Lady Macbeth, the audience is alternately repelled and attracted.

Maxmillian Schell also develops pathological interest as a man with a warped mind whose emotional conflicts, subverted by a lust for money, lead to the planning of a long-distance murder.

There is nothing particularly original about a loaded revolver concealed in a safe so that the person who opens it will be assassinated. But the manner in which the murder is planned and the circumstances surrounding it are artfully contrived.

Ingrid Thulin, as a beautiful Jewess victimized by Nazidom, is more appealing than the other prinipals and, if there is a heroine in this rather morbid film, she fills the role.

★ ★

Released from a German concentration camp in 1945, Ingrid Thulin returns to Paris and meets an old doctor friend (Herbert Lom), who is surprised to find her alive.

She recalls meeting Schell, a poor stateless Pole, back in 1938. They had an affair during which it transpired she was a widow with a stepdaughter away at school.

Schell's consuming desire is to become an international chess champion, but his ambitions are thwarted when Europe is plunged into war. They are married as the Nazi legions invade Paris and, soon after the wedding, Ingrid Thulin is arrested as a non-Aryan and transported to Germany.

Later she is presumed dead and Schell takes to living with her stepdaughter (Samantha Eggar).

The wife's reappearance leads to various complications and one or two scenes which would be unsavory had they not been handled with restraint.

The story, based on a novel by Hubert Monteilhet, moves at a fairly even pace until the last 20 minutes or so when it builds up an explosive atmosphere through the certain knowledge that murder is close at hand.

DANCERS DISBAND

Bang-Up Party, Hint of Sadness

By CANDIDE TEMPLE

Friday night a group of square dancers gathered in St. Martin's Church Hall for a bang-up celebration with a hint of sadness attached.

The party marked the 13th birthday of the Jeans 'n' Bonnets, a local square dance club.

"But it was also the wind-up," said Olive Crawford, wife of the club's caller, sadly.

For the Jeans 'n' Bonnets, who have swung and promenaded together for so long, are finally calling it quits.

Basically their problem, shared by many other local square dance groups, is a membership one.

FEW LEFT

"It seems that now we've just got a few members left," said Olive Crawford.

"But we've had a very pleasant association.

"Thirteen years is a long time for one group of people enjoying the same activity.

"And let's face it," she said with a laugh, "We're all 13 years older."

And she is one to remember.

THREE COUPLES

For Curly and Olive Crawford are one of the club's three charter couples, who tasted the birthday cake with its decorations of blue jeans and pink bonnets in icing Friday night.

The other two couples, Verna and Cyril Hunt and Marion and Terry Osmars, with others who have belonged from "nearly the beginning," were there also.

For two years they have been meeting alternate Fridays in St. Martin's Church Hall to hear Curly's calls.

Before that it was the Lake Hill Women's Institute that housed the club, which at the end numbered about 20 couples.

HALF ONE WEEK

"But it seemed like half could come one week and only half the next," said Olive Crawford.

"Now most of the members will swell the membership of other clubs."

Still planned among club activities is a farewell dinner for all members of the Jeans 'n' Bonnets.

'Canadian Students Too Smug to Protest

VANCOUVER (CP) — A mathematics professor who formerly taught at the University of California at Befkeley says Canadian university students are too content to launch a major protest movement.

Dr. Benson Brown, now on the faculty of the University of B.C., said Canadians are satisfied because they "have never had an illusion of individual political power as the Americans have."

Dr. Brown, who was a member of the Free Speech Movement at Berkeley, said that the middleclass professional man in the U.S. is now finding himself in the position of the assembly line worker.

"Middle income people here (in Canda) can still see some indivedual usefulness in the work they do."

"The Americans have the myth of being free men who make their own decisions. But this is in conflict with their actual situation and leads to tension and revolt."

Dr. Brown made his statements at a weekend seminar entitled "Revolution on Campus" at UBC.

INDIAN PROJECT

Aspire to Be Young? Get Rejuvenated!

By RAM SUNDAR

BOMBAY (CP)—A centre for "rejuvenation" of aging men and women has been started at the Vajreshwari hot springs near here.

Using what is described as "natural processes," the treatment is known as "kayakalpa" in Hindu medicine. Only a handful of Hindu physicians are said to know the secret rejuvenation process dating back more than 3,000 years.

The Vajreshwari project, say its sponsors, who include some eminent Hindu doctors, is designed to put the ancient technique at the service of as large a number of people as possible and further perfect it through experiment and research.

Dr. Narayan Joshi, project spokesman, says the Kayakalpa method is superior to modern surgical operations and hormone treatment intended to stop aging.

Special cottages have been constructed at Vajreshwari. Those aspiring for youth will have to stay in them for periods ranging from six months to one year.

CONTROL ATMOSPHERE

Before entering a cottage, the patient will be subjected to physical and mental "reconditioning" which may last up to eight weeks. Air and light in the cottages have to be "controlled" under the kayakalpa technique, which lays great stress on environment.

The medicines administered to the patient during his rejuvenation treatment are intended to stop the erosion of human tissues and reorganize the metabolic system, said Dr. Joshi.

There will also be strict diet control. Only vegeterian food will be permitted.

Hindu doctors claim that if the treatment is skilfully given and carefully followed, an 80-year-old man can regain the youthfulness of a man of 45 or 50.

'Shocker' Play Tests Theatre Censorship

LONDON (Reuters)—A play in which a baby is stoned to death goes on trial here today in a case testing the right of British theatregoers to watch "shocker" plays uncut by censors.

The verdict in London's Bow Street magistrate's court could topple or toughen a centuries-old system of theatre censorship.

The play is called Saved. The playwright is Edward Bond, regarded as one of Britain's most promising. Saved had been shown only to private audiences—and it has shocked both them and hardened critics.

Summonsed to court by the director of public prosecutions is the English Stage Society, which runs the private membership theatre club where Saved is being staged.

The charge is that the play offends "against the preservation of good manners, decorum and public taste"—an omnibus charge from the Theatre Act, passed in 1843.

DIDN'T NEED LICENCE

Because it was shown to a private audience at the Royal Court Theatre, Saved did not need a licence from the censor—which publicly-shown plays do.

Theatre clubs in London have traditionally been immune from the hand of the censor, who is the lord chamberlain and senior officer of the royal household. The post is now held by Lord Lord Cobbold, 61-year-old former governor of the Bank of England.

Theatre club members pay 21 shillings ($3.15) a year for the privilege of being allowed to buy tickets to attend plays off the main public theatre curcuit.

It was at the Royal Court that playwright John Osborne made his name with his play Look Back in Anger, which bitterly attacked current social conventions.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

BITS 'N' PIECES: Bonanza, NBC-TV's Sunday night western, is the most popular television series in the world. The network is the first to admit the phenomenal success of the program, which continues to cut down opposition with abandon, even in its own backyard.

The show is distributed in about 70 countries by NBC International Enterprises. It is estimated that a weekly audience of more than 350 million people view the show. The international fan mail of the show went up 21 per cent this season despite it being seven years in the running.

More than 25 per cent of the mail comes from African countries. But viewers in New Zealand, Germany and Brazil also account for a large percentage of the total mail received.

Canada's unlikeliest hero, Quentin Durgens, MP, returns to CBC-TV in 1967 in a new series of 10 hour-long Mr. Member of Parliament dramas.

The first major Actors' Workshop for the television industry will be established under the sponsorship of CBS-TV in Hollywood. It will provide an opportunity for young actors to develop specific skills which will help them to meet the demands of today's television. In addition it will offer a chance for these people to participate in the activities of a major network.

Television will salute the 21st birthday of Smokey Bear with an NBC-TV special called The Ballad of Smokey Bear, next fall. The animated hero of the U.S. Forest Service's fire prevention campaign will get the full treatment from the same folk who did the animated Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer.

As of Jan. 1, 1966 the total number of U.S. color television households reached 5,220,000. It represented a gain of more than 85 per cent over the Jan. 1, 1965, color household figure of 2,810,000. The enlarged capacity of tube and receiver manufacturers to meet the strong consumer demand for color sets could see 10,000,000 color TV homes by the end of this year.

Milton Berle is talking a weekly variety for ABC-TV come fall. Although he is under contract to NBC until 1981, he took a 40 per cent cut in the $100,000 annual spread out salary to accept other network offers.

'Cloud Over Eden' Now Lifted With Water Line Installation

The drought is over along Lands End Road in North Saanich.

First connection to the newly-laid water line along the road was made last week to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Davies at 1460 Lands End.

"Installation of meters is now under way, and as soon as these are in all connection holders who are ready to take water can apply to the district's office to have water turned on," said B. W. W. Clowes, chairman of Deep Cove waterworks district.

Thursday was the first day Mr. and Mrs. Davies have been able to draw water from a tap since they moved to Lands End Road from California a year and a half ago.

The lack of water "was the only cloud in Eden," Mr. Davies said.

The Davies had two wells drilled on their property in a vain attempt to locate water when they first arrived here. Ever since the two unsuccessful attempts they have hauled water from a second well on the property of neighbor Lewis Harvey or from a service station near Sidney.

Installation of the water line came after Lands End residents conducted an intensive "Water Line — Safety Line" campaign last year. Minimum of 48 consumers was required to install the line, the petitioners were told, but more than 55 signatures were obtained.

The new extension of the Deep Cove waterworks line completes a loop of mains running from the Swartz Bay pipeline at Mills and MacDonald Park Roads through Patricia Bay, Towner Park, Deep Cove to Moses Point and then back through Lands End Road to connect again with the Swartz Bay pipeline.

The middle of February is just about right for sowing the useful dwarf bedding dahlias, if we are to enjoy their brilliant flowers throughout summer.

Hilda

It is the dwarfness of these seed-grown dahlias which accounts in some measure for their popularity, though they have other attributes to endear them to gardeners.

The tallest of the dwarf dahlias (pronounced dah'-lee-ah, after botanist Dahl, to distinguish the plant from the shrub dale'-ee-a, after Dale) will reach to three feet, never require staking, and each will make three-foot spread before the season ends with frost.

Colors run through the usual range of pale to deep pink, yellow to orange and red, and pure white.

For their stature, the plants bear large blossoms up to four inches in diameter of a semi-double form. This means a wide variation exists, so that some flowers are fully double, others semi-double, and a few may be single.

LONG SEASON

However, despite these vagaries dwarf dahlias offer a long season of bloom and attractive foliage.

The first flowers from plants of seed sown this week can be expected by the middle of May, though better results are obtained by rubbing out all buds until May 15.

This results in a greater number of first blooms at one time after putting the plants into the garden during the last week of May.

Seedlings will grow rapidly indoors at a temperature around 55 degrees Fah. after being pricked out into three-inch veneer bands or peat pots.

SUNNY SPOT

Tubers develop early and grow into large clusters outdoors if given a sunny spot with liberal treatment of compost when planting, and sufficient water during dry summer weather.

Blooming is continuous and prolific, providing flower heads are removed promptly as the petals drop. This attention is needed daily, but it well worth the few minutes of time.

Tubers of especially desirable colors may be dug in fall for replanting next spring, remembering that the plants will not be so dwarf in subsequent years.

Names of seed to look for are Unwin's Dwarf Bedding, Extra Dwarf Exhibition and Coltness Single.

Belmont Park Hall Backed

Residents of Belmont Park, the RCN's housing development near Victoria, have voted in favor of building a community hall.

It is expected construction will start by early summer. It has been designed to include a gymnasium, a committee room, hobby rooms, and a large space for gatherings of scouts, cubs, guides and other youth groups.

The first homes in Belmont Park were completed 14 years ago. Today there are 451 home units and a population of more than 2,000.

Students Swarm Over Old House

Six architectural students from Vancouver spent the weekend putting the old Point Ellice House under the microscope.

The University of B.C. students were particularly interested in structural and decorative aspects that are visible and the dimensions of the lumber used in the 99-year-old house.

"In a project of this kind the students swarm all over the building and measure everything they can get a tape on," said Victoria architect Peter Cotton.

The information is given a member working at a drawing board to log all the details.

The Point Ellice House is practically untouched since it was built in 1867.

"Its construction is different being of framework with a stucco infill," he said. "Also it is a one-storey structure where so many built in that period had two."

The students left today for Nanaimo to attend a seminar before reurning to Vancouver.

Winners:

El Toro class—Dick James, 7½; Charles Croucher, 16; Jack Woodward, 20½.

Davidson class — Sid Halls, 11½; John Todd, 13½; Humphrey Golby, 21.

FOR RESCUE WORK

$10,000 Needed to Set Up Fleet

The provincial government may be asked to contribute $10,000 toward formation of a volunteer small boat rescue flotilla here.

The formation of a rescue group was proposed recently by J. Courteny Haddock, a past commander of the Victoria Power Boat Squadron.

He said today that talks are proceeding at the provincial government level and mention has been made of a fund to assist organization.

Mr. Haddock said district commander of the power boat squadron, Jack Simpson, will meet soon with Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace. Mr. Wallace's department has jurisdiction over civil defence which also is interested in the scheme.

Mr. Haddock said that to be effective a rescue fleet of experienced small boat operators must be able to be called out at a moment's notice. And a dependable communications system is necessary.

"For instance, there is no use sending a boat, say to Saturna Island, if there already is a boat there," he said.

The idea for formation of a rescue fleet was voiced by Mr. Haddock while a search was under way recently for three youths who disappeared from Oak Bay area in a small open boat. They have not been found.

It was considered that small boats often are able to conduct a search where larger coast guard vessels are unable to go close inshore.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

SPECIAL LIGHT TO 'SAVE A LIFE'

The Greater Victoria Lions Clubs have taken the first two bites out of their busy 1966 agendas.

The Chinatown Lions Club has launched a safety campaign under the banner of "Buy A Light —Save A Life."

The club is marketing a special flashlight which can be tied on the arm or leg or carried in hand by pedestrians and cyclists. The light flashes a beam forward and a red reflector to the rear.

The light is of particular interest to newspaperboys, elderly people on night walks (especially in outer districts) and to motorists fixing a flat tire on the side of the road.

The Victoria Lions Club has embarked on a project which will provide $7,000 worth of gymnasium equipment for the Victoria Boys' Club.

The gym equipment will be the Lions' contribution to the Boys' Club new $200,000 building which will be erected starting this October on lots adjacent the old structure on Yates Street.

On the four lots, for which the Boys' Club has recently obtained a 50-year lease from the City, will be erected a modern structure containing a king-sized gymnasium and a smaller one, craft rooms, a library, counselling rooms and a lounge for social events.

The Boys' Club will soon launch a fund-raising campaign in the city to bring the new facilities into reality. The Lions' Club contribution will be raised through a car raffle.

The Esquimalt Lions Club are now completing plans for their Lions Spring Conference, March 19 and 20.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Lavern Schmidt, age 10½, of Temperance, Mich., for her question:

Do acids really eat the skin?

We live in a world made of chemicals and many of these chemicals are acids. Some acids are in non-living rocks and gases and some in living plants and animals. But no chemical by itself is alive. Some acids seem alive with busy energy, but they do not breathe or eat as we do.

The expert who knows all about acids is a chemist. He knows many mild and harmless acids and others that our bodies need. He also knows which of the strong acids damage skin and even metals. An expert chemist knows just how this chemical damage is done. And he tells us that strong acids do not eat living cells of the skin in the same way, for example, that a dog devours his dinner.

A strong acid, he says, is corrosive and it wounds by corroding. The damage begins when a drop of strong acid touches the skin. It is hot and very painful and it quickly destroys the living cells it touches. The corroded wound looks burned or eaten away — and the damage is done by energy in the strong chemical acid. Chemicals called bases have a different kind of energy that can offset acid corrosion. The acid can be diluted and weakened with a watery mixture of sodium bicarbonate — but a person must act fast to save his skin.

Acids are made from atoms, and atoms have particles charged with electricity. They have two opposite kinds of electricity, positive and negative. A big jolt of electricity is dangerous, but most substances are harmless because of the positive and negative charges. As a rule, positive and negative particles in a chemical are about equal and they balance each other.

Chemicals Have Electrical Energy

Some chemicals, however, have extra positive or negative charges and this gives them electrical energy. Acids have hydrogen atoms, and in water these atoms become lop-sided particles called postiive ions. These ions try to balance up with negative ions. They grab water molecules. And the living cells of the skin happen to be filled with watery liquid. A strong acid grabs almost all of these water molecules and the living tissue shrivels and dies. The skin seems to be burned or eaten away. But actually the corrosive acid has dehydrated the tissue — or robbed it of its life-giving water.

The chemical energy of strong acid is put to good use in industry. Tons of hydrochloric, nitric and sulfuric acids are used to dissolve and treat metals and for countless cleaning and purifying jobs. They must be handled by trained experts. But we safely take in citrus acid with our orange juice, lactic acid with our milk and other mild acids with our foods. Our daily dose of vitamin C is ascorbic acid, and our bodies could not work without the amino acids it finds in the proteins we eat.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Roger Mills, age 8, of Hobart, Ind., for his question:

What is Andy's address?

Andy, if course, is a pixie and pixies tend to roam from place to place. Also, he likes to wander around to ger on-the-spot answers to your questions. You can bet your boots he has visited your state and when he answers your question he has a clear picture of your very own surroundings in his mind.

So, when you send him a postal card, do not depend on Andy's address. It changes too often. Instead, address your card to your local newspaper. The people there know how to send the mail to a fixed place where he can reach it. Write your questions clearly, add your name, age, and home address and send the card to your own favorite newspaper.

YOUR HEALTH

Person Who Sees Double in Morning

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

A few people write to say that they see double in the mornings, and their eye specialist says their vision is all right. These people can read easily enough, but if they look at a church steeple a quarter of a mile away, they see two steeples. Perhaps their opthalmologist is puzzled; he can see nothing wrong in the eyes. Obviously the trouble is with the muscles that move the eyes.

Alvarez

I have made the diagnoses for a number of such people simply by asking them if they are taking a sleep-maker at night — or more important, are they taking a small dose of a barbiturate to get back to sleep when they wake at 4 a.m. Then, often all the person has to do is to change his sleep-maker, and perhaps to avoid taking the small dose early in the morning.

★ ★ ★

I received a letter from a lady who is so happy because a column of mine saved her husband from having one of his legs amputated. At the age of 52 he was getting so much trouble in one of his legs that he was threatened with gangrene (the death of the tissues in the legs). This, of course, would have meant amputation.

The man had trouble walking; after walking a quarter of a block, he would have su much pain in one leg that he would have to stop and lean up against a wall for a few minutes; then he would be able to walk on again.

★ ★ ★

This condition is called intermittent claudication, and any physician who hears the story ought to know instantly that the patient has an artery which is becoming much narrowed by diesase. Such an artery can carry enough blood for a resting muscle, but it cannot carry enough to take care of a muscle that is actively contracting as in walking.

When this man and his wife felt desperate, they saw a column of mine in which I told of the wonderful work that is now being done by artery surgeons to replace or open up narrowed arteries. The expert injects into the artery a substance which is impervious to X-rays, and with this he can get a picture that shows where the obstruction is, and how widely it extends. Sometimes it is far up in the pelvis above the groin.

The man immediately went to an artery surgeon who quickly found where the obstruction was; he operated, he probably put in a little Dacron tube to replace the narrowed segment, and now the man is walking comfortable. He saved his leg.

Air Crash Kills Three

ILFORD, Man. (CP)—Three men, including an RCMP officer, were killed Friday when a light aircraft crashed and burned on an ice-covered lake near this remote northern community 430 miles northeast of Winnipeg. Killed were Const. T. P. Carroll of the RCMP detachment at Churchill, pilot Al Lazurak, Winnipeg, and Don McEwan, Churchill.

Please Safeguard Us From All These Pests

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Things we could do without:

Young men who look like they're wearing a nest of robins in their hair.

Any new kinds of dog foods, deodorants or dandruff cures.

All cleaning powders or detergents that make a washing machine act like it were 10-feet tall. We are tired of climbing a stepladder to put clothing into our present high-soaring machine.

Christmas cards that depict pretty girls in a Santa Claus suit, or Santa himself in a bathing suit chasing a beach maid wearing a bikini.

Any more books by doctors or marriage counsellors on what to do about sex. All the possibilities of sex have been pointed out by eminent authorities many times already. What civilization needs is more good cook books and fewer manuals on sex, as no civilized person ever loses interest in good cooking.

Motorists who say they only want half of the road but decide their half is in the middle.

Teachers who give your kids homework that would tax the mental powers of an Einstein.

The telephone company's decision to give us all numbers that only a computer can remember.

Power companies that can explain after a blackout why all their electricity took a vacation at the same time.

Experts at cocktail parties who bore you with long discussions of the perils of travel in outer space.

Babies who, when you pick them up, bend unexpectedly in the middle.

Wiseacres who, when you tell them you're going to the dentist to get your teeth cleaned, reply, "Why bother to go yourself? Why not just mail them in?"

Anybody who mails your wife another credit plate.

Anybody who mails you another credit card.

From these and other pests, deliver us, amen.

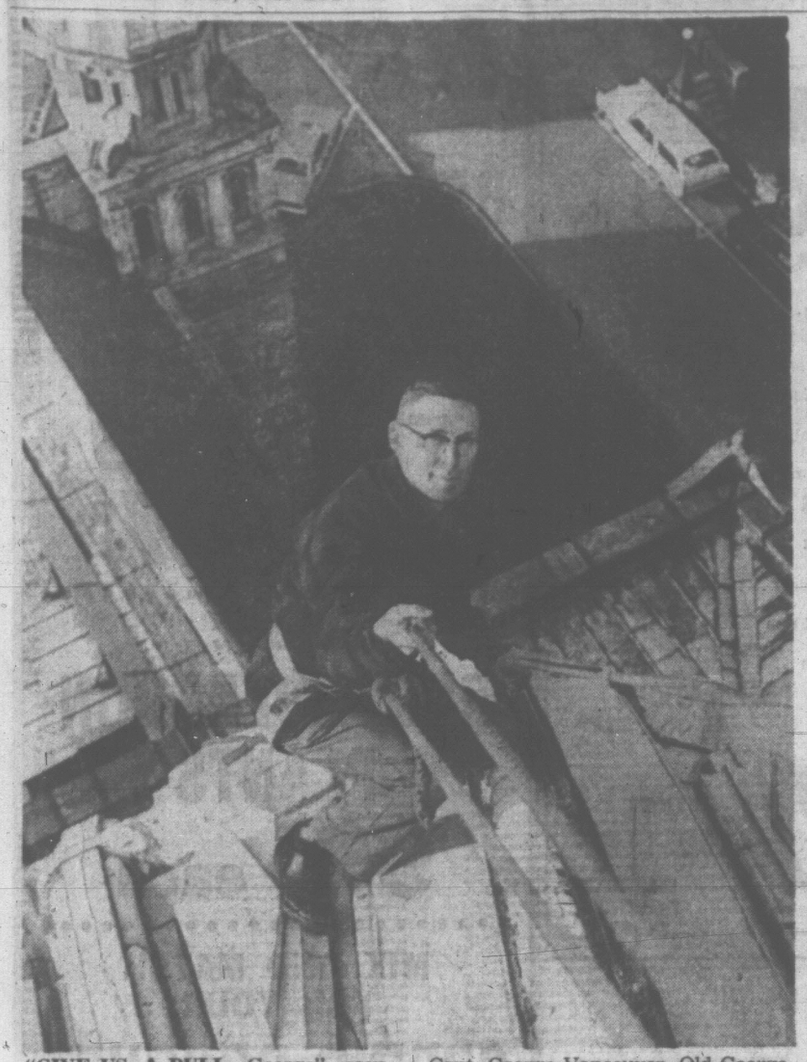
Soviet Writers Jailed For Criticizing Regime



"GIVE US A PULL, George", says provincial government electrician Don Butt, scaling the dome of the Legislative Buildings to replace light bulbs and repair sockets. He's almost reached the feet of the gilded statue of Capt. George Vancouver. Old George never even looked down. Photographer Irving Strickland couldn't lend a hand either. He spared one hand for the camera. The other one was for Irving.

Plane Wreckage Located

PALOMARES BEACH, Spain (AP) — Air and ground searchers today located the wreckage of a U.S. Air Force Globemaster with eight Americans aboard which crashed while delivering material for the search for the U.S. nuclear device missing in the waters off the coast of Spain.

A U.S. spokesman said the wreckage was sighted six miles northwest of the village of Trevelez, on the snow-covered slopes of 11,423-foot Pico Mulhacen, in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

The Spanish news agency CIFRA quoted official Spanish sources as saying there were no survivors. Headquarters of the 16th U.S. Air Force, however, declined to make any statement on the fate of the eight crew members until a closer search of the area is made.

The giant C-124 disappeared Saturday night after leaving Seville with two buses for use by searchers looking for what is believed to be a 20-megaton hydrogen bomb.

Books Smuggled To Paris Agent

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Russian writers were convicted today of undermining Soviet Communism with clandestine works. Smuggled to the west and were sentenced to prison terms of five and seven years.

Literary critic Andrei D. Sinyavsky received the maximum sentence of seven years. Newsman-translator Yuli M. Daniel was sentenced to five years.

The court ruled the terms must be served in "strict regime labor camps." Strict regime usually means no such privileges as visitors or regular correspondence with the outside.

The Supreme Court of the Russian Federated Republic refused prosecution demands that both men be banished from Moscow after serving their sentences.

The court convicted Sinyavsky and Daniel on charges of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" despite their pleas they did not mean to damage communism or the Soviet Union with their works.

Sinyavsky and Daniel had pleaded innocent to the charges while admitting they had smuggled books written under assumed names to the west for publication.

Spectators Needed Invitation

Although the trial was "public," neither foreigners nor the general public were admitted. Spectators were admitted by invitation only and included mainly other Russian writers and officials.

The four-day trial stirred an international storm. Forty-nine Western writers publicly urged the Soviet government to free the two men.

Sinyavsky and Daniel had admitted that for seven years they wrote books, essays and short stories under the pennames of "Abram Tertz" and "Nikolai Arzhak," respectively.

The works, all taking a critical view of Russia under Communion, were smuggled to Paris and published there. They spread from there and Sinyavsky became a best seller in the West and his works were published in 24 languages.

While admitting the writing and smuggling, Sinyavsky and Daniel pleaded innocent on the grounds they did not intend their work to be "anti-Soviet." They argued also for the right of self-expression.

The court's hand-written judgment, read by presiding Justice Lev Smirnov, took more than two hours to read. Both the defendants and the audience stood throughout.

Applause—traditional in Soviet courts—followed the verdict.

The wives of the two men,

U.S. Navy Chicken To Play 'Chicken'

TOKYO (Reuters) — Russian warships in the Pacific often try to engage American naval units in a game of nautical "chicken," United States Rear-Admiral Evan P. Aurand said today.

"They come at us on a collision course and we have a full-time job avoiding them," he told reporters here.

Aurand said Russian destroyers had steamed straight at his ships north of Luzon off the Philippines.

"We occasionally observe Russian naval units units and if we come within close range of each other they steam straight at us," he said.

"Also in the Gulf of Tonkin, merchant ships, mostly Russian and loaded to the gunwhales, have sailed straight through our lines carrying war materials into North Vietnamese ports.

"It's tough watching these ships sail through carrying materials which will be thrown back at us by the Communists."

U.S. PEACE BID

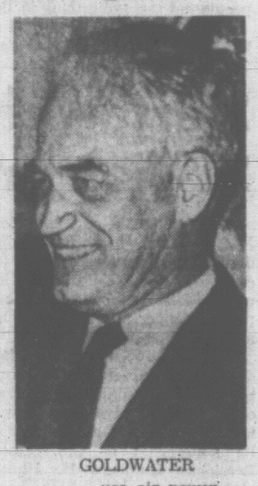
'Sad to See Great Power Grovelling'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Senator Barry Goldwater says an American demonstration of determination—and not what he calls "grovelling" peace offensives — will bring North Viet Nam to the conference table.

"I don't think it's our job to get the Communists to the conference table by begging, by going through other emmisaries, by going through other leaders," the 1960 Republican presidential candidate said Sunday on ABC's radio-television program Issues and Answers.

"I think we'll get the Hanoi government to the conference table when we convince them we have the will to attack and that we are attacking them.

"It is a very sad spectacle to see the greatest power on earth sort of grovelling."



GOLDWATER
. . . use air power

OTHERS ALSO COMMENT

President Johnson's peace offensive—and its failure thus far—brought these other weekend developments:

—Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff (Dem. Conn.) proposed that Johnson invite the participants in the 1954 Geneva conference to meet again to discuss a settlement in the Viet Nam War.

—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, said the probability is "quite low" that increased military pressure by the United States in Viet Nam would lead to a confrontation with China.

—Administration officials reported the U.S. has started blacklisting non-Communist and Polish ships that trade with North Viet Nam.

'BOMB INDUSTRIES'

Goldwater suggested that air power be used to attack the industrial complexes in North Viet Nam, bomb railways and destroy the Ho Chi Minh trail and said North Viet Nam's ports could be shut down by mining them or sinking ships in them.

Goldwater, a general in the air force reserve, said more authority for the direction of the fighting should be given to "military people who have spent their

Record Spending Plan Outlined To Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Benson today presented the Commons with an initial government spending and investment program amounting to $9,318,224,878 for the 1966-67 fiscal year which starts next April 1.

The record figure was 9½ per cent higher than the program former finance minister Walter Gordon presented to the Commons nearly a year ago for the current fiscal year ending March 31. It represented a big advance in administration and public works spending.

The new figure is likely to increase further. Millions will be needed under legislation now before Parliament and for programs developed as the new financial year goes along.

On the other hand, individual items making up the total estimates are maximum amounts, and some money earmarked for a specific purpose may not be spent within the year. In the past any such decreases have been outpaced by the increases.

The $9,318,224,878 for the new year compares with $8,506,872,232 in the initial program for 1965-66. Last year's first estimate already has been swollen to $9,079,438,540 with supplementary appropriations so far tabled in the Commons. There may be still more before March 31.

SCALE OF SPENDING

The figure of $9,318,224,878 includes amounts not regarded as budgetary expenditures in the parliamentary sense, but it indicates the scale of spending for which Finance Minister Sharp must budget when he prepares the tax program, likely to be presented to the Commons late next month.

Included as non-budgetary items were $1,035,000,000—up from $905,000,000 this year—in expenditures from the old age security fund. This reflects the lowering of the qualifying age to 69 last Jan. 1 and to 68 next Jan. 1 for the universal $75 monthly pensions paid from special sales, income and corporation taxes.

Also included is $332,765,400 for the new year, compared with $202,144,800 a year ago, for loans, investments and advances. These go mainly to Crown corporations like the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and Expo 67. The government expects repayment in future years.

PENSIONS NOT INCLUDED

Another big account not reflected in the new Blue Book is the Canada Pension Plan fund. Payroll deductions for the fund began last Jan. 1, but the first benefits will not be paid until next January, three months before the end of the new fiscal year.

The new estimates included $1,510,204,000 for defence, including the budgets of the defence department, defence production department, Emergency Measures Organization and Crown companies directly involved in defence work. The figure a year ago for 1965-66 was $1,583,613,800. This already has grown to $1,593,584,393 with supplementary estimates tabled since.

For every $1 of government spending in the new fiscal year, the taxpayer's money would be divided this way: 26 cents for health and welfare payments, including old age pensions; 18 cents for defence, 13 cents for debt charges, five cents for subsidies and other payments to the provinces, and 38 cents for all other federal government services.

Queen Mother May Visit City

QUEEN MOTHER
. . . news "unofficial"

The Queen Mother Elizabeth is expected to spend a few hours in Victoria on Friday, March 18.

News of the royal visit reached The Times unofficially today but civic and provincial sources appear to confirm it.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace said there is a likelihood the Queen Mother will visit for a few hours.

He said an official announcement can be expected before the end of this week.

Mayor A. W. Toone said he has had no definite information "but a visit has been indicated."

It has been known since Jan. 14 that the Queen Mother would make a brief stopover at Vancouver March 18 when an aircraft carrying her to Australia stops there for refueling.

Cambodia Boosts Combat Force

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian government announced today it was increasing its combat forces by 5,500 men "in the face of almost daily aggressions by our neighbors."

The buildup, effective immediately, came amid increasing border skirmishes with Thailand. Cambodia is also bordered by South Viet Nam and Laos. The increase would bring Cambodia's total combat forces to 23,500 men.

Cambodia has enough war material on hand — most of it from China — with which to arm new troops. Official announcements have listed Peking-supplied weapons and other items for nearly 75,000 men.

The government said the troop increase was being taken to cope with "aggression" by the so-called "Khmer Serei" (Free Cambodia) right-wing rebel movement.

Cambodia has charged that the rebels are headquartered in Thailand, but the Thai government has denied it.

Viet Nam Trial Disrupted

LONDON (AP) — Shouting demonstrators protesting the war in Viet Nam broke up a trial of 19 colleagues today. Police cleared the public gallery, dragging some of the demonstrators from the courtroom. The proceedings were halted for five minutes.

Nineteen were charged with obstructing the highway at the House of Commons during a Viet Nam demonstration Saturday.

Eleven, who pleaded not guilty were fined £2 ($6) each, six were bound over on bail of £5 ($15) until March 1, and the cases of two were put back for trial later in the day.

Applause greeted the declaration of one 18-year-old defendant who told the magistrate? "I'm afraid I don't accept the validity of your so-called justice."

More than 100 took part in the Saturday demonstration organized by the "Committee of 100," a militant splinter group of Britain's nuclear disarmament movement.

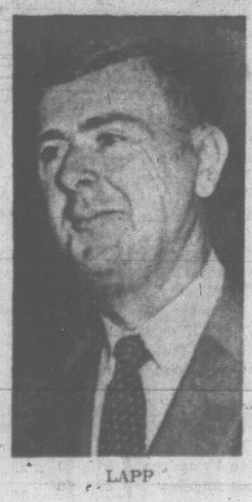
'DIRTY' BOMB BEST WEAPON AND U.S. STILL BUILDING IT

TORONTO (CP) — A United States nuclear physicist said Sunday night his country is still building the so-called "dirty nuclear bomb" because it is the most effective military weapon.

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, who worked on the Manhattan Project that helped develop the atomic bomb during the Second World War, was interivewed on the CBC's television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

"That's what's in inventory and that's what the B-52s are carrying," he said in reference to nuclear bombs with heavy radioactive fallout.

Dr. Lapp said it is unrealistic to think of getting any kind of gentleman's agreement so that only "humane" bombs are used in nuclear war. "Your opponent will use his best weapons as he sees them."



LAPP

He described a nuclear war as "a horrible convulsion in which there'll be no time for restraint. An enemy will simply hurl his nuclear might at you as a kind of series of jovian thunderbolts, and you in turn will not wait to evaluate the damage."

Dr. Lapp said he thought it would be technically possible for China to have a hydrogen bomb in two or three years.

He said the only way to get at the Chinese in the event of war would be to use dirty bombs with plenty of fallout.

However, he said he doubted whether the United States could win a war with China using "clean bombs." I don't believe you could even deter China by using the blast of a Minuteman or Polaris weapon against its cities."

(Times News Services)

RAMONA, Okla. — "See what I found in my bed," the man shouted as he marched up and down the streets of East Ramona, knocking on doors in the predawn hours.

In his hand was a loaded rifle.

At the end of the rifle muzzle stood a second man—nude.

Deputy Sheriff George Hughes, called by worried residents, drove up. He stepped from his car into the 20-degree cold and order, "Drop that gun."

The clothed man calmly and quickly broke open the gun and unloaded it. Then he handed it to the officer.

The unclothed man sighed. A look of relief swept across his face. But he did not speak.

The shivering man without clothes was quickly furnished with a blanket and was given permission to hurry off into the darkness.

Officers said the armed man told them he had been separated from his wife for several days and had come home early Friday and found the other man in bed with his wife.

Authorities said the second man was reluctant to get out of bed, so the husband fired a shotgun blast through the wall above the bed, "just to show that he meant business."

The gunman then began marching the nude man up and down the streets of East Ramona because he "just wanted all the neighbors to know it."

CRICKET MALHERBIE, England—A doctor doing research on hypothermia—illness caused by low body temperature—says those short, short skirts are a hazard.

What's more, says Dr. Geoffey Taylor, they are bad for business.

"These skirts, four inches above the knee, are ridiculous as protection against the British winter.

"Girls would be more efficient employees if they wore skipants and men would work better if they wore long underpants.

"If employers want maximum efficiency in winter, they should either see that their employees get some exercise or else provide a fire."

SALERNO, Italy — The priest asked Antonio Naddeo, 28, Sunday whether he would take Concetta Savarese, also 28, in holy matrimony.

"Excuse me, I wasn't listening," said Antonio.

The priest repeated his question; "I don't want her," Antonio replied and walked out of the church.

Concetta fainted. Distraught relatives revived her and persuaded Antonio to return to the altar.

The priest put the question again. Antonio sighed and said, "yes."

LONDON — The 5,000,000-circulation London Sunday Mirror criticized the BBC Sunday for making fun of commuters on Japanese trains.

Columnist Quentin Crewe said the BBC radio program Roundabout described how Japanese men take off their trousers and women take off their skirts before sitting on commuter trains.

"So they do," Crewe said, "partly because it is hot and partly so that their suits do not get shiny. Very practical.

"Roundabout put on a mocking voice. They described the Japanese as solemn. Think how we would laugh, they said, if people did the same thing in Britain.

"Yes, we would laugh and snigger. But does that not, perhaps, reveal that the Japanese are more adult than we are?"

Start Welfare Work, S. Viet Army Told

SAIGON (AP) — South Viet Nam's military government ordered its armed forces today to exert every muscle possible in civil actions designed to win the public support for the battle against the Communists.

The directive issued by the defence department appeared to be a direct outcome of the Honolulu conference with U.S. President Johnson and also the public statements of U.S. Vice-President Humbert H. Humphrey on his trip here last week.

The decree instructed army units to participate in relief, economic, welfare and medical programs.

Military commanders were ordered, in a statement issued by Lt.-Gen. Nguyen Huu Co, minister of war and secretary of defence, to comply with the instructions but he added a word of caution:

"Military civic actions will only be conducted within the capabilities of the units without hindering the execution of their combat operations."

dressed in black, were sitting in front row seats in the packed room when the verdict came. When the two women had entered the courtroom for the final session, a youth in the crowd outside whistled—the traditional Russian sign of derision.

He was quickly silenced by others in the crowd standing in the snowy courtyard—most of whom were believed friends of the defendants.

Earlier, young communist "vigilantes" chased western newsmen awy from the courtyard and took two French correspondents to police headquarters where they accused them of "sensational and slanderous" reporting of the trial, but then apologized and let them go.

After the verdict Sinyavsky and Daniel turned and were led by officers back to the cells in Lubyanka prison where they had been held since their arrest last September.

They were expected to be moved out of Moscow soon to an unspecified labor colony to begin serving their sentences.

Both have the right of appeal—first to the national supreme court on points of law and then to President Nikolai Podgorny for executive clemency.

lives studying the problems of strategy."

"I think men like the secretary of defence (Robert S. McNamara) should be removed completely from any part of this war other than the logistic part."

A panelist asked Goldwater if the U.S. should attack Chinese atomic plants if China got into the war.

"Frankly I would like one provocation just to knock out their atomic capability right out of the ground," Goldwater replied, "and I think they realize this and I think for that reason they are not going to become directly involved."

CREDITS AIR POWER

Gen. Taylor credited his conclusion that China is not likely to enter into war with the United States to massive U.S. air power.

He said on the CBS radio-television program Face the Nation the situation in Viet Nam is similar to that during the Korean War. "Our air power has been belittled for its performance in Korea because it didn't stop the war," he explained. "It didn't stop the war but it put a ceiling on the war.

"There were at least a million more armed Chinese north of the Yalu (River) who never came into action because they could not be supported on the front under the pressure from the air."

Taylor, former chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and now a special presidential adviser, also gave some of his views in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News and World Report magazine.

"It is certainly not in the interest of Red China to have a military confrontation with the United States," he said. "It would simply be completely destructive for their country if they were so rash as to do so."

'WITHDRAW 10,000'

Ribicoff said President Johnson should offer to withdraw 10,000 American troops from South Viet Nam if the Hanoi government would match the U.S. offer.

Johnson should personally invite participants to the proposed Geneva meeting, make it clear that no subject would be barred from the conference agenda and name UN Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg as chief negotiator, Ribicoff said.

The former secretary of health, education and welfare said he had written Johnson about his proposals.

The blacklisting of foreign ships that have traded with North Viet Nam began Jan. 25, it was revealed, but only came to light after the maritime administration listed the first group of barred ships in the federal register. The vessels are barred from transporting U.S.-financed cargoes from American ports.

MONEY CHANGEOVER

Spent the Old To Get the New

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters) Thousands of persons spent their old pounds, shillings and pence today on goods they really didn't need in order to get a quick look at the new dollars and cents, as Australia entered the decimal currency era.

The new currency consists of one, two, 10 and 20 dollar notes and coins of one, two, five, 10, 20 and 50 cents. The basic unit is the dollar, worth 10 Australian shillings (1.21 Canadian).

Sir Walter Scott, chairman of the decimal currency board, said that the changeover was going smoothly and efficiently.

He said there were isolated reports of shops raising prices, but in some of these cases this was due to the owner's failure to convert correctly.

But E. M. Walling, secretary of the 10,000 - member Housewives' Progressive Association, charged that scores of firms raised their prices during the last two or three months in anticipation of the changeover.

Prices which were not easily converted accurately had been adjusted upward, he said.

Both old and new currencies will be legal tender for two years.

The switch leaves Britain and New Zealand the only major trading nations still using the sterling system. New Zealand plans to convert to decimal currency next year, and Britain is thinking about it.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Western Oils Hold Spotlight

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canadian stock markets finished an active week of trading with western oils capturing most of the limelight.

At Toronto, volume was 31,505,186 shares compared with 26,539,757 last week and market value was $88,213,117 compared with $70,839,654.

Due to heavy demand in western oil stocks the oil index climbed 4.68 to 115.87, its highest level since August, 1957.

Some analysts attribute the increase to the designation of Alberta's Rainbow area as an oil field by the province's oil and gas conservation board.

Dynamic Petroleum, which had been delayed 1¼ hours following Thursday's stock opening, paced the group with a jump of 1.59 to 3.35 on 2,960,969 shares. It had been as high as 3.85.

DIFFICULT TO MATCH

The delay resulted from difficulty in matching buy and sell orders after the company announced it did not have information regarding a hole being drilled by Pan American Petroleum Corp. and Socon yMobil of Canada Ltd. in the Rainbow Lake area.

In other oil activity, Home Oil A was up 1⅞ to 20⅛, Scurry Rainbow 1½ to 22¾ and Canadian Superior 1 to 24.

Industrials were generally higher over a wide area of issues.

Banks were mixed with Imperial-Commerce up ½ to 68¼ and Montreal ¼ to 63¾. Toronto-Dominion was off 1½ to 65.

Anthes Imperial and B-A Oil gained ⅞ each to 27⅛ and 31. Wainwright climbed 1.05 to 1.90. Bell Telephone fell 1¼ to 58½ and CPR 1⅛ to 62¾.

LOSSES NOT REGAINED

Base metals failed to regain last week's losses. Falconbridge slid 3¼ to 105½, Cominco 1⅛ to 47 and Denison 1⅜ to 39. Inco was ahead 3 to 107.

Gold issues fell sharply. However, La Luz countered the trend and added 4⅜ at 24¼.

In speculative mine activity, D'Eldona lost 23 cents to 1.16 on 1,345,538 shares. Wilco was down 15 to 55 cents.

On index, industrials were up .15 to 174.18 and the TSE .19 to 164.85. Golds fell 3.23 to 178.24 and base metals 1.14 to 90.79.

At Montreal, industrials were up 1.53 to 170.98. Utilities were off 2.71 to 153.14, banks .21 to 127.95 and papers 1.27 to 124.07. Volume was 7,834,511 shares compared with 8,169,347 last week.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Inflation Holds Much Attention

NEW YORK (AP)—Much attention focused last week on the possibility of inflation and the ability of U.S. government guideposts to head off spiraling prices.

This came against the background of a business boom heading into its sixth year.

U.S. purchasing agents, reporting an increased number of shortages and rising prices, fear "inflation looms as a more serious threat than it has been in many years."

This was in response to a poll by the National Association of Purchasing Agents.

The survey of members showed 63 per cent of those queried paid more for their purchases in January than they did in December, up from 39 per cent who reported higher prices in December than in November.

The association noted that price pressure apparently has developed since August, 1962, and added:

"While purchasing agents have, during this time, repeatedly refused to be talked into an inflationary psychology, the danger of serious trouble must now be reckoned with."

UNEMPLOYMENT FALLS

The unemployment rate fell in January to four per cent of the labor force, the lowest since 1957.

The number of unemployed actually rose 402,000 to 3,290,000 but the gain at that time of the year usually is 500,000. Employment fell 1,520,000 to 71,229,000 but this was 200,000 short of the usual decline in January.

Consumer credit rose to a record $86,000,000,000 at the end of 1965, the Federal Reserve Board reported. Instalment credit accounted to $67,400,000,000 and showed a gain of $647,000,000 for December.

The automobile industry turned out an estimated 196,300 passenger cars this week, up 14 per cent from 172,049 last week but three per cent below 202,216 a year ago.

Steel production last week dropped to 2,422,000 tons from 2,440,000 the previous week, mainly because of snow storms in the northeastern part of the U.S.

Chrysler Shows Earnings Drop

NEW YORK (AP)—Chrysler Corp. reported 1965 earnings of $233,400,000, or $5.44 a share. This compared with $213,770,302, or $5.50 a share in 1964.

Chrysler had 42,869,867 shares outstanding in 1965 and 38,801,317 in 1964.

The company said pre-share earnings were down because of the greater amount of stock outstanding and heavy capital expenditures. Chrysler last year distributed 5,611,360 shares in a rights offering.

Suspend Trading In Rolling Hills

VANCOUVER—For the second time this year the Vancouver exchange Friday suspended trading in Rolling Hills. The ban came about an hour before the close of the session as rumors appeared about new drilling results. These took the shares up to 1.25 from .84. Trading will be resumed when the assays are published.

NEW TAX DEAL SUPPORTED

The Vancouver Island Building and Construction Trades Council is backing local governments in their efforts for a new tax deal with the provincial government.

The council has passed a resolution supporting the intermunicipal committee seeking a more equitable cost-sharing formula with the government.

BIG PROBLEM facing Britain's nationalized railways system is stations. They are too expensive to maintain and too costly to reduce. The central London area alone has 15 terminals, most of them built in the 19th century. Three of the better-known stations are: (from top) Charing Cross, Waterloo and Victoria. (CP Photo).

PLUMBERS, PIPEFITTERS

Inaccurate Notions Revealed by Survey

VANCOUVER (CP) — A report prepared for a management-union council says some popular notions involving at least one segment of the B.C. labor force are inaccurate.

The report, dealing with the mechanical construction trades — which includes plumbers, pipefitters and steamfitters — says:

- There is no shortage of skilled workers.
- There is substantial unemploment in the industry.
- The average skilled workman does not earn $10,000 or more a year in massive doses of overtime but rather earns about $5,000.
- The average worker, including those certified as skilled, is unemployed one month out of every three.

The report, produced by a firm of consulting economists for the mechanical industrial relations council, was released by the council Friday. The council represents most B.C. construction companies and the plumbers and pipefitters union.

Cost of the $8,000 survey was shared by both companies and the union.

Despite much talk in B.C. of a shortage of skilled labor, the report said, there is a waste of manpower in the mechanical construction trades because the industry is not organized so men can be continuously employed.

Bell Lauds Capitalism

VANCOUVER (CP) — Newspaper executive Max Bell praised capitalism Saturday as the only system that pays genuine homeage to the individual in democratic terms.

Mr. Bell, chairman of F P Publications Ltd., which owns eight major daily newspapers, including the Victoria Times, and a director of the CPR and the Bank of Nova Scotia, said capitalism is too often abused and too infreqently defended.

He maintained that foreign investment is good and necessary for the economy of Canada, and lashed out at inefficient government and unreasonable demands of government.

Mr. Bell, speaking to the Vancouver institute, said universal medicare in Britain and Saskatchewan has not improved the health of these communities—"but there is irrefutable evidence that the costs have risen alarmingly."

Arbitration Set

NEWARK, N.J. (AP)—Newark's mayor and the bargaining representatives for Newark's teachers agreed Friday night to submit a strike dispute over teachers' salaries to an impartial fact-finder. Mayor Hugh Addonizio and the Newark Teachers' Association also said they will accept the findings of the fact-finder.

Manager Named

M. D. Lawton has been appointed mine manager of the Anglo-Rouyn Mines Limited, Saskatchewan's newest metal mine, one half mile from the shore of Lac La Ronge. Mr. Lawton was previously project manager of this copper property which went into production in January. The appointment was announced by W. P. Arnold, Anglo-Rouyn vice-president, and mining division general manager of Rio Algom Mines Limited. Rio Algom holds a 58 per cent interest in Anglo-Rouyn.

GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Most prices were firm in dull trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. There was fair export interest.

Oilseeds were firm to higher, reflecting light hedging sales and occasional buying.

Feed grains were steady, influenced by inquiry for oats from West Germany and a reported sale of a cargo of barley to Israel.

Rye moved in a narrow range, following the trends of the Chicago market.

No information was available on export loadings of Canadian wheat.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were up ⅝ cent.

CHICAGO (AP)—Trade in the grain futures market attracted little speculative interest today and prices held within small fractions either way of previous closes most of the time.

Brokers said new market influences were scarce and minor although a fairly good volume of export business in corn was reported around midsession. However, it had nothing more than a steadying effect in the trade.

There appeared to have been a little support for new crop soybeans by speculators on the possibility that production this year might maintain the average rate of increase of the last several years and perhaps would be less than requirements.

SALES LEVY

Manitoba, Alberta Shun Tax

By The Canadian Press

The increase of Ontario sales tax to five from three per cent has made it the sixth province to reach this level or higher.

The Quebec rate is six per cent and the New Brunswick government has proposed raising that province's rate to six from three per cent. If passed by the legislature it would become effective April 1.

Across-Canada survey by The Canadian Press showed only two provinces with no general sales tax — Alberta and Manitoba. However, taxes are collected in Manitoba on petroleum products, utilities, tobacco products and liquor.

Four other provinces have five-per-cent sales taxes. They are Nova Scotia, Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and British Columbia. The Saskatchewan rate is four per cent.

Food, except delicacies, is exempt from sales tax in all 10 provinces. Only Newfoundland and Saskatchewan collect taxes on children's clothing.

64 ITEMS EXEMPT

Sixty-four items are exempt in Ontario, including farm machinery and optical, dental and hearing equipment, prescription medicines, home fuels, text books and draft beer.

Quebec also exempts children's footwear and, all prescription medicines.

Couples married in Saskatchewan on or after Feb. 25, 1965, can claim a rebate of $40 maximum in tax on household goods. Second-hand goods are not subject to sales tax and purchases by mail by non-residents are exempt. Other exemptions include railway rolling stock, orthopedic equipment, tobacco, medicine and newspapers.

Farmers and fishermen in Prince Edward Island and farmers in Nova Scotia can buy articles needed in their occupations without paying sales tax.

Footwear and medicine also are exempt in New Brunswick.

American Motors Closes 10 Days

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. announced today that it would shut down its assembly lines for 10 working days beginning Feb. 21 to "balance inventories with sales."

William V. Luneburg, AMC vice-president in charge of automotive manufacturing, said employees affected by the shutdown would return to work at the Kenosha and Milwaukee, Wis., plants March 7.

It was the second AMC suspension of car building operations in recent months.

MARKET SUMMARIES

VSE Trading 'A Powerhouse'

Rolling Hills, Brenda and Utica today featured what was described as "a powerhouse market" that traded 852,000 shares in the first hour at Vancouver.

Rolling Hills opened at $1.15 when it went back on the trading board.

It climbed quickly to $1.20, but by noon had fallen to 96 cents.

Rolling Hills was suspended from trading for the last hour on Friday when its stock suddenly jumped to $1.25 from 86 cents, attributed to rumors of an assay on a second hole at the company's property east of Pine Point in the Northwest Territories.

The hole assay, released after the market closed, showed widely - scattered, low - grade mineralization over some 184 feet.

Utica jumped .20 to $1.84.

Brenda Mines, which has a large low-grade copper - molybdenum prospect in the Okanagan, was the glamor stock in early trading.

It added $1.15 shortly after the opening for a high of $8.25. The stock had gained $3.30 last week.

AT TORONTO western oils and industrials continued to dominate heavy mid-afternoon trading.

Charter Oil led the advance climbing 1.10 to 5.90 on 70,000 shares. It had been as high as 6.90 in morning activity. Canadian Export Gas added 15 cents at 4.30 while Dynamic lost 15 cents to 3.20.

Bank issues were stronger with Royal up 1 to 78¾, Montreal and Imperial-Commerce ½ each to 64¼ and 68¾; and Nova Scotia ¼ to 74.

Among base metals, Hudson Bay increased 1 to 85, Noranda ⅞ to 64, Rio Algom ⅝ to 22 and Inco to 107½. Falconbridge was off ½ to 105.

Gold issues were lower. Dome dropped ⅜ to 41⅛ and Kerr Addison to 11¾. Hollinger and La Luz were up ¼ each to 28 and 24½.

AT NEW YORK rails were strong as industrials softened in a mixed stock market late this afternoon. Trading was active. Volume for the day was estimated at 8,200,000 shares compared with 8,190,000 Friday.

Chicago and North Western rose 4, its preferred 5. Up more than a point were Santa Fe, Chicago Great Western, Milwaukee Road and Illinois Central. Canadian Pacific gained more than 2.

Low-priced Atlas Corp., up a small fraction, appeared to be the most active stock. Also heavily traded, Texas Gulf Sulphur rose about 3 and Pan American Sulphur a fraction.

Down around 2 were National Airlines, United Aircraft and Eastern Airlines. IBM lost 3 and Xerox about 1½.

Ahead about a point were Outlet Co., Eastman Kodak, Merch, Johns-Manville and American Smelting.

Chrysler and Boeing lost a point each.

AT MONTREAL most sections moved fractionally higher in moderately active trading towards 2 p.m.

Industrial volume was 122,500 and mines and oils 891,800.

Base metals led the advance with Hudson Bay and Mining and Noranda each jumping one point to 85 and 54 respectively. International Nickel climbed ⅜ to 107⅜. Among the primary issues Algoma added ½ to 71½ and Dominion Bridge ¼ to 27¼.

'Must Seek Higher Pay

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) An associate research director for the Canadian Labor Congress says unions would be irresponsible if they did not continue to seek higher wages.

Russell Irvine told an education seminar sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Labor that holding the line on wages would reduce purchasing power and the growth needed to generate the 1,000,000 new jobs necessary by 1970.

Mr. Irvine said Sunday that panic in Ottawa over recent price increases of some commodities has been reflected in proposals for cutbacks in social capital and public works, steps that would lead to a recession.

"It would be irresponsible to bow to the pressures of the more irrational elements in Ottawa to hold the line on wages."

He said the labor movement in Canada is prepared to discuss a national incomes policy if danger of inflation arises, but this must include rents, profits and managerial salaries.

POSTMAN CO-OPERATED

Shower of Valentines To Surprise Shut-In

By ELIZABETH FORBES

This is Valentine's Day! Messages have been flying back and forth across the country. Parents and children and grandchildren have received colorful cards, some made by childish hands.

Forbes

Sweethearts have conversed in the universal language of love and those who prefer to spice their offerings with humor have had a field day.

I don't suppose anyone in Victoria has enjoyed this day more than a young lady, crowding 17 years, who, if everything went according to plan, received a deluge of valentines this afternoon, from near and far.

Her first name is Susan. She's a "shut-in." A polio patient who is unable to use her legs.

★ ★ ★

Susan attends First United Church. When she does, she is carried in by her widowed mother and a friend.

A while back, someone who also attends this church and who had seen Susan and her mother there conceived the idea that it would be a wonderful surprise if she received an anonymous "shower of valentines" on this Feb. 14.

The person who had this thought (I'm sorry, I don't know if it's a man or a woman) set to work to make a list of people that just possibly might co-operate.

When the list was completed a letter had to be composed, telling Susan about the idea. These letters were sent anonymously to each person on the list. Stamped envelopes were also included and with each envelope went a suitable valentine.

★ ★ ★

I received one of the letters. In essence it read:

"If you approve of the idea will you kindly address the envelope as given at the top (it was Susan's full name and address). Add your initials ONLY and Victoria, to the valentine herewith together with any little message of good wishes. Seal it, postage is on the envelope. MAIL this on 9th February, Thursday."

How did this unkown friend of Susan arrange so that valentines, posted not only in Victoria but in Florida, Arizona, California, State of Washington, the seven western provinces and also in London, England, and Buenos Aires in the Argentine, would all reach the young recipient on the same day?

★ ★ ★

Officials in our main post office co-operated. They gathered mail arriving for Susan over a period of several days ahead of this date and made sure it was delivered all at one time. That time was this afternoon.

Last sentence in the letter of instructions assured that Susan would have a real surprise, as those chosen to send cards or messages were entirely unknown to her.

There was an expression of thanks, too, in anticipation of "assistance in this little valentine surprise for a wonderful girl."

I didn't know Susan before I received that letter. Actually, I do not know her now.

★ ★ ★

I can only guess that anyone who inspired an unknown friend to organize this delightful project must be a very fine girl.

I hope that today Susan's mail came in an extra large bundle. I hope she is still opening her valentines. I hope that as she touches each one, she will know that with every card comes the warmth of friendship and a wish for her health and happiness.

I know that the person who thought of the idea and who carried it through to a successful conclusion must be happy in the knowledge that Susan is happy.

We, who assisted by sending one small card each, are sharing in that happiness.

Indeed, it was a wonderful idea!

SURGEON NEAR DEATH

Severed Hand Mailed to Wife

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A surgeon from India was near death today after what police described as a bizarre self-amputation of his right hand, which he sent by a taxi driver to his estranged wife.

The husband was identified by police as Dr. Khurshed Ansari, 30, a resident in neurosurgery at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, where he was taken after police found him on the floor of his blood-spattered apartment.

The severed hand was received early Sunday by a roommate of Dr. Ansari's wife, Margaret, 26, in a dormitory of Children's Hospital, where Mrs. Ansari is a staff physician.

Dr. Caroline Romshe, 28, said she received the package which had become blood-soaked and partly opened. She found the hand in the parcel with a note which read: "This is the hand that caused the trouble."

She telephoned police, who went to Dr. Ansari's apartment and found him lying in a coma on the floor of the bathroom.

Police said friends of the Ansaris told of having heard Mrs. Ansari talk of divorce.

HANGING ON TIGHT to surviving Hayward dog, Brindle, is Hayward nephew, Robbie Goulden, 3. Brindle is daughter of Shetland sheep dog, Lady, poisoned Friday. Evidence suggests Lady's death was latest of many dog poisonings on Cadillac Ave. (Times Photo.)

AGONIZING DEATH FOR DOG

POISONINGS START AGAIN

'All of a Sudden Her Hind Legs Went Stiff'

By GLEN ALLEN

Lady, a friendly two-year-old Shetland sheep dog, died a horrible death Friday night.

Her owners, Sid and Barbara Hayward, 52 Cadillac, have been told she was poisoned.

"She's the third in a month and about the twelfth in two years to die from strychnine poisoning on our street," says Mr. Hayward.

"We went around to tell the neighbors she had died and learned about the others.

"It was horrible. Our nieces and nephews had just come from Edmonton to visit us.

Lady had been in and out with them all day. When she came in for the night, all of a sudden her hind legs went stiff. It looked like she was trying to swallow her tongue.

"She died in the taxi," says Barbara. "She was my baby."

Dr. M. L. Olsen said he assumed Lady died from strychnine poisoning.

"Though I haven't done an autopsy on her, I think from the symptoms they describe that's what it must have been."

He said there are epidemics of it from time to time.

"I don't know what brings it on—either misplaced rat poison or something more deliberate."

It looks strangely like "something deliberate" in the area bounded by Cadillac and Rowland Avenues.

A random check by house call and telephone revealed many householders who had lost their dogs and cats in mysterious circumstances in the past few years.

Elaine Canham, 85 Cadillac, whose year-old Labrador died last Christmas, said her vet confirmed the dog was killed by strychnine.

"She was a very friendly puppy," says Mrs. Canham.

"We can't believe anyone would kill her on purpose.

"We think somebody is setting poison out on the street but we can't prove it.

"What we're really worried about now is the children getting it.

"We're going to get a German Shepherd next week. If anything happens to it, so help me . . ."

Mrs. Canham's neighbor, Mrs. Elaine Nixon, 71 Cadillac, also lost a Labrador at Christmas on the same day.

Mrs. Nixon said she knew of five cases of suspected poisoning of dogs from Rowland Avenue.

Another woman on Cadillac who declined to give her name said, "I've been here nine years, and it's happened every year without fail. Always several dogs and a few cats."

Mrs. Edna Waddington, 41 Cadillac, said she had lost her cat by poisoning and had heard of other cats dying the same way.

A woman on Rowland who did not wish her name published said her dog was poisoned by strychnine two years ago.

"The vet saved him once, but the second time he didn't pull through.

"We won't get another pet. Why get them if they're going to die that way.

"All we have now is mice."

An SPCA official is investigating.

Pennock received the 12-month sentence.

Magistrate William Ostler termed him as the "principal instigator and ringleader of these activities."

City coroner Edmond Jore de St. Jorre today called an inquest into the traffic death Friday night of Mrs. Verna Carter Petrie, 65, of 2310 Dolphin Rd., Swartz Bay.

It will be held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. in Sands Mortuary, Quadra St.

Police said she was struck by a pick-up truck as she crossed Pat Bay Highway on foot near Piedmont Drive.

They identified the driver of the truck as Allan Gordon Smith, 32, of 6603 Tunstead Rd., Central Saanich.

Police said Mrs. Petrie was crossing to get to her car parked on the other side of the road.

★ ★ ★

Canadian coins volued at $39 were taken from the apartment of R. A. Gaundry, 2622 Quadra, city police said today.

The theft is believed to have occurred sometime last week.

Professional Job Pulled At Auto Firm

A Sunday night safecracking at National Motors, 819 Yates, netted thieves $403.

A hole was blown in the wall next to the walk-in vault to get at the money in two metal cash boxes.

Two other city businesses were broken into during the weekend.

Nothing was taken from a safe at United Auto Wrecking, 420 Bay Street, and cutting torches were taken from Jim Dandy Cleanup Service, 3252 Irma.

Police said the safe jobs were done "by professionals or a professional."

Thursday night a blown safe at Palm Dairies Ltd., 930 North Park Street, yielded $400 and a quantity of milk tokens.

Entry to the auto dealer's premises was gained by forcing a roof window at the rear of the building.

KNOCKED DIAL OFF

The yeggs first knocked the dial off the safe and drilled a hole near the door spindle.

A small amount of forcite was inserted in the ¼-inch hole but a blast attempt proved unsuccessful, police said.

So two holes were drilled in the wall adjoining the door and another opening was blasted out about three feet up from the floor.

CRAWLED THROUGH

Thieves were then able to crawl through the opening into the vault where they found the two cash boxes.

No attemp was made on a smaller safe inside the vault, police said.

Police found three metal drilling bits at the scene and two men's socks.

Thieves entered the auto wreckers' premises by pushing out a plywood section on a rear door.

JIMMIED

They carried a filing cabinet-type safe from the front office to the rear of the building and jimmied it with a small crowbar.

A desk in the main office was also ransacked.

They got into the cleaning establishment by forcing a rear window. Taken was 50 feet of hose and cutting torches, regulators and gauges.

FOUND BY BOYS

Meanwhile, two boys have been credited with the discovery of the cash box taken from the Palm Dairies safecracking.

The box was found Saturday by Glen Isberg, eight, of 1238 Vista Heights, and Jim Clarkson, 12, of 1215 Montrose.

They found it in blackberry bushes near Smith's Hill reservoir.

Police recovered $54.11 in milk tokens found in the box and bushes nearby. The $400 was gone.

Fire Chief, Inspectors Take Stock of School

Mother Sounds Warning Against Hasty Action on Alternatives

Fire Chief James Allen and several city inspectors this morning carried out a safety inspection of North Ward School.

They said later that they would make their report to the school board and it would be up to the board whether to make it public.

The board was to meet this afternoon with city council to discuss the future of North Ward School.

The 72-year-old school has been under fire during the past week from parents of pupils. They are concerned about the safety of their children in the ancient, dilapidated building.

They are pressing the city to rush urban renewal plans in order to clear a site on which a new school can be built. The school board has been waiting four years for the new school site.

Mayor Toone last week suggested the board provide alternative accommodation for students until the new school is built.

SHIFT SYSTEM

But this morning one of the parents warned against any hasty action in transferring children from the school.

Mrs. Irene Rowan, 2721 Rock Bay, said that if North Ward youngsters were transferred to other schools it would result in a shift-system of classes.

"This would be bad not only for our children but for the ones they would replace. And it is out of the question to put North Ward students in such places as the Arena, or the Armoury or Holywood House as has been suggested."

Mrs. Rowan said these places have no facilities for teaching and no equipment.

"Our children would be worse off than if they stayed where they are.

"If the city inspectors say the present school is structurally sound and safe—or could be made safe with a few repairs—then the children should stay there until a new school is built."

Mrs. Rowan said the safety checks should be made thoroughly.

"I know when we have Home and School Association meetings we can't plug in two appliances at once without blowing a fuse."

BOYCOTT

Mrs. Rowan said "a large number of parents" she has talked to "are quite serious when they threaten to keep their youngsters away from school because of the conditions there."

PARK TOWN OPPOSED BY DIRECTOR

Harold McWilliams, director of the provincial parks branch, today strongly opposed the proposal to put Western Mines townsite inside Strathcona Park.

He told a special legislative committee he is adamantly opposed to the company's request to locate a townsite for its employees near the mine at Buttle Lake Narrows on about 300 acres of forested lakeshore.

"A townsite would be entirely foreign in a naturalistic park," he told the committee.

"The scarcity of useable land along the shore of Buttle Lake makes it imperative that every available section be retained for recreational use."

Mr. McWilliams said the townsite should be located outside the park border, about 30 miles from the mine, on property that could be bought from Elk Timber Company.

Sermons and Hymns Strictly Dullsville Youths Tell Elders

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Times Church Editor

Church services are dull and boring. Many of the hymns are meaningless and most of the sermons are out of touch with the times.

Such were the opinions of teenagers attending a conference on church worship in the Fellowhip Hall of St. David-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, Sunday night.

They were among 35 youngsters of different church denominations who were asked to contribute to a discussion on Why People Don't Go to Church.

"We asked for frank opinions and we got them," said Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of St. David's and organizer of a 10-week course on worship sponsored by the Anglican Diocesan Board of Religious Education.

The teen-agers came up with these objections:

Most church services are over their heads and they get no inspiration from them. The Bible readings are phrased in a language they don't understand. Many of the hymns are meaningless and the tunes are dull and old-fashioned. The sermons are long-winded and concerned with people who belong to the past.

"The relationships between young people and adults in church life are very poor," said a university student.

"The older people are satisfied with the form of worship because they have grown up with it and don't want anything different.

'SUSPICIOUS'

"Many are suspicious of the younger generation and there is a lack of trust and understanding between them."

Another student said adult churchgoers underestimate what young people can do and give them little opportunity to express themselves creatively.

Some 25 adults taking part in the discussion were outnumbered by the 35 teen-agers.

"We were frankly surprised at some of the views expressed by the young people," Mr. Walker said, "but we hope they continue to give us honest opinions. The church must keep pace with the times and its future rests with the younger generation."

Monsignor Michael O'Connell, chancellor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Victoria, participated in the discussion with representatives of Anglican, United and Baptist congregations.

DRASTIC CHANGES

He said the Roman Catholic Church has made drastic revisions in its form of worship in order to relate itself to the modern world and to other Christian churches.

"English is replacing Latin in the celebration of the mass and this trend is likely to continue," Monsignor O'Connell said.

"The priest no longer conducts Holy Communion with his back to the congregation. He faces the congregation in dialogue with the people.

"The trend is towards a more intimate type of worship."

Father Pierre Berger, Roman Catholic chaplain at the Colquitz Jail on Wilkinson Rd., will speak at a second conference in the Fellowship Hall, Cordova Bay, tonight at 7:45.

The discussions will continue every Sunday, Monday and Wednesday for 10 weeks.

Discussion leaders are John Lort, chief librarian at Victoria Public Library; Alan Newberry, principal of Sooke Elementary School; Faith Lort, Win Life and Mr. Walker.

Ask The Times

Q. How much beer or how many ounces of rye whisky would the average person have to consume to show .05 per cent blood-alcohol content? A. B.

A. A 150-pound man would have to drink at least 2.5 ounces of hard liquor or one and three-quarter bottles of beer to attain this reading.

Or he could also drink seven ounces of wine, says city police breathalyzer expert Sgt. Dick Ward.

But all this depends on the condition of the man's stomach, he points out.

To illustrate this, he referred to a recent test taken here among men who were being trained as breathalyzer operators.

One man had a light breakfast of toast and another had one pound of fried cod. Each drank six ounces of hard liquor over a four-hour period.

The man who ate toast rose rapidly to a .07 reading while the other remained at .03 per cent.

Both eliminated their alcohol at the same rate of .015 per cent per hour.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Sea of Trouble Awaits The Unskilled Skindiver

By JACQUES ROUSSEAUX

Playing "Seahunt" is a favorite game with young television buffs, but "parents beware, it's a deadly game."

The warning came today from Art Burgess, YM-YWCA physical director, as the water-sports season approaches.

Skindiving is no game. Its a serious sport and can be dangerous.

The "Y" official said one of the dangers lies on store shelves—the underwater masks and fins. Some are poorly made and cheap.

●

"We might as well make firearms readily available to children because they couldn't be any more lethal," he said.

Handled with care—controlled training, discipline and respect—skindiving is a pleasant sport.

To promote underwater safety and fellowship among enthusiasts, the "Y" has formed the Aqua-Knights Skindiving Club.

Strict qualifications must be met by prospective members. The applicant has to have a "Stage 5" swimmer's badge (accredited proficient swimmer) and must be a mature individual.

"There's no room for horsing around, here," Mr. Burgess said.

The trainee must learn 25 water skills with emphasis on safety and endurance.

He learns underwater-life basics, marine safety, first aid and then is taught the "skill of skindiving."

The training is done in the "Y" pool. The trainee must pass rigorous tests.

The club has been in operation eight months and so far has restricted the use of SCUBA gear.

"Early SCUBA (Self-Contined Underwater Breathing Apparatus) use kills most novices," Mr. Burgess said.

"If you go underwater with SCUBA gear without complete training, you literally take your life in your hands.

●

"You should have at least one year of skindiving first."

During the year "Y" instructors add spice to the training by organizing spearfishing competitions for the 24 club members.

A meet on Sunday at Horseshoe Bay at Beacon Hill Park was suspended 30 minutes after it started because of rough seas and wind. It will be rescheduled.

"We don't take any chances," Mr. Burgess said.

Man Injures Leg, Hip In Collision

A man was rushed to hospital Saturday afternoon with leg and hip injuries following a two-car collision at Bay and Tyee Rd.

In fairly good condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital is Robert Halbert, 26, of 65 Kingham Place.

Police said he was driving east on Bay when in collision with an auto driven by Margaret Bradley, 1259 Richardson, as she was turning from Bay to Tyee Road.

In another weekend accident, Herbert Arthur Stark, 20, of 1424 Hillside, escaped with only a cut hand when he flipped his sports car Sunday morning.

Police said his car was found upside down in a ditch off the Trans-Canada Highway near Goldstream Park.

He was heading south on the highway at the time of the mishap.

Girl Breaks Leg In Beach Fall

A 13-year-old girl suffered a fractured leg following a fall Sunday at a Dallas Rd. beach near Wellington St.

Police said Dorothy Louise Smith, 13, of 100 Wellington, suffered a severe fracture of the left leg above the knee.

FUNERAL TUESDAY FOR SLAIN CHILD

Funeral services for seven-year-old Linda Crocker, slain near her Brentwood home Thursday, will be held Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

They will be held in Brentwood College Chapel followed by interment in Royal Oak Burial Park.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Crocker, 6875 Woodward Dr., and is also survived by a brother and sister.

The pretty, blonde youngster was found strangled and beaten on a rock bluff a quarter of a mile from her home Thursday evening.

Police have charged a 16-year-old youth in connection with the slaying. He will re-appear in juvenile court Wednesday.

Central Saanich coroner D. G. Ashby said today an autopsy revealed the tot's death was caused by "asphyxiation, shock and multiple injuries."

He added he "couldn't say" whether or not she was sexually assaulted.

The girl was found only partially clothed after a search was instigated when she failed to return home after playing with school chums.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Insufficient Evidence

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Recently, someone I know very well (I'll call her Vera), made a 6,000-mile round trip in order to be with her daughter when she gave birth to her first baby. Vera stayed 10 days, leaving her own husband at home with a heart condition. He didn't want her to make the trip, but Vera convinced him that she had to go. Vera returned exhausted. I told her that she should have stayed home and sent her daughter the money to hire a competent helper. And later on, she could have made the trip with her husband to see the daughter and new grandchild. Vera insisted that her presence at the time of the child's birth was necessary and appreciated, and she had no choice but to go. What do you think?

"CURIOUS."

DEAR CURIOUS: I would have to know more about the husband's "heart condition," and how he really felt about Vera's making the trip. Also more about the relationship between Vera and her daughter and their respective financial situations. I would also have to know how accurate your reporting is, who YOU are, and why you are so "curious."

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend, a married woman, who has a collection of hub caps you wouldn't believe. She said she "bought" some, and others were given to her, but I found out different. Last evening I saw this woman walk over to the curb, take a screwdriver out of her purse, and remove the hub caps from a parked car. What would you do in a case like this? A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Your friend is a thief. Tell her what you know and urge her to stop "collecting" before she collects a jail sentence.

DEAR ABBY: I seldom saw my daughter studying, so I wasn't too surprised when she brought home a warning that she was failing in two subjects. Her teacher called and asked me to come to school for a private conference. I did, and this is what I learned:

My daughter had told the teacher she was failing in school because of her "home situation." She said her father and mother fight constantly about bills, and his drinking. Also that I sleep all day and she (the child) has to do all the cooking and housekeeping. Abby, I just don't know what to do about this because there is not one word of truth in it. My husband and I get along very well. I am a competent cook and housekeeper and neither my husband nor I drink. Why on earth would a child make up such wild tales? Can you help me?

FLABBERGASTED

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Whether your daughter is just an imaginative storyteller or is psychologically disturbed is something you should look into. If her school provides a counselling service for "problem children," utilize it. If not, ask your family doctor or pediatrician for his recommendation.

CONFIDENTIAL TO C.W.F.: Every man must do his own growing, no matter who his grandfather was.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Look and Feel Better In This Cosy Sweater

By Penny Saver

Thinking of the staccato pace that people today are trying to maintain, the ideal name for our world would be the "a-go-go" world. There seems to be no time at all to sit still, as something pressing is always around the corner. Women in particular are always "on the go." After a day spent shopping, or a hard day at the office, it is difficult for a woman to come home and feel in the mood for starting her chores. I have found that it helps considerably to dress in something feminine and comfortable after such a day. If you look better, you feel better.

In one shop, I spotted perky skirt-toppers that are a boom to my wardrobe. These are the new shell sweaters, made of washable orlon. Shells have been on the market now for quite some time, but the new styles for 1966 have marked a change in these sweaters.

Completely adorable crocheted wonders are a 'must' at $3.98 to $14.95. The colors are so soft that you feel better just looking at them. Shades are blues, pinks and white. Some sweaters are plain in color scheme but not in style.

I was surprised to find the high, turtle-neck collar appearing on these sleeveless creations. These have a small zipper in the back. Others still retain the dainty rounded neckline, with the buttoned back.

Necklines and sleeves are edged with heavy crocheting. In some, this edging is done in another color, to perk up the sweater. Others have the same crochet work appearing on the waistband. This new look in the shell world will do wonders for your after-five wardrobe. Pick one up and see for yourself.

Some women prefer a little luxury item to boost their spirits. These articles are those which you buy after saving "for a rainy day", as the saying goes.

My morale booster is a hand-woven handbag. These charmers are made right here in Victoria, by skilled craftsmen. They feature a gold chain and clasp, and sell for $20. Buy one to match a coat or suit. You'll be glad you did.

Remember, if you want to know where Penny shopped for these spirit-lifting items, give her a call at 382-3131.

THE BETTER HALF By Bob Barnes

"I'm sorry to report that one of our employees was attacked without provocation by your lavender girdle."

Let's hit the waistline again! If you have a slim waist you will feel younger and look slimmer even if you have a few pounds to lose. This is the measurement which gives your silhouette either a youthful or a middle-aged appearance, perhaps more than any other.

The abdominal muscles play a part in the size of the waist. This exercise is fairly difficult but I think that many of you are now ready for it. It is slimming to the waist and flattening to the abdomen. Lie on your back on the floor with your legs straight and your arms extending straight out from the shoulders, palms toward the floor. Now swing your legs like the pendulum of a clock, knees stiff, first as far to the right as you can go and then as far to the left, and continue.

WHY GROW OLD?

How Many Calories Will Maintain Ideal Weight

Here we are with February well launched and speeding along. Lovely spring clothes are already winking at us from store windows, reminding us of the soft, lovely, romantic days just ahead. They also remind us that if we are to do the clothes justice we will have to work on any bulges and rolls, overweight and droops we may have.

Lowman

This is the sixth week of my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan. Those of you who have been following it from the first must be happy by now, but don't settle for less than the best. Keep on until you have reached your goal. Many of you started late and have several weeks longer than two to go.

Anyway, by now many of you are beginning to wonder how many calories you should have in order to maintain your ideal weight once you have reached it. When calculating the number of calories you will need, you must consider two factors. First is the so-called minimum calorie need or the number of calories required just to keep your body functioning. Second are the calories needed for your daily activities, work and play.

The minimum calorie need is influenced by age, size, and the composition of the body. Larger folks need more calories than smaller folks to keep the body running. Men usually need more than women and older people fewer than younger ones. The number of calories required for your activities, of course, depends on the kind of activity and the length of time you indulge in it.

You can get a general idea of how many calories you need to maintain your ideal weight if you are moderately active by multiplying it by 18 if you are a woman and by 21 if you are a man. If you are quite active you will need about one-fourth more calories. If most of your work or life is sedentary you will need about one-fourth fewer calories.

Here is today's sample menu for those of you who want to lose 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks or about 2½ pounds a week.

SAMPLE MENUS

BREAKFAST

Half medium grapefruit with one teaspoon sugar, 1 slice toast with one teaspoon butter or margarine, 3 slices crisp bacon, coffee with one teaspoon sugar.

LUNCHEON

Two scrambled eggs with one teaspoon butter, 1 slice whole wheat toast with one teaspoon butter, ¾-cup broccoli or other green, with lemon juice, 8-oz. skim milk.

DINNER

One cup consomme, celery curls, 5 oz. roast leg of lamb, ½-cup rice seasoned with onion salt or chopped chives, lettuce salad with reducing dressing, ½-cup jello.

Before retiring one cup tomato juice.

Total calories for the day — 1245.

If you missed my Eight Week Beauty Improvement Plan for a loss of 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks (there's still time before real spring) you may want to start now. If so send 25 cents, plus 15 cents for postage and handling and your printed name and address to Josephine Lowman in car of this newspaper. Ask for the BIP Kit.

Pancakes With a Difference

This is the time of year when pancakes come into their own. Smart housewives are already giving some thought to the type they'll serve on Shrove Tuesday Feb. 22.

If your family is beginning to take the versatile pancake for granted, serve them these . . . they'll imagine they're enjoying a mid-winter vacation in sunny Mexico.

MEXICAN TACOS

One and one-quarter cups pancake mix, ½ cup corn meal, 1¼ cups milk, 1 pound minced beef, ⅔ cup catsup, ½ cup shredded Cheddar cheese, 1 15-oz. tin fancy peas, drained.

Beat together pancake mix, corn meal and milk until just blended. Bake pancakes on hot griddle. Pancakes should be thin and just about five inches in diameter. Meanwhile, cook minced beef in frying pan.

When done, stir in catsup, cheese and peas.

As soon as peas are heated, place a spoonful of mixture on each pancake and fold in half. Makes six to eight servings.

New Punch In Acadian Makers Say

Acadian has packaged new power in an all-new design for 1966, General Motors of Canada states.

All six Acadian models in three series have been completely redesigned to add new styling touches and to emphasize the wide, low appearance. The three series are: Invader, Canso and the Canso Sport De Luxe.

New, more powerful engine models are available in addition to regular low-cost power.

The body is completely new —new roofline on coupes and sedans, new bumpers and an extended grille. A new grille-bumper-headlight complex combines to emphasize a low, road-hugging appearance.

New tail-lamps combine with a redesigned bumper which features wide, horizontal lines to again emphasize the low look. New backup lights standard in all models for 1966 are recessed.

There are all-new body panels, windows, fenders and hood and new series ornamentation

Inside, the padded instrument panel has been redesigned. Interior trims have been changed and match beautifuly with the 18 exterior colors — 11 of which are new.

All models have thick fiberglas felt hood insulation this year. Other features: A new four-way ignition switch with a depressed "accessory" position. This prevents battery drain through accidentally leaving the ignition switch on. There are head rests available for bucket or bench-type seats.

THREE WAYS to buckle up for safety are demonstrated, not by twins but by model Loretta Bergen in a montage. In the front seat she wears a standard lap belt with the new Chrysler installed shoulder belt. In the back seat she wears the lap belt which has been factory installed in all Chrysler cars since last April.

SHOULDER BELTS SAFETY OPTION

Front seat shoulder belts are an added safety option on all all 1966 Chrysler Canada Ltd. cars. The shoulder belts are a dealer-installed accessory and supplement the standard equipment front seat lap belts.

It is important to note that the shoulder belt is not intended to replace the lap belt, but rather serves to increase the basic body protection offered by the front seat lap belt.

Some of the specific advantages of the Chrysler shoulder belt are:

—It can be added to any 1962 or later model Chrysler-built car.

—It allows use of the lap belt by the guest passenger who is not accustomed to wearing both lap and shoulder belts.

—It can be adjusted separately without affecting the tension on the lap belt.

—It can be installed and used safely with any body style, not being dependent upon anchorages in the roof or side pillars. It is available for convertibles and hardtops as well as for sedans and station wagons.

It is attached to the rear wheelhouse structure to provide a rearward restraint rather than a downward pull such as is exerted by shoulder belts anchored immediately behind the front seat.

—The Chrysler shoulder belts allow for individual adjustment for maximum comfort and safety. Not only can the wearer adjust the shoulder belt tension for comfort but he can also shift the buckle and adjust to the area alongside the hip.

Ten years ago, Chrysler offered a lap-type safety belt for every occupant as a first step in promoting greater protection from serious injuries in the event of a collision.

This simple but effective safety advancement ultimately gained widespread acceptance from various safety-oriented organizations as well as from the general public.

Automobile crash studies carried out since 1954 by Cornell University dramatized the importance of keeping the occupant inside the vehicle to reduce injuries in the event of a collision. Restraining the occupant by the use of a lap belt has been shown to save lives and to provide further reductions in injuries.

Research information has been made available by the University of California showing that much greater protection from such impact becomes possible when the occupant supplements his lap belt with a shoulder belt.

Collision research studies by Chrysler have emphasized the necessity of adding the upper torso restraint via shoulder belts for maximum protection.

In exhaustive tests, shoulder belts have been found to:

. . . Minimize the likelihood of injuries to the head and chest resulting from striking the steering wheel, windshield, instrument panel and other surfaces directly in front of the driver and his passengers.

. . . Provide a restraint of the occupant that reduces the risk of knee impact during a forward collision.

Safari Stands Up to a Rhino

In a bid to increase its share of the utility vehicle market the British Motor Corporation has introduced a new on-or-off-the-road vehicle, the Austin Gipsy Safari.

After being tested for 100,000 miles in Africa and South America, BMC claims the vehicle will stand up to the charge of a rhinoceros; survive the fall of a heavy tree; and in its double capacity as a personnel carrier, hold seven men plus equipment.

In its North American capacity the vehicle is ideal for heavy bush work yet can cruise comfortably on the highway.

The large cabin can be removed to turn the Gipsy into a pickup truck or hold a netted cougar. On top of the cabin there is a heat shield which bounces tropical sunlight off the vehicle. BMC claims, in the tropics, the Gipsy is the coolest ride around.

At the front of the vehicle there is a drum winch with a maximum pull of 2,500 pounds and at the rear of the vehicle there is a rig for a drum pulley which can be used to drive stationary farm machinery.

For power the Gipsy packs a heavy-duty 2.2-litre BMC engine which makes light of the four-wheel drive duties. Leaf spring and independent flexitor suspension get the Gipsy through anything.

Other features of the vehicle are iron bars to protect rear tail and flasher lights; room for three people in the driving cab; spare wheel mounted on top of the engine hood; side hinged rear door; mounting step, rubber mats and roof vent.

VALIANT GETS THAT 'SPRIGHTLY LOOK'

A sprightly new look has come to the Valiant this year as refinements to styling, performance and comfort further enhance this popular car.

Strong on quality and ride, Valiant for 1966 offers a wide range of body styles and options to satisfy individual tastes and preferences.

Body style, which follows in the well-established Valiant reputation for attractive simplicity, is highlighted by a striking new grille.

The bold theme presented by the new grille is carried gracefully back in flowing contours to the neatly-tailored rear end.

Ten new colors are included in the range of 18 exterior finishes all in the remarkable Acrylustre which, with simple buffing, keeps a car looking in showroom condition.

Tasteful ornamentation sets off the slim, trim Valiant lines.

Deep-skirted front and rear bumpers eliminate any further need for protective stone pans and are designed with high-impact points for extra protection to the grille and rear.

Rubber-faced bumper guards, front and rear, are optional.

New and improved interiors build even greater value into the Valiant.

A choice of five colors is possible in the all-vinyl trim that highlights the high-line Signet. Bucket seats are of a new design that adds greatly to driving comfort and interior appearance.

A new full-size floor console accommodates a choice of two new gear selection levers. These levers in both automatic and manual transmission systems have a new lockout feature that prevents the driver from inadvertently selecting reverse gear.

The engine lineup ranges from the powerful 273-cubic-inch V-8 that can come equipped with a four-barrel carburetor option, through the peppy 225-cubic-inch six cylinder, to the economical and spunky 170-cubic-inch six cylinder.

Design revisions to engine mounting, suspension and steering add to Valiant's fine handling, performance and smooth-riding characteristics.

New Chev Series Tops Its '66 Innovations

New styling, new power and an all-new series — the Caprice — highlight Chevrolet for 1966, says General Motors of Canada.

The Caprice series is "top of the line" and includes a custom coupe with a distinctive roofline, a custom sedan model and a six-passenger station wagon with wood-grained trim. A nine-passenger station wagon is also available.

Chevrolet's lineup totals 15 models in four series. The line includes Chevrolet, Chevelle, Chevy II, Corvair and Corvette.

●

Chevelle has a full range of two and four-door sedans, convertibles and coupes, in two series with nine models.

Chevy II has six models in three series — all redesigned.

Corvair, with the Corsa, Monza and the 500 series, returns with optional turbo supercharged rear-engine power. Also available are both models of the powerful Corvette Sting Ray.

All models have been restyled for '66 in sparkling new colors, dazzling new interiors, and the longer, lower and wider look that will be the pace-setter this year.

●

All Chevrolets feature full-coil front and rear suspension with tailored springs and refined shock absorbers, wide-stance tread design, thick body mounts, and sound and vibration absorbers and sealers at hundreds of points.

As standard equipment, all the new models have a new smooth-operating three-speed transmission that can be shifted into low without first coming to a halt.

The range of power teams is higher than ever before. The literally hundreds of options mean that the new cars are virtually custom built.

Instrument panel pad and padded sun visors are standard along with a host of features that include: Seat belts front and rear, two-speed windshield wipers with glare-resistant arms, windshield washer, outside mirror, shatter-resistant inside mirror and backup lights.

The 15-model lineup for Chevrolet is in four series — Caprice, Impala, Bel Air and Biscayne.

Impala has a new sport option expected to win high favor with purchasers of Impala sport coupes and convertibles.

A luxurious special sport interior is standard equipment for the Caprice coupe. It includes slim, tapered stratobucket seats, a lower instrument panel, and a centre console with a lighted carpet-lined compartment, ashtray, courtesy light with trim matching other insets in the interior. The console contains calibrated generator, temperature, vacuun and oil pressure gauges.

Elegance is standard with Caprice. Interiors are color-teriors, insets with the look of hand-rubbed walnut enrich the doors, instrument panel, glove compartment door, floor console and the steering wheel horn ring.

New exterior ornamentation emblems and name plates give a distinctive touch to Chevrolet's low-lying silhouette. All models have newly styled front fenders and grilles, rear quarters, deck-like front and rear bumpers and distinctive tail-lamps.

Available on all Caprice models this year are adjustable front seat headrests, a tilt-steering wheel and a bucket seat for the driver that can be power-adjusted four ways.

GM Exceeds Car, Truck Records

General Motors of Canada has reported that record-breaking sales by its dealers in 1965 of 354,849 North American type cars and trucks exceeded the previous record established in 1964 by 8,735 vehicles.

December sales totalled a record 30,228 units compared with 13,658 in December, 1964, when dealer inventories were low due to strikes at GM plants.

The company also reported that domestic sales of North American type cars and trucks by GM during the past year were up 19 per cent over 1964. Of 1965's total, 300,697 were passenger cars and 54,152 were trucks.

BMC Says You Can Please Everybody —It's Automatic

Who said you can't please everybody?

The British Motor Corporation of Canada says you can and they have.

Soon you can have an automatic Mini or an Austin 1100.

The Mini — the car that won more international competitive events than any other of its kind — is the smallest in the world to have automatic transmission

With it and the 1100, BMC sees another great step forward as leaders in automotive ingenuity.

But back to automatic transmission with a difference . . . simply, it works this way:

You can be on automatic, but if you want to switch to feel the thrill of the smooth gear stick change you can.

A central floor-mounted gear lever can be used to select either fully automatic operation of the gearbox or to make individual changes between any of the four forward gears. With the 2nd, 3rd or 4th gears selected individually full engine braking effect can be obtained.

On fully automatic operation, the gearbox makes use of four forward speed ranges. A kickdown switch linked to the throttle allows instant changing-down for overtaking.

A torque converter to provide a smooth getaway from rest in conjunction with the four forward gear ratios give the optimum performance for an automatic transmission linked to a small engine.

Previously there have been technical difficulties in providing a satisfactory automatic system for small cars and this new transmission represents a major breakthrough towards more relaxed and sophisticated motoring for the small-car owner.

By modifying the torque curve of the Mini and 1100 power units, the same performance can be obtained as with an ordinary manual gearbox model.

The layout of the automatic transmission corresponds closely to the existing BMC Mini and 1100 transverse engine arrangement with the gearbox and final drive mechanism being contained within the sump.

The torque converter replaces the normal clutch and flywheel assembly while a large capacity camshaft-driven oil pump serves both the engine and transmission lubrication systems. Manufacture is a joint venture, the torque converter coming from the Automotive Products Group, while the gearbox is produced by The British Motor Corporation.

198-CUBIC INCH "Torque Command" six, rated at 128-horsepower, is the new standard engine on all Rambler American models for 1966, including the 440 four-door station wagon shown here. A 232-cubic inch six with two-barrel carburetor, rated at 155-horsepower, is offered as an option on Americans. Both engines feature seven main bearing crankshafts with eight counterweights for smoother operation, high performance.

Classic in Seven Models

There are seven models of the 1966 "Rambler Classic."

Emphasis has been placed on more luxury, more sporty styling and special options this year.

Station wagons are two inches longer to provide more cargo space and provide longer flowing lines. The new "Rebel" two-door hardtop, which is a newcomer to the line, has a crisp-line roof which gives the appearance of a convertible.

More emphasis has been placed on sporty two-door hardtops this year.

The Rebel custom-trim option includes a black vinyl top while slim bucket seats are offered as standard equipment.

The 1966 "Rambler Classic" displays fresh styling details on all models. The twin headlights have new diecast frames and are accentuated by a newly styled extruded aluminum grille.

Newly designed roof panels are evident on the station wagon models and the restyled rooftop travel racks are standard equipment. "Wrap-around" tail-lights feature excellent side as well as rear visibility.

New interiors feature redesigned instrument clusters while front seat headroom has been increased by a half-inch on most models. A choice of AM or a combination of AM-FM radios are available on all 1966 "Rambler Classic" models. Two and four-door sedans, two-door hardtops, four-door wagons and the new "Rebel" round out the Classic models for 1966.

Rear seat belts, padded instrument panel and sun visors, back-up lights, left outside mirror and windshield washers are standard on all the new "Rambler Classic" models. Parallel-action variable speed vacuum windshield wipers are standard while electric wipers become an option for the first time.

Double action safety brakes, ceramic-armored exhaust system and advanced unit construction continue to be standard safety features on all American Motors products.

Windshield glass is constructed of a new higher-strength laminated safety plate glass to ensure greater durability and resistance to penetration.

Headrests continue to be a safety option and a new four-way hazard warning system to activate all four turning indicators is a new safety option.

Three engine choices are available on all the Classic models. Two six-cylinder "Torque Command" engines with seven main bearings, rated at 145 and 155 horsepower, give excellent performance and stress economy. The 198-horsepower V-8 engine gives extra performance while still using regular fuel.

Sporty Rogue Loose

American Motors (Canada) Limited's compact model, the "Rambler American" has a newcomer — a two-door sporty hardtop, named the "Rogue."

The "Rogue" is priced and styled to appeal to a very large segment of the market which shops for economy and performance as well as comfort and beauty.

The "Rogue" has reclining slim bucket seats with centre cushion and arm rests as standard equipment. Other selections include individual front seats, solid front seats, with reclining or non-reclining backs. Seven positions of the reclining back are provided for maximum passenger comfort.

Shower of Valentines To Surprise Shut-In

By ELIZABETH FORBES

This is Valentine's Day! Messages have been flying back and forth across the country. Parents and children and grandchildren have received colorful cards, some made by childish hands.

Forbes

Sweethearts have conversed in the universal language of love and those who prefer to spice their offerings with humor have had a field day.

I don't suppose anyone in Victoria has enjoyed this day more than a young lady, crowding 17 years, who, if everything went according to plan, received a deluge of valentines this afternoon, from near and far.

Her first name is Susan. She's a "shut-in." A polio patient who is unable to use her legs.

★ ★ ★

Susan attends First United Church. When she does, she is carried in by her widowed mother and a friend.

A while back, someone who also attends this church and who had seen Susan and her mother there conceived the idea that it would be a wonderful surprise if she received an anonymous "shower of valentines" on this Feb. 14.

The person who had this thought (I'm sorry, I don't know if it's a man or a woman) set to work to make a list of people that just possibly might co-operate.

When the list was completed a letter had to be composed, telling Susan about the idea. These letters were sent anonymously to each person on the list. Stamped envelopes were also included and with each envelope went a suitable valentine.

★ ★ ★

I received one of the letters. In essence it read:

"If you approve of the idea will you kindly address the envelope as given at the top (it was Susan's full name and address). Add your initials ONLY and Victoria, to the valentine herewith together with any little message of good wishes. Seal it, postage is on the envelope. MAIL this on 9th February, Thursday."

How did this unkown friend of Susan arrange so that valentines, posted not only in Victoria but in Florida, Arizona, California, State of Washington, the seven western provinces and also in London, England, and Buenos Aires in the Argentine, would all reach the young recipient on the same day?

★ ★ ★

Officials in our main post office co-operated. They gathered mail arriving for Susan over a period of several days ahead of this date and made sure it was delivered all at one time. That time was this afternoon.

Last sentence in the letter of instructions assured that Susan would have a real surprise, as those chosen to send cards or messages were entirely unknown to her.

There was an expression of thanks, too, in anticipation of "assistance in this little valentine surprise for a wonderful girl."

I didn't know Susan before I received that letter. Actually, I do not know her now.

★ ★ ★

I can only guess that anyone who inspired an unknown friend to organize this delightful project must be a very fine girl.

I hope that today Susan's mail came in an extra large bundle. I hope she is still opening her valentines. I hope that as she touches each one, she will know that with every card comes the warmth of friendship and a wish for her health and happiness.

I know that the person who thought of the idea and who carried it through to a successful conclusion must be happy in the knowledge that Susan is happy.

We, who assisted by sending one small card each, are sharing in that happiness.

Indeed, it was a wonderful idea!

SURGEON NEAR DEATH

Severed Hand Sent to Wife

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP)—A surgeon from India was near death today after what police described as a bizarre self-amputation of his right hand, which he sent by a taxi driver to his estranged wife.

The husband was identified by police as Dr. Khurshed Ansari, 30, a resident in neurosurgery at Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, where he was taken after police found him on the floor of his blood-spattered apartment.

The severed hand was received early Sunday by a roommate of Dr. Ansari's wife, Margaret, 26, in a dormitory of Children's Hospital, where Mrs. Ansari is a staff physician.

Dr. Caroline Romshe, 28, said she received the package which had become blood-soaked and partly opened. She found the hand in the parcel with a note which read: "This is the hand that caused the trouble."

She telephoned police, who went to Dr. Ansari's apartment and found him lying in a coma on the floor of the bathroom.

Police said friends of the Ansaris told of having heard Mrs. Ansari talk of divorce.

SOME JITTERY GYRATIONS

By PENNY MURPHY

Try to tell a person with a bad case of the jitters that "the only thing to fear is fear itself." You'll receive a nervous giggle. Try to tell that person that the experience she is about to have, which is inconceivable to her imagination, leaves nothing to be afraid of. You'll feel the tremors.

Ask Lynda Gower what it's like, en route to the Victoria International Airport, to give confidence to a passenger who is scheduled for her first flight. Perhaps the task would be easier if the flight was to be an ordinary one, instead of aboard a plane like Citaborca.

When Lynda learned that I had never flown before, she had her doubts about sending me up in Citaborca. I was scheduled to take a spin in SPF, a four-passenger craft "that's simple to handle," she tried to tell me. When we arrived at the Victoria Flying Club, we discovered that SPF was stranded in Seattle.

A cup of coffee later, and no less nervous than I was when we arrived, Lynda and Bud Rude escorted me to Bud's gem, Citaborca. Lynda's parting words were, to Bud, "You won't do anything —will you?"

Once racing down the runway, fastened securely in the seat behind Bud, I don't know which made more noise — the roar of the engine or my teeth chattering. The roar changed to a steady buzz, and Bud's encouragements reached the back of the cockpit. "See, it's easier than driving a car. Nothing to it! It's flying automatically."

I opened my eyes. The ground was gone! It was fun, gliding around with the ease of a great seagull, without having to do anything but watch the land below.

Bud explained the mechanics of turning a plane by easing your feet on pedals, and guiding the stick in the same direction. Then, he decided to show me what distinguishes "Citaborca" from an ordinary plane.

With one quick motion, I felt the stick go straight forward. The plane shot straight up in the air. One moment, you could look down and see the ground. From our perch, a few seconds later, looking down, we saw the sky. My stomach hit my throat, then swerved into my rib cage as we flipped sideways, back to an upright position.

Gambling against the strength of my stomach, Bud pushed the stick all the way up, and again, ground and sky switched places. Like an incomplete summersault, the plane flipped back again.

Before my digestive tract could make any signs of protest, we were upside down, then heading for the ground. One complete flip . . . oops, two . . . three magnificent flips!

The name "Citaborca" can now be seen in its true light. "Citaborca" is "acrobatic" spelled backwards.

It was a funny feeling to be back on solid ground again. It wasn't for long, though. Jack Ellard, chief flying instructor, and manager of the Victoria Flying Club, was sitting beside me in a four-passenger plane, telling me how to take off. Everything was happening so fast that I hardly realized that I was behind the controls, and we were steadily gaining altitude.

He seemed perfectly at ease, even when the plane started going straight down, and a warning buzzer sounded. Nearing a state of absolute panic, I managed to ask why we were going down. With a casual adjustment to the throttle, and a pull on the stick, Jack had the plane high up in the air. All that had happened, he explained, was a simple stall.

The landing was the part that I thought would get the best of us. I guided the plane straight down one of the streets of Sidney, towards the landing strip. The ground was creeping up faster and faster. Red barriers at the beginning of the field almost scraped the belly of the plane. Then the wheels touched the ground. Perfect landing!

After spending a daring, exciting afternoon in the air, it is easy to see why people who love adventure take to the sky.

MacDONALD-LARSEN VOWS

Lace Appliques Enhance Exquisite Wedding Gown

Embossed lace appliques accented the fitted bodice of the gown worn by Mary Margaret Greer Larsen, recently, when she became the bride of John David MacDonald in Sacred Heart Church.

The bride's gown was of silk taffeta and floor-length, with bodice featuring sleeves ending in lily points. Her veil misted to chapel-length from a headpiece of a single pearl droplet and leaves, surrounded by a circlet of crystals. She carried a single mauve catalaya orchid, surrounded with white net, freesia and streamers. The mauve of the orchid was repeated in the streamers, starred with lovers' knots. Her only jewelry was an heirloom necklace, belonging to her family.

Fr. J. Planeta heard marriage vows exchanged between the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Larsen, "Erindale", Sooke, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. MacDonald, 3760 Winston Crescent, Victoria. Mr. Larsen gave his daughter in marriage.

Floor-length gowns of peacock blue peau de soie and matching self-fabric headpieces were worn by maid of honor, Miss Joan Perry, and bridesmaid, Miss Lelonde. Junior bridesmaid Tora Larsen was in a gown of peacock blue velvet with headpiece to match. All carried bouquets of beige cymbidium orchids and wore small pendants, gifts of the bride.

Wayne Nuttall was best man. Ushering guests to their pews were brothers of the principals, Ron MacDonald and Lawrence Larsen.

A three-tier wedding cake, decorated in white and silver tones, centred the head table at the reception following in the home of the groom's parents. A bud vase of white freesia and fern topped the cake.

For travelling on honeymoon up-Island and to the mainland, the new Mrs. MacDonald chose a wool knit suit in beige and brown topped with a matching coat and accented with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Kolberg travelled from Alameda, Calif., for the ceremony. Also from out-of-town were Mrs. K. Coutts and family of Vancouver.

Other Countries Studied by Toastmistresses

A program designed to encourage a better understanding of other countries set the theme when the Victoria Toastmistress Club held its meeting in the Princess Louise Room of the Empress Hotel recently.

Table topic mistress, Mrs. K. S. Bains, distributed travel folders on various countries, and each member was asked to give a one-minute impromptu speech on the country of her folder, choosing from landmarks of interest, famous people, the people of that country and their way of life.

Mrs. J. J. Wiart gave a 10-minute lesson "Points to Ponder" and introduced toastmistress Mrs. J. R. Pipes, who subsequently introduced the following speakers: Miss Gladys Edwards, "The Knack of Intelligent Travel"; Mrs S. Gibbins, "Voice From the Grave"; Mrs. V. Keziere, "A Way of Life"; Mrs. N. E. Blackmore, "Winging South"; Miss Donna Keoppel, "Defender of Youth," and Mrs. P. A. Petersen, "Land of Frost and Fire."

Critics were Miss Donelda Lentz and Mrs. Frank Hong. Mrs. E. Brady was evaluator and Mrs. W. H. Davies gave the closing thought.

Miss Gloria Johnston was inducted as a new member and presented with a corsage. The ceremony was conducted by vice-president and membership chairman, Mrs. J. M. Speers. She was assisted by president Mrs. T. Y. Grant.

Annual IODE Festival Scores Record High

The brick and gold-papered walls of the McPherson Playhouse have witnessed some outstanding performances in their time, But even those silent onlookers would agree that the performance they witnessed Saturday — both on-stage and in the lounges — would have to be the most gigantic, most colorful and possibly the best-received spectacular they have ever contained!

Playing to a record crowd (the "gate" for the afternoon was $4,000), this year's IODE festival, sponsored by the Victoria Municipal and primary chapters, went "all out" in providing enjoyment for all — in stalls, refreshment and entertainment.

The playhouse has often resounded with the laughter and applause from many an appreciative audience and Saturday was no exception. The review, "1866 and All That" kept the accent on entertainment in the two performances presented.

The stage rocked with the melodious sounds of Vanessa Lax and Bill Hosie and the intricate steps of Sylvia Hosie and Paul Blakey as they attempted to "raise the roof" with songs and dances from "The Boy Friend." Instead, they "nearly brought the house down" with laughter and cheers as the delighted audience called them again and again for encores.

MUSICAL TRIP

Lending a quieter air to the program was the soprano voice of Miss Erica Kurth, who led the audience on a musical trip through the years from Elizabethan days to this century, with vocal numbers from "Showboat."

Harry Hill, her accompanist, was also master of ceremonies, and had the assembly almost "rolling in the aisles" with prime examples of his master wit in a "burlesque of composers."

In the second performance, the emphasis was on youth, the Uplands School choir led by Mrs. Lorna Griffiths captivating its audience with a variety of songs. Thomas Tucker conducted the Greater Victoria Schools Junior Symphony Orchestra. They kept all spellbound as they performed numbers from the classes and more modern compositions.

In the upper and lower lounges, the stage was set with a wealth of stalls and booths to make any bargain-hunter's dreams come true. The only decorations festooning the gold-tinted walls were artists' palettes, splashed with color, directing guests to the particular stalls set about the walls or to the "continuing" coffee party area in the centre of the upper foyer.

The unique signs were designed especially for the festival by students in the Kootenay School of Art in Nelson, B.C.

A valentine theme was the high point of the head table, however, which was centred with a large arrangement of red roses and carnations, set with hearts.

AT HEAD TABLE

Special guests at the festival seated at the head table included Alderman Lily Wilson, who opened the affair; Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, Mrs. Waldo Skillings, Alderman and Mrs. Robert Baird — and representing the IODE, municipal regent Mrs. Elsie Lowthian, municipal vice-regent, Miss Christine MacNab, and Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, vice-regent of municipal and provincial chapters respectively, and Mrs. A. B. Hall, Nanaimo, provincial vice-regent. Greeting the guests and convening the affair was Mrs. Harold Menzies.

Valentine's Day also crept into the decoration themes of several of the stalls — including home cooking.

It's well-known that the best way to a man's heart is through his stomach and Mrs. J. A. Church, Mrs. R. R. Jeffels and members of the Robert Burns McMicking Chapter IODE took full advantage of the fact. Not only did they use silhouettes of Dan Cupid himself, swinging from the front of the booth and dangling from a cupid "tree" as a decoration theme, but also featured the most delicious hearts — made of frosted cakes, cookies and even buns, to tempt hungry and romantic natures.

The candy stall, convened by Mrs. A. B. Carson, also took full advantage of the festive day approaching.

Their stall featured the valentine theme, too, with large heart-shaped boxes of chewy, crunchy home-cooked fudge, spicy cinnamon hearts or sugary, flavorful hard candy, designed to soften the heart of any sweet-toothed romantic.

Some women confessed that they wouldn't really mind housework if they wielded a mop when protected by some of the attractive skirt-savers featured at the apron and novelty stall supervised by Mrs. V. A. Downard. Frothy, filmy hostess covers swung string by belt with serviceable yet smart-looking heavy-duty aprons.

Highlights for many of the guests at this stall were waste-paper baskets made from magazines, or hand-sewn "necessity covers" — one of the most attractive ways to beautify a bathroom.

COFFEE GUESTS

Many guests migrated to the refreshment area, to rest feet and relax for coffee and conversation, before returning to browse and buy at the stalls. More than one woman, seated at the tables, was deeply engrossed in a book, too, which she had picked up at the veritable library offered by Miss Margaret McNeill and her committee at the book stall.

Guests enjoyed dainty sandwiches of every description, and delicious little cakes and cookies were served by conveners Mrs. J. A. Talbot and Mrs. C. E. Beirnes and their committee. Convening other stalls, all which had their own raffle, were Mrs. B. Harvey and Mrs. W. Roskelley, delicatessen, Mrs. P. Fecteau, French shop, and Mrs. J. T. Jones, lucky dip. Mrs. V. Shepperd was treasurer, and Mrs. C. C. Corneille managed the main raffle.

In charge of the variety program was Mrs. Herbert Barnes. Mrs. J. Pettersson supervised the publicity and Mrs. V. Pritchard, the receipts.

Of Personal Interest

Co-Hostesses

Mrs. C. A. Fields and her daughter, Mrs. Kerry Stevenson entertained at a shower in Mrs. Fields' Foster Street home for bride-elect Miss Lynne Fields, recently. Red rosebuds and white carnations en corsage were presented to the guest of honor and her mother, Mrs. R. B. Fields. A decorated laundry basket contained the gifts. Attending the affair were the bride-elect's grandmother, Mrs. H. Wilson, Mrs. Ruth Howell, Mrs. F. Argyle, Mrs. D. Anderson, Mrs. I. Bishop, Mrs. J. Bishop, Mrs. R. Putt, Mrs. V. Warder, Mrs. G. MacPherson, Mrs. M. MacPherson, the Misses Nancy Johnson and Penny Putt.

Boy Shows Slight Improvement

Nine-year-old Clifford Bouvette of Alberni is in "slightly improved" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital after being struck by a truck in Alberni last Wednesday.

The semi-conscious boy was transferred to Victoria Saturday.

He received severe injuries when in collision with the truck moments after he stepped from a school bus.

Driver 'Fair' After Surgery

After emergency surgery in Royal Jubilee Hospital here Saturday afternoon, William McDonald, 825 Burdette Avenue, Victoria, is in "fair" condition.

McDonald received a fractured skull and serious chest injuries when his truck collided with a station wagon three miles south of Duncan Saturday morning.

The Goodwill Enterprises truck rolled over several times before coming to rest on its roof.

The accident occurred at the intersection of the Trans-Canada Highway and Bench Road.

McDonald was headed toward Duncan with a load of clothing which, after the accident, was strewn along the highway.

McDonald was apparently thrown through the windshield and was under the truck when the Duncan Kiwanis ambulance arrived.

Mrs. Beverly Berkey, Cobble Hill, driver of the station wagon, was apparently going to make a turn off the highway to a cafe when the crash occurred, police said.

Neither she nor her two children in the vehicle were badly hurt.

Total damage was over $3,000.

HEAD COACH of B.C. Lions Dave Skrien will attend sportsmen dinner April 1 sponsored by Cowichan Minor Football Association. Others attending will be Tom Brown, Lions linebacker, Schenley Trophy winner and former Canadian all-star and Olympic track star Harry Jerome.

MOTHERS FIGHT OLD WELLS

ALBERNI—McCoy Lake area residents have begun a campaign to "fill in or fence off" abandoned wells and ditches.

The action was taken because of the death last week of seven-year-old Terry Hurd who was drowned in a water-filled open pit.

Old wells, septic tanks and storage reservoirs could easily be hidden by the thick underbrush which grows in the area.

Six mothers met at a home Friday to plan a neighborhood safety program.

Out of Polynesian Paradise Into Canada's Banana Belt

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — In his scrapbook John Mei has written: "We would have loved to spend the rest of our lives in Brunei."

But unfortunately for the Mei family rebellion broke out in the British protectorate which borders North Borneo.

That was in December, 1962.

After being freed by the rebels, Mr. Mei left for Canada.

●

John is happily adapting himself to life in Canada's banana belt from his Polynesian paradise.

He is employed at Crofton Mill as an instrument technician.

In two years in Canada, the Mei family has tried living in Port Alice and Fort St. John.

The cold weather at Fort St. John literally almost killed their youngest child, six-year-old Jimmy.

Although he didn't elaborate, he said the rebellion which prompted him to leave Brunei was Indonesian-inspired.

It was an attempt to keep the small protectorate from joining the Federation of Malaysia, he said.

Some 3,000 British troops were flown in to quell the uprising.

But before their arrival, John was held a prisoner for five days in harsh conditions.

John has a fascinating background. Born in Canton, China, 43 years ago, he left for Hong Kong while still a boy. He was brought up there by his grandmother.

John learned his trade first in free China at Chungking during the war and later with a Hong Kong airline.

●

After the war he joined the Royal Dutch Shell Company and was moved to Brunei.

In Brunei his family became British subjects.

"We followed the customs of the British people for 12 years and had no difficulty adapting to our new life in Canada."

John's biggest difficulty was having to adapt from being a supervisor to having to work with his hands again.

The Mei children are mixing well in Canadian life.

Eldest daughter Lily must be one of the youngest students on the UBC campus.

At 17, she is in her first year of a science course.

For each of five years in Brunei she won scholarships.

Lucy, 16; Thomas, 10; Susan, 8, and Jimmy, 6, are all in school in Duncan.

●

John, who was rector's warden in an Anglican church in Brunei, last month was elected to the church committee of St. John's in Duncan.

He says few people in the West realize that Brunei has the highest standard of living in the Far East.

John says: "There is free education, no income tax, no business tax, and there is an old-age pension.

"The majority of the people don't want independence because some other country would just step in.

"They have domestic self-government."

Brunei's wealth stems from its oil resources.

Some 10 per cent of the population is British, Dutch, French and Italian. Another 10 per cent is Indian or Eurasian.

About 30 per cent is Chinese and the rest are native Polynesians.

Out of the total population of 80,000 some 1,000 work for the oil company.

The native population is largely westernized in its way of living.

"Everyone has either a bicycle or a motorbike and I had my own small car plus a Landrover and motorbike supplied by the company."

In his job, John had a free house with free power and furniture. He had free medicare plus a salary equivalent to $400 a month in Canada.

The occasion is the annual dinner of the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Limited 25-Year Club at which 156 company employees will be presented with engraved gold watches.

Council Increased

Duncan city council was increased by two seats today.

A provincial cabinet order approved a council request for a boost in size to mayor and six aldermen.

The two new seats will be filled by an election not later than June 30, the order said. One term will be for the rest of this year and the other will run until the end of 1967.

Gas Chamber Constructed At Dog Pound

CAMPBELL RIVER—Vancouver Island's first gas chamber is being constructed here by the municipality.

At present unwanted occupants of death row at the dog pound are taken out and shot.

The gas chamber is being constructed as a more humane way to do away with wayward pooches.

No date has been set for the first execution, but when it occurs SPCA officials from Victoria will be on hand as witnesses.

CARBON MONOXIDE

The gas chamber makes use of pure carbon monoxide which is filtered from fumes of an engine.

It was designed by the Montreal SPCA which has been doing research in better ways to kill animals.

In Victoria, the SPCA uses an electric chamber, similar in principle to an electric chair.

The gas chamber costs about $600 and the electric chamber about $800.

Smuggled Books West

MOSCOW (UPI) — Two Russian writers were convicted today of undermining Soviet Communism with clandestine works smuggled to the west and were sentenced to prison terms of five and seven years.

Literary critic Andrei D. Sinyavsky received the maximum sentence of seven years. Newsman-translator Yuli M. Daniel was sentenced to five years.

The court ruled the terms must be served in "strict regime labor camps." Strict regime usually means no such privileges as visitors or regular correspondence with the outside.

The Supreme Court of the Russian Federated Republic refused prosecution demands that both men be banished from Moscow after serving their sentences.

The court convicted Sinyavsky and Daniel on charges of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" despite their pleas they did not mean to damage communism or the Soviet Union with their works.

Sinyavsky and Daniel had pleaded innocent to the charges while admitting they had smuggled books written under assumed names to the west for publication.

Spectators Needed Invitation

Although the trial was "public," neither foreigners nor the general public were admitted. Spectators were admitted by invitation only and included mainly other Russian writers and officials.

The four-day trial stirred an international storm. Forty-nine Western writers publicly urged the Soviet government to free the two men.

Sinyavsky and Daniel had admitted that for seven years they wrote books, essays and short stories under the pennames of "Abram Tertz" and "Nikolai Arzhak," respectively.

The works, all taking a critical view of Russia under Communion, were smuggled to Paris and published there. They spread from there and Sinyavsky became a best seller in the West and his works were published in 24 languages.

While admitting the writing and smuggling, Sinyavsky and Daniel pleaded innocent on the grounds they did not intend their work to be "anti-Soviet." They argued also for the right of self-expression.

The court's hand-written judgment, read by presiding Justice Lev Smirnov, took more than two hours to read. Both the defendants and the audience stood throughout.

Applause—traditional in Soviet courts—followed the verdict.

Queen Mother May Visit City

QUEEN MOTHER
. . . news "unofficial"

The Queen Mother Elizabeth is expected to spend a few hours in Victoria on Friday, March 18.

News of the royal visit reached The Times unofficially today but civic and provincial sources appear to confirm it.

Deputy Provincial Secretary L. J. Wallace said there is a likelihood the Queen Mother will visit for a few hours.

He said an official announcement can be expected before the end of this week.

Mayor A. W. Toone said he has had no definite information "but a visit has been indicated."

It has been known since Jan. 14 that the Queen Mother would make a brief stopover at Vancouver March 18 when an aircraft carrying her to Australia stops there for refueling.

Ottawa Program At $9 Billion

OTTAWA (CP) — Revenue Minister Benson today presented the Commons with an initial government spending and investment program amounting to $9,318,224,878 for the 1966-67 fiscal year which starts next April 1.

The record figure was 9½ per cent higher than the program former finance minister Walter Gordon presented to the Commons nearly a year ago for the current fiscal year ending March 31. It represented a big advance in administration and public works spending.

The new figure is likely to increase further. Millions will be needed under legislation now before Parliament and for programs developed as the new financial year goes along.

On the other hand, individual items making up the total estimates are maximum amounts, and some money earmarked for a specific purpose may not be spent within the year. In the past any such decreases have been outpaced by the increases.

The $9,318,224,878 for the new year compares with $8,506,872,232 in the initial program for 1965-66. Last year's first estimate already has been swollen to $9,079,438,540 with supplementary appropriations so far tabled in the Commons. There may be still more before March 31.

SCALE OF SPENDING

The figure of $9,318,224,878 includes amounts not regarded as budgetary expenditures in the parliamentary sense, but it indicates the scale of spending for which Finance Minister Sharp must budget when he prepares the tax program, likely to be presented to the Commons late next month.

Included as non-budgetary items were $1,035,000,000—up from $905,000,000 this year—in expenditures from the old age security fund. This reflects the lowering of the qualifying age to 69 last Jan. 1 and to 68 next Jan. 1 for the universal $75 monthly pensions paid from special sales, income and corporation taxes.

Also included is $332,765,400 for the new year, compared with $202,144,800 a year ago, for loans, investments and advances. These go mainly to Crown corporations like the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., and Expo 67. The government expects repayment in future years.

PENSIONS NOT INCLUDED

Another big account not reflected in the new Blue Book is the Canada Pension Plan fund. Payroll deductions for the fund began last Jan. 1.

The new estimates included $1,510,204,000 for defence, including the budgets of the defence department, defence production department, Emergency Measures Organization and Crown companies directly involved in defence work. The figure a year ago for 1965-66 was $1,583,613,800. This already has grown to $1,593,584,393 with supplementary estimates tabled since.

For every $1 of government spending in the new fiscal year, the taxpayer's money would be divided this way: 26 cents for health and welfare payments, including old age pensions; 18 cents for defence, 13 cents for debt charges, five cents for subsidies and other payments to the provinces, and 38 cents for all other federal government services.

U.S. PEACE BID

'Sad to See Great Power Grovelling'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Senator Barry Goldwater says an American demonstration of determination—and not what he calls "grovelling" peace offensives — will bring North Viet Nam to the conference table.

"I don't think it's our job to get the Communists to the conference table by begging, by going through other emmisaries, by going through other leaders," the 1960 Republican presidential candidate said Sunday on ABC's radio-television program Issues and Answers.

"I think we'll get the Hanoi government to the conference table when we convince them we have the will to attack and that we are attacking them.

"It is a very sad spectacle to see the greatest power on earth sort of grovelling."

OTHERS ALSO COMMENT

President Johnson's peace offensive—and its failure thus far—brought these other weekend developments:

—Senator Abraham A. Ribicoff (Dem. Conn.) proposed that Johnson invite the participants in the 1954 Geneva conference to meet again to discuss a settlement in the Viet Nam War.

—Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former U.S. ambassador to South Viet Nam, said the probability is "quite low" that increased military pressure by the United States in Viet Nam would lead to a confrontation with China.

—Administration officials reported the U.S. has started blacklisting non-Communist and Polish ships that trade with North Viet Nam.

Goldwater suggested that air power be used to attack the industrial complexes in North Viet Nam, bomb railways and destroy the Ho Chi Minh trail and said North Viet Nam's ports could be shut down by mining them or sinking ships in them.

Goldwater, a general in the air force reserve, said more authority for the direction of the fighting should be given to "military people who have spent their

Plane Wreckage Located

PALOMARES BEACH, Spain (AP) — Air and ground searchers today located the wreckage of a U.S. Air Force Globemaster with eight Americans aboard which crashed while delivering material for the search for the U.S. nuclear device missing in the waters off the coast of Spain.

A U.S. spokesman said the wreckage was sighted six miles northwest of the village of Trevelez, on the snow-covered slopes of 11,423-foot Pico Mulhacen, in the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

The Spanish news agency CIFRA quoted official Spanish sources as saying there were no survivors. Headquarters of the 16th U.S. Air Force, however, declined to make any statement on the fate of the eight crew members until a closer search of the area is made.

U.S. Navy Chicken To Play 'Chicken'

TOKYO (Reuters) — Russian warships in the Pacific often try to engage American naval units in a game of nautical "chicken," United States Rear-Admiral Evan P. Aurand said today.

"They come at us on a collision course and we have a full-time job avoiding them," he told reporters here.

Aurand said Russian destroyers had steamed straight at his ships north of Luzon off the Philippines.

"We occasionally observe Russian naval units and if we come within close range of each other they steam straight at us," he said.

"Also in the Gulf of Tonkin, merchant ships, mostly Russian and loaded to the gunwhales, have sailed straight through our lines carrying war materials into North Vietnamese ports.

"It's tough watching these ships sail through carrying materials which will be thrown back at us by the Communists."

Aurand, commander of anti-submarine warfare group, now has his flagship, the aircraft carrier Hornet, and four destroyer escorts at the U.S. naval base at Yokosuka, near Tokyo, preparing to sail on Thursday for Australia.

Cambodia Boosts Combat Force

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — The Cambodian government announced today it was increasing its combat forces by 5,500 men "in the face of almost daily aggressions by our neighbors."

The buildup, effective immediately, came amid increasing border skirmishes with Thailand. Cambodia is also bordered by South Viet Nam and Laos. The increase would bring Cambodia's total combat forces to 23,500 men.

Cambodia has enough war material on hand — most of it from China — with which to arm new troops. Official announcements have listed Peking-supplied weapons and other items for nearly 75,000 men.

The government said the troop increase was being taken to cope with "aggression" by the so-called "Khmer Serei" (Free Cambodia) right-wing rebel movement.

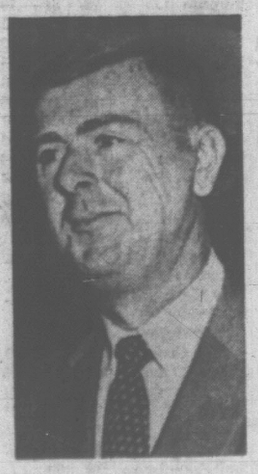
'DIRTY' BOMB BEST WEAPON AND U.S. STILL BUILDING IT

TORONTO (CP) — A United States nuclear physicist said Sunday night his country is still building the so-called "dirty nuclear bomb" because it is the most effective military weapon.

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, who worked on the Manhattan Project that helped develop the atomic bomb during the Second World War, was interivewed on the CBC's television program This Hour Has Seven Days.

"That's what's in inventory and that's what the B-52s are carrying," he said in reference to nuclear bombs with heavy radioactive fallout.

Dr. Lapp said it is unrealistic to think of getting any kind of gentleman's agreement so that only "humane" bombs are used in nuclear war. "Your opponent will use his best weapons as he sees them."



LAPP

He described a nuclear war as "a horrible convulsion in which there'll be no time for restraint. An enemy will simply hurl his nuclear might at you as a kind of series of jovian thunderbolts, and you in turn will not wait to evaluate the damage."

Dr. Lapp said he thought it would be technically possible for China to have a hydrogen bomb in two or three years.

He said the only way to get at the Chinese in the event of war would be to use dirty bombs with plenty of fallout.

However, he said he doubted whether the United States could win a war with China using "clean bombs." I don't believe you could even deter China by using the blast of a Minuteman or Polaris weapon against its cities."
